Secret Groups Said Planned By Communists

Investigators Predict Disbanding If 12 Party Leaders Convicted

WASHINGTON, July 2 (INS).—House spy probers declared today there is evidence that American Communists have completed plans to go underground if their 12 party leaders are convicted in the New York conspiracy trial.

An un-American Activities Committee member asserted that staff investigators are uncovering mounting proof that a complete blueprint has been drawn for disbanding the party and operating on a "secret cell" basis.

The committee member said that if the Government proves that the party leaders conspired to overthrow the Government by force and violence, the Communists would abandon all pretense of being a legal political party and operate in underground secrecy to escape further prosecution.

He said if the party leaders are found guilty, the party probably would dissolve itself in the following manner:

Members would destroy their membership cards. Records at party headquarters would be concealed for safekeeping by a trusted area leader.

Under orders, which committee investigators feel may already have been issued, rank and file members would form small, highly secret cells consisting of four or five members.

The cells would meet at irregular intervals to receive party orders issued from above. The cells would operate independently and would have no knowledge of the activities of other similar groups.

SOME "EXPENDABLES"

Publications such as The Daily Worker, probably would continue operations with the argument that they had legally disassociated themselves from the Communist party.

A good deal of activity would be carried on through the medium of new Communist-front organizations which would be established.

The committee member said that the party probably would leave some "expendables" to operate as open Communists in the hope of concealing the fact that most of the party had gone underground.

MEMBERSHIP DOWN

As an indication that such an underground movement already is underway, the spy prober observed that the membership of the Communist party in various areas has shown a sudden drop in the past few months.

Death Toll Climbing Toward 100

By International News Service

The United States death toll from violent accidents mounted steadily last night toward the 100 mark with 93 persons reported killed on the first day of the long Fourth of July week-end.

The latest reports showed 59 had been killed in auto accidents, 20 by drowning and 14 others through miscellaneous causes, including three in plane accidents and eight who died in the sweltering heat.

Millions of motorists were expected to take to the roads today.

Empire Offers Scant Aid In Battle to Save Pound

LONDON, July 2 (AP).—The British Empire can give sympathy but little else in the battle to earn dollars and save the pound, an Associated Press survey showed tonight.

Commonwealth nations would like to help the Island Kingdom solve her dollar woes. But most of them are having dollar troubles, too.

Support appeared general against cheapening the pound from its present price of $4.04.

Financial experts of the Commonwealth gather here in a few days for emergency talks. Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, called the meeting because of the severe drain on the gold and dollar reserves of the sterling area.

HEAVY LOSS SEEN

Before Marshall aid began Britain's reserve fund was $2,208,000,000. It was down to $1,884,000,000 by the end of March. Next week's report on the second quarter is expected to show a further heavy loss.

The fight to close the gap between dollar outgo and income is one Britain must win to keep even her present austere standards. Britain's dollar reserves are also those of the Empire and much of the Commonwealth.

The situation by countries:

Australia—There have been heavy cuts in dollar spending since the end of the war. But Australia still is spending $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 more a week than she earns.

New Zealand—Finance Minister Walter Nash declined to comment on talk—mainly in the United States—of pound sterling devaluation. He and other officials coming to London for the finance talks believe the sterling bloc must survive.

GRAVE CONCERN

Pakistan—The semi-official newspaper, Dawn, declares it is difficult to see how finance ministers can give more than sympathy to Britain. Financial circles in Karachi view talk of sterling devaluation with grave concern.

India—Official circles in New Delhi place most of the blame for the dollar strain on falling prices in the United States.

South Africa—It is generally predicted South Africa may be asked to sell its gold to the sterling area. South Africa now sells its gold output to the United States to cover purchases there.

Canada—The Dominion is not in the sterling area. Canadian officials sympathize with Britain but are short of dollars, too.

New Deposit Of Uranium Found in B.C.

VANCOUVER, July 2 (CP).—A new deposit of uranium has been found in British Columbia.

The uranium has been discovered on the slopes of Rocher de Boule about 500 miles north of Vancouver.

The property, acquired by Western Uranium Mines Ltd., of Vancouver, is located on the old Victoria claims worked for gold and cobalt from 1916 to 1929.

Visited recently by J. M. Black, of the British Columbia Mines Department, specimens so far collected showed "encouraging values in uranium."

A number of prominent Vancouver men are associated with the new company, which plans to mine the precious radio-active metal.

BULLETINS

Driver Dies

SEATTLE, July 2 (AP).—Passengers had to apply the brakes when a Seattle Transit System trackless trolley driver collapsed and died at the wheel at First and University late today.

Docks Safely

NEW YORK, July 3 (Sunday) (AP).—A Hudson River excursion steamboat, with 1,200 passengers aboard, docked safely early today after drifting for nearly three hours with a broken steering mechanism.

2,000,000 Tons

BERLIN, July 2 (AP).—The Western Allied airlift brought its 2,000,000th ton of supplies to Berlin tonight.

Most Workers Avoid Voting

DETROIT, July 2 (AP). — Sixty thousand workers at the Rouge plant of the Ford Motor Co. today voted a strike subject to call by the International.

The C.I.O. Local 600 announced tabulation of the secret ballot showed 2,902 favoring strike action and 172 opposed, with nearly 57,000 abstaining from voting.

The big local thus became the third Ford unit to authorize the U.A.W. leadership to call a strike. Since the union ordered the strike polls a week ago, Ford workers at the firm's Mound Road plant here and one at St. Paul, Minn., have taken similar action.

The union and company are at odds over union demands for a $100-a-month pension and a wage increase.

Armed Slovak Peasants Guard Catholic Priests

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, July 2 (AP).—Slovak peasants, armed with scythes, pitchforks and clubs stand guard around their Roman Catholic priests to shield them from Communist police.

This was the picture given tonight by reliable Slovak sources to responsible church circles and diplomats as this nation, torn by state-church conflict, embarked on a long week-end of religious holidays marked by pilgrimages to places famed in early Christian history.

It was difficult, if not impossible, for Westerners to go to the intensely Catholic eastern province to have a personal look at the situation because of travel restrictions suddenly announced by the Government for diplomatic personnel.

SLOVAKIA "SEALED"

These restrictions for the time being appeared to have sealed off troubled Slovakia with a little iron curtain.

The best possible sources of information in Slovakia reported villagers up in arms in various parts of the province, however, to prevent a repetition of the riotous scenes of last week-end.

Meanwhile, a Communist-controlled newspaper hinted that Archbishop Beran would not be imprisoned for his defiant stand against Government control of the church.

"NO PERSECUTION"

This view was expressed by Jira Sila, editor-in-chief of the trade unions' daily, Prace, in a front-page article for Sunday's edition.

Sila wrote:

"There will be no persecution. Untouched also will remain the Archbishop although it is said he already has his prison garb ironed and his head ready for the martyr's crown.

"It is not the style of the People's Republic to burn at the stake. But it also is not its policy to help anybody out of a political pickle into which he has got himself by blind obstinacy and who, because he now does not know which way to turn, would only welcome it if the state were to release him from responsibility for further developments."

Prace's article was considered particularly significant, because the paper is the personal organ of Communist Prime Minister Antonin Zapotocky.

Numerous Advantages Seen for Victoria In Civic Manager System of Government

In a series of two articles, The Daily Colonist presents an examination of the city-manager form of municipal government. How that plan works, and how it compares with the mayor-council form, is discussed in the series.

By LAWRIE JOSLIN

A person with money to invest would think twice before sinking it in a concern devoid of sound principles of management . . . in a firm administered by a board of directors without a full-time executive head to carry out its policies . . . in a company in which an almost complete lack of co-ordination between departments resulted in an annual financial loss.

Yet thousands of shareholders with large stakes in the Corporation of the City of Victoria daily regard such a business organization with unblinking eyes. They could legitimately insist that their representatives on the City Council seek the reforms necessary to bring more efficiency into the operation of the City Hall.

DEMAND FOR MANAGER

At odd intervals the demand has been made that an executive director, or city manager, be appointed to take over the job of running the city according to policy lines set by the City Council.

Institution of city manager government was proposed before the last civic elections, but no one seemed to pay much attention. Today the idea lies almost forgotten under the weight of a series of similar plans and counter-plans.

Last December an alderman who was not campaigning for re-election stated that the detail work required by council members under the present system was discouraging many successful businessmen from putting their talents to work for the municipal corporation. While aldermen should be determining policy and looking ahead at problems likely to confront the city in the future, they are asked now to consider countless problems "which could easily be settled by a high school student."

MUST ELIMINATE DETAIL

The alderman insisted that to make the city a model of good government a city manager must be appointed to take administrative detail out of the hands of the policy-makers.

With the rapid growth of Victoria the amount of this administrative detail has multiplied into a vast cloud before the eyes of council, blotting out underlying issues which must be seen clearly in the interests of good government. Too often nowadays the council itself instead of the present administrative system is blamed for inefficient management.

The present council realizes that a change must come in the administrative system. For while it has shied away from the city manager plan it has considered several stop-gap measures. Endorsement has been given to creation of a four-man department-head advisory committee to screen and review city business before it reaches the various committees of council. The six-month trial basis on which the "clearance committee" was established will end in July.

SERVE OUT TRIAL PERIOD

Before the new administrative committee had been in operation long, aldermen expressed puzzlement over its duties and its accomplishments. It was finally agreed, however, the committee should serve out the remainder of the trial period.

Later a proposal was advanced that study should be given to the possible appointment of a civic advisor or administrator. No clear definition of the duties of such an official were given when the idea was laid before council, beyond the suggestion that the administrative system at City Hall required an overhauling and such an advisor would be able to supply council with suggestions regarding ways and means of securing efficiency and, also future city planning.

The civic advisor plan was placed in the hands of the finance committee for report. It is understood the committee has spent a great deal of thought in preparing its report, drawing on the advice of the heads of large business and utility firms for its conclusions.

BIG CHANGE UNLIKELY

But even if the clearance committee is deemed a success, and even though a civic advisor is appointed, it is unlikely that the shape of affairs will change very much at City Hall.

The clearance committee has undoubtedly added something to the efficiency of city business. How much is another question. Aldermen still labor with petty problems, while big, costly issues wait their turn.

If a city advisor is appointed his appointment will certainly cost the taxpayer something in dollars and cents. The advice supplied may result in savings to the city, which might compensate for the cost of setting up the new office, but that is not the final position.

The weakness of such an office can be plainly seen. An advisor with very restricted powers would not likely have the authority to act when he saw inefficiency. He would only be able to add his reports to the growing number now being made by civic department heads.

FIRM HAND REQUIRED

So far council has appeared to proceed on the principle that half a loaf is better than none in its search for a better system of city administration. A cautious, almost nervous approach has been made when a firm hand and a bold outlook were required.

It was pointed out that institution of the city manager plan of administration would require another vote of the ratepayers. For some reason this seemed to dampen the enthusiasm of some of the proponents of the scheme. Petty jealousies among council members appeared to knock the scheme from another side, hence the proposals and counter-proposals.

But perhaps the main reason for council skirting the city manager proposal is the uncomfortable feeling that it was standing on the threshold of the unknown. Unknown it may be, but the city manager plan is not untried.

Information exists in the United States and Canada outlining details of the system. More information stands available in the hands of city officials and satisfied citizens of cities where the plan has brought order out of chaos, and efficiency and prosperity where inefficiency had previously pushed governments deeper in the red.

Berlin's U.S. Chief Plans Firm Stand

Foreign Investments Urged As McCloy Seeks Expansion

BERLIN, July 2 (INS).—John J. McCloy, new United States Military Governor, arrived in Berlin today and said he would "do everything" possible to open West Germany to foreign investments and expand her trade with the East.

"We will maintain the same firm policy towards the Russians," he said promptly upon his arrival. "There will be no (Allied) withdrawal from Berlin."

Under White House directives, McCloy immediately became military governor when he arrived in Germany. He is not expected to become high commissioner, his original appointment, until early in September after establishment of the West German government at Bonn.

American informants told International News Service a week ago that "the necessity of the quickest re-establishment of a strong clear policy direction in Germany" resulted in the decision for McCloy, a civilian, to take over the military governorship from acting governor Maj.-Gen. George P. Hays.

BUT NO RUSSIANS

McCloy was welcomed at Tempelhof airport by top American, British and French military and civilian officials, but no Russians.

German airlift workers jammed the area to get a glimpse of the new top American official.

McCloy made these points at a news conference:

1. "In my opinion the opening of Western Germany to foreign investments would be able to effect a very definite improvement in German economy," — plus expanded East-West trade.

2. "Our primary objective is the development of a peaceful, free, prosperous Germany integrated in the European family of nations."

3. He has no immediate plans to confer with the Russians, "but I believe there will have to be some talks as a result of the Paris agreement." McCloy said he had "hope" of unifying Berlin, "but I don't know exactly how we will go about it."

Services Favor Liberals

OTTAWA, July 3 (CP).—Members of the armed forces who voted in the June 27 general Federal election cast 60 per cent of their ballots in favor of the Liberal party.

Members of the permanent force, or reserve army units in camp and veterans in military hospitals were given an opportunity to vote from June 20 to June 25 for the candidates in their home constituencies.

A total of 22,714 ballots were cast, including 743 that were spoiled and rejected. The Liberals were given 13,797 of the votes, the Progressive Conservatives 5,316, the C.C.F., 2,294 and the Social Credit 369.

Other groups, including the Communist Labor-Progressive party and various independents, polled 195 votes.

The Labor-Progressive party's total soldier vote was 32.

The returns indicated that only slightly more than 50 per cent of the armed service personnel entitled to vote made use of the ballot. It was estimated that about 40,000 qualified for the vote, but the ballot boxes contained only 22,714 votes.

However, it is possible that some of those in Summer training voted as civilians.

Traffic Fatality

She had been in hospital since accident. Inquest has been set for Tuesday at 10 a.m. at Hayward's Funeral Parlors, Coroner E. C. Hart said yesterday.

Bombers Attack Shanghai

SHANGHAI, July 3 (Sunday) (INS) — Four Chinese Nationalist planes—including two four-engined bombers, raided Shanghai twice today.

In the first attack, a Mustang fighter plane swooped over the centre of the city, drawing machine gun fire.

In the second attack, an hour later, two Liberator bombers, accompanied by a Mosquito fighter-bomber, dropped bombs on the Kiangwan suburb.

There were no estimates of damages or casualties.

"High on Whipping List" Alabama Prober Warned

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 2 (AP). —A Methodist minister who uncovered a series of East Alabama floggings said today he had been warned he was on "the whipping list."

Rev. Luther Brown, Pastor of the Millersville Methodist Church 80 miles east of here, told state officers the warning was given him last night at prayer meeting.

Bankhead Bates, director of the state patrol, assigned men to investigate the threat to the minister. Brown said he was told "you are pretty close to the top of the whipping list."

DISCLOSED FLOGGINGS

He and another Methodist minister, the Rev. Frank Ledford, of Ashland, disclosed five floggings by robed and hooded men in Clay County after a private investigation.

In another part of the state, a disabled war veteran said he was flogged by a hooded mob the day after the State Legislature passed a law to ban the wearing of masks in Alabama.

John Thoms Franks, 34, told newsmen he was flogged last Wednesday night near his home in the little community of Boston, 90 miles northwest of Birmingham. Franks said the masked men accused him of drinking and staying away from home. He denied it.

Statements By Japanese Bring Arrest

TOKIO, July 3 (Sunday). — Yashiro Ii, former president of the Japanese Government "Railway Workers' Union, was arrested today on United States army orders.

The army said it ordered Japanese police to arrest Ii for statements made in his labor speech of June 16 in which he declared that the United States was leading Japan into slavery.

He also charged that the United States was getting rich by selling Japanese exports cheaply, then charging exorbitantly for imports into the occupied nation.

He was ordered arrested on charges of violating a MacArthur directive of 1945 which prohibits the spreading of "false or destructive criticism of the Allies and rumors."

Liner Watched By 17 Officers

NEW YORK, July 2 (AP).—Seventeen immigration officers in plain clothes greeted the Polish liner Batory when it docked today with 681 parrengers from Gdynia, Copenhagen and Southampton.

The Batory was the ship used by Communist Gerhart Eisler to flee the United States as a stowaway.

Convicted Girl Still Hopeful For Vindication in Second Trial

(Copyright 1940, by International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 2 (INS).—Convicted spy-girl Judith Coplon spent her first "free" day in New York today revisiting places where she trysted with Soviet Engineer Valentin Gubitchev. But she showed more interest in getting a bowl of chow mein.

The ex-Government worker, dressed like a college co-ed, was completely at ease and evidenced no dismay over her 40-month to ten-year prison term. She received the sentence for stealing secret Government documents with intent to transmit them to Russia.

STILL CONFIDENT

Nor did she show anything but confidence about her trial on July 11 with the Russian on espionage conspiracy charges. Conviction could bring an additional 35 years in prison.

"I have a clear conscience," she kept insisting.

Asked how she felt, now that the Washington jury had branded her a spy, the 28-year-old Barnard College graduate said:

"I still have faith in the democratic way of life. I love my country despite the verdict in Washington. I am not discouraged."

She lifted her chin and declared passionately:

"I definitely feel I will ultimately be cleared of all the charges against me."

UNDER $20,000 BAIL

The petite former Justice Department analyst returned to New York last night under $20,000 bail while an appeal is made from her spy conviction in Washington.

Under instructions by her attorney, Archibald Palmer, not to discuss her legal status, Miss Coplon was close-mouthed about the past, present and future, but was completely self-contained and calm in revisiting the places where, she says, she met and was wooed by Gubitchev.

The scenes she visited included the Statue of Liberty and the Museum of Modern Art where Judith said she met Gubitchev while admiring a painting. She said she particularly wanted to go to these places to show "everybody they are wide-open public places" and "not deserted spots" as the F.B.I. "claimed at the Washington trial."

"THOROUGHLY HUNGRY"

Throughout the tour of the city she remained completely self-composed and utterly confident that she will "eventually prove my innocence."

During the outing she showed enthusiasm for the scenery and once complained that "I'm thoroughly hungry." She wanted to get a "real dish of chow mein."

In a Chinese restaurant, Judy drank a big bowl of won ton soup, and consumed two heaping portions of pork chow mein and cup after cup of tea.

She then went home to her brother's house to "rest up and prepare for the next round, where I am sure the verdict will be different."

Coplon Case Sets Pattern For Future

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP).—The Judith Coplon case has cut the pattern—the United States Justice Department is carrying through in such spy cases no matter if it gets hurt doing so.

The Government was forced to dump carefully-guarded secrets before the eyes of the world, or see the case against its one-time employee thrown out of court.

Attorney-General Tom Clark, who personally made the tough decision, described his position today:

1. Abandonment of the Coplon case would have been an open invitation to any nation wanting to spy on the United States to get agents on the Government payroll.

2. It would have encouraged any Federal worker who might want to copy or remove secret data passing through his hands. The worker would have felt that the more secret the material, the safer he would be from prosecution.

The department policy means that if any Government employee takes national security data from the files to which he has access, knowing that it may fall into unfriendly hands, Clark intends "to throw the book at him."

Fate of Hiss May Be Set By Week-End

NEW YORK, July 2 (AP).—Alger Hiss probably will know his fate by next week-end.

The perjury case against the handsome, 44-year-old defendant, who carved out a brilliant government career during the days of the New Deal, is expected to go to the jury next Friday.

He was indicted by a Federal grand jury last December which charged that he lied when he denied slipping secret Government documents to Whittaker Chambers, avowed ex-courier for a Red spy ring.

FACES LONG TERM

If convicted on the two-count indictment, Hiss faces a maximum of ten years in prison and a fine of $4,000.

The dramatic trial ended its fifth week yesterday. Throughout the tense courtroom days, Hiss and his top defence counsel, white-haired Lloyd Paul Stryker, have denied point by point the foundation of the case the Government has built against the defendant.

The trial has been a legal struggle over the veracity of Hiss, the accused, and Chambers, the accuser.

Rebuttal and surrebuttal testimony is expected to be completed Tuesday or Wednesday. After at least two days of summations the case is expected to go to the jury of ten men and two women.

Civilians Kill U.S. Guardsman

NEW YORK, July 2 (AP).—Alexander J. Taras, 34, National Guard warrant officer marching last night with 900 other guardsmen to board a train, was knocked out of ranks and fatally injured by two men described by police as "civilian hecklers."

With bands playing, the troops marched on, as Taras lay dying on the pavement. The assailants fled.

Police said several guardsmen started to give chase but their commanding officers—momentarily unaware of what had happened—ordered them back into the ranks.

Plane Crash Fatal to 18

PERTH, Australia, July 2 (AP).—Eighteen persons were killed when a DC-3 transport lane bound for Darwin crashed in a blinding rainstorm early today at Guildford airport, eight miles from Perth.

All aboard the plane were killed instantly. The craft belonged to the MacRobertson Miller Aviation Company.

The plane hurtled to the ground and burst into flames. One engine is believed to have failed.

Four Unions 'Denied' Funds

SYDNEY, Australia, July 2 (Reuters).—Justice W. R. Kelly today granted an injunction restraining four unions from spending funds which it was alleged they drew from banks to aid coal miners in their countrywide strike.

The injunction was granted in arbitration court on four Government applications, in the first action under the Emergency Coal Strike Act.

The four unions named were the Miners' Federation, Federated Ironworkers' Association, the Dock Workers' Federation and the Amalgamated Engineering Union.

Brutal Killing Shocks Alberta

EDMONTON, July 2 (CP).—The tale of the brutal slaying of a 59-year-old warehouse worker, who was attacked with a steel pipe at a drinking party in a suburban home and then hacked to death with an axe as he lay in a shallow grave, shocked this Alberta capital today.

Acting swiftly, Edmonton police arrested a 40-year-old army veteran for murder and detained a railroad worker of about the same age as a material witness.

Charged with the axe-slaying of William W. McKay is Michael Joseph Hayes, alias Thomas Lee, of Edmonton. Held as a material witness is Al Robbins.

McKay allegedly was robbed of $118.

Police learned of the gruesome killing from Hayes' wife who was reported to have broken away from her husband long enough to telephone details of the drinking party which ended in McKay's death.

McKay was a widower and father of three children.

Hayes was arrested Thursday at his boxcar shanty. Robbins was taken into custody at Moon Lake, about 60 miles southeast of Edmonton, the following day.

Yugoslavs Hit By Arms Ban

BELGRADE, July 2 (Reuters).—The Eastern European bloc has stopped all deliveries of arms to Yugoslavia, Ivan Goshniak, Yugoslav Assistant War Minister, said yesterday.

Since the West "also does not want to give us arms," Yugoslavia would rely on her own manufacture, he said in an address.

Labor M.P. Charges Communists Backing Strike; Seeks Army Action

LONDON, July 2 (CP).—R. J. Mellish, Labor Member of Parliament for Rotherhithe, charged today that Communists are egging on London's dock strikers. He asked for military counter-spy units to track them down.

After an on-the-spot investigation with three fellow members of Commons aboard the Beaverbrae, one of two Canadian ships whose crew members provoked a sympathy work stoppage of more than 8,000 dockers, Mellish said:

"Disclosures there reveal what I believe to be an organized attempt to disrupt the country's economy and trade union loyalty of the London dockers, and is being exploited by the Communist elements."

SEEK ACTION

He said he and the other M.P.'s are sending this information to Home Secretary James Chuter Ede "for action by M.I.-5" (the War Office counter-spy branch).

Mellish, himself the son of a dock worker, made the statement at a rally of workers whose leaders appealed for a quick return to work.

The work stoppage, which left more than half the 160 ships in London idle, began a week ago when dockers refused to unload two Canadian ships.

The crews of the Canadian vessels went on strike after a walkout had been called by the Canadian Seamen's Union in Canada March 31 following signing of contracts between shipowners in the Dominion and the rival Seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.)

RAIL "REBELLION"

The so-called "central lockout committee of London dock workers" scheduled a mass meeting for Monday to reply to Mellish's statement.

On another labor front, leaders of the National Union of Railwaymen attempted to squelch a rebellion of some locals who insist on starting a slow-down strike which union headquarters ordered abandoned yesterday.

Most branches of the N.U.R. agreed to call off the go-slow campaign, but some rail workers, including some from London's largest stations and one group from Manchester, demanded that the slow-down go into effect.

The railroad workers' go-slow campaign had been due to operate from midnight Sunday in an attempt to hasten settlement of the claim.

Meanwhile, London's dock strike was still unsettled with 87 ships waiting to be unloaded.

Service Vote Backs Liberal For Burnaby

Special to The Colonist

OTTAWA, July 2.—The servicemens' vote for Burnaby-Richmond in the Federal general election gives a good majority for the Liberal candidate, Thomas H. Goode, over Mrs. Dorothy Steeves, C.C.F.

Added to the 282 majority he received in the civilian vote according to the latest figures of the returning officer, this will make the election of the Liberal candidate over his nearest opponent "as safe as a church."

This riding was the only one in British Columbia in which the servicemen's vote could have upset the unofficially declared winner previously announced on the basis of the civilian vote. The servicemens' vote for British Columbia constituencies went strongly anti-C.C.F.

The count in Burnaby-Richmond of the civilian vote has been a see-saw affair. First, it gave the seat on Monday night to Mr. Goode, later it placed Mrs. Steeves in front by a 16-vote margin; but this has since changed to a majority of 282 for Mr. Goode.

The official servicemen's vote will be announced tomorrow for each of the 262 constituencies across Canada for which there are such voters. The total official count will be completed and announced on Monday in most cases.

Freedom Brief For Logger Long Jailed

SEATTLE, July 2 (AP).—Clarence G. Boggie lived a free man six months, after 13 years in Washington State Prison for a slaying he claimed he never committed.

The 55-year-old Oregon logger, giving a conditional pardon Christmas Eve, died last night of a heart attack at a Northern California logging camp.

Don Magnuson, Seattle Times reporter, whose long investigations for his newspaper convinced him of Boggie's innocence of the slaying of Moritz Petersen in Spokane, June 26, 1933, was active in the fighting leading to the pardon.

The new evidence obtained was sufficient to convince Governor Mon C. Wallgren to take executive action.

Boggie's bride, Gertrude, was with him at the time of his death.

Estimates Question "Atomic Blitz"

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP).—It would take as many as 6,500 atomic bombs to totally destroy the cities of a major military power, an authority on strategic air wars said today.

The estimate came from Dr. Stefan T. Possony, a specialist on bomb target selection for France during the first part of the European war, later a psychological warfare expert for the United States Navy after the fall of France.

His calculations on the enormous number of A-bombs required questions the theory of an "atomic blitz" to defeat an enemy in a quick war. He cautions that "the destructiveness of a weapon is dependent on the quantity in which this weapon can be made available."

Possony, currently lecturing on military subjects at Georgetown University, set down his views in a volume on "Strategic Air Power for Dynamic Security," published by the Infantry Journal.

Possony used Germany, in its wartime condition, as an example of estimating the number of A-bombs necessary for a war of "total destruction" against urban areas. He chose that country because statistics are available for destruction wrought by conventional bombs.

The havoc produced by one atomic bomb is equal to about 4,000 tons of conventional bombs, based on the actual damage produced by the blast, Possony estimates.

Atomic Group Avoids Politics

CHICAGO, July 2 (AP).—The two-year-old Emergency Committee of Atomic Scientists says it plans to curtail its activities, but not dissolve, to avoid "taking a stand on political questions."

The committee, headed by Albert Einstein, sponsored and financed The Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, a monthly magazine; arranged numerous conferences and lectures, and carried out an educational campaign.

The important atomic issue now, the committee said in a full-page statement in the June-July bulletin, is the question of international control.

The statement said "any fruitful discussion of it will . . . involve taking a stand on political questions which, of necessity must be of a controversial nature. The Emergency Committee does not consider it its task to deal with controversial issues, and we have therefore decided to curtail our activities."

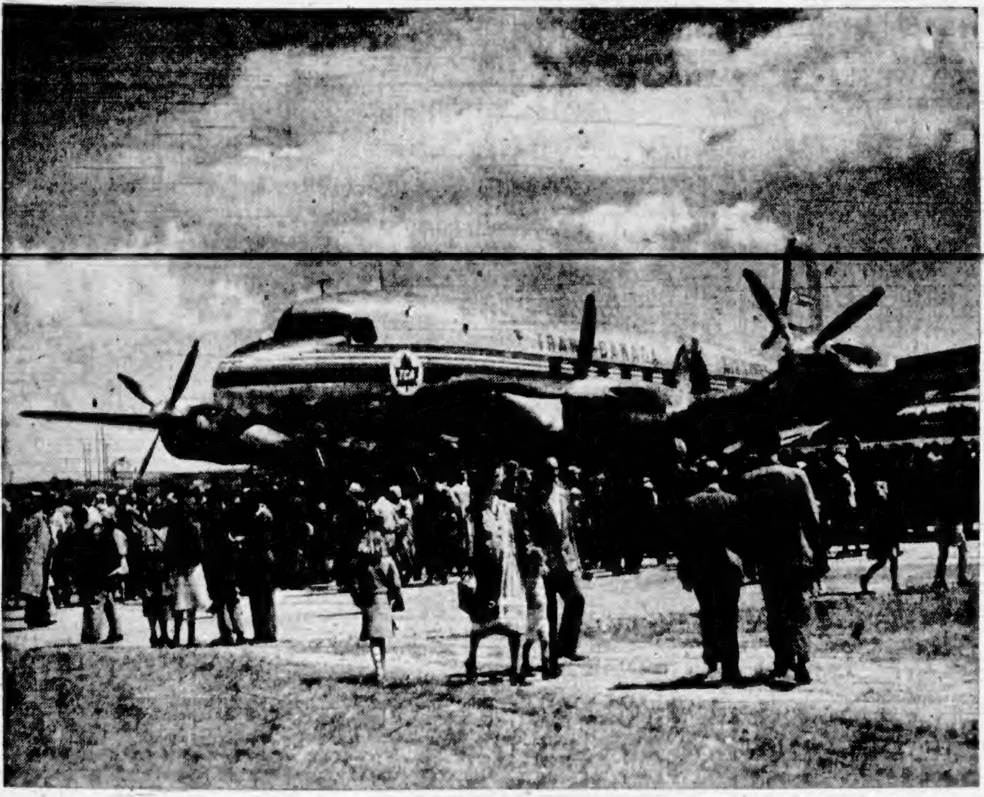
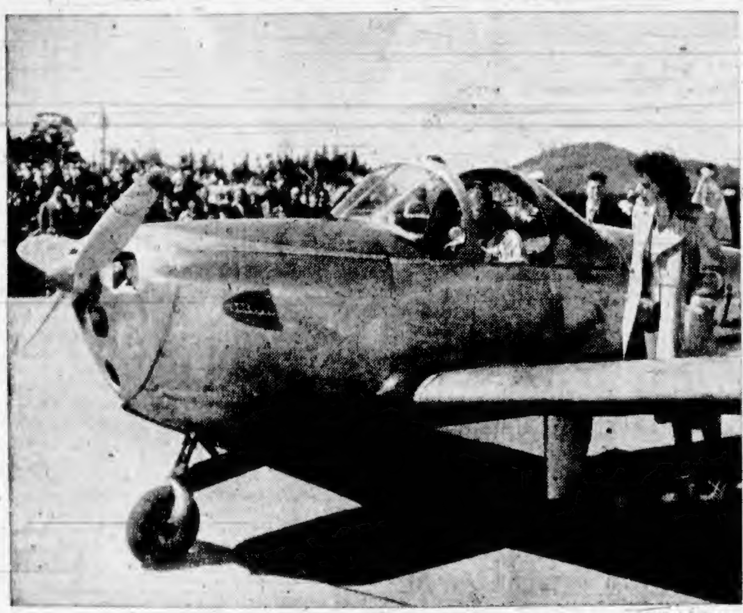
Estimated 10,000 See Big Air Show





—Colonist Photo.

Hundreds of people lined up to inspect new Canadian-built four-engined North Star seen at air show on Friday. Estimated 10,000 people saw show. Plane made its first official visit to tie in with air show program. Later, 40 lucky ticket holders were taken for half-hour flight over city in huge craft. Pictured below is Nellis E. Walker, of Battle Ground, Wash., paralyzed pilot who thrilled crowd in spectacular aerobatics display in his Ercoupe. His wife wishes him good luck prior to take-off.

Air Show Crowd of 10,000 Thrilled As Stunt Pilot Goes Through Paces

Dives, rolls and loops a few hundred feet from the ground were routine on Friday afternoon as "Swede" Ralston, 31-year-old stunt pilot from Hillsboro, Oregon, put on a display of low-level aerobatics in front of an estimated 10,000 spectators at the third annual air show at Patricia Bay airport.

Ralston's display, along with an exhibition of parachute jumping by other members of the show highlighted the two separate two-hour performances, sponsored by the Victoria Flying Club and the Victoria Kinsmen Club.

The American pilot used more than 70 gallons of gas as he staged his thrilling acts. The first two were flown in an A.T.-6—the American equivalent of a Harvard—and the other in a little Piper Cub.

Ralston and his protege, Dick Martin, teamed up in formation aerobatics that at times brought them down to within a whisker of the runway. Later Ralston performed in a solo display of masterful low-leven flying that had the crowd gasping.

He had them laughing, however, when he landed the heavy A.T.-6 and jumped into the tiny Piper Cub and gave an exhibition of "how not to fly". He did things with the plane that were considered impossible by many of the spectators.

JUMPERS STEAL SHOW

For "down-to-earth" thrills the parachute jumpers stole the show. William Bushman, of Pasadena, Calif., bailed out of a plane at 5,000 feet and immediately opened his 'chute. It collapsed and he plummetted earthwards to the horror of the crowd.

It was all part of the show, it turned out, as the defective silk was released and Bushman opened a second parachute after falling another 500 feet.

Two other jumpers, "Pop" Whittier and "Shorty" Stark, jumped simultaneously from a plane in a "race" to the ground.

Both men delayed pulling their ripcords for fully 1,000 feet in order to win the "race." Whittier landed a few seconds ahead of his rival.

Meanwhile, earlier in the show a huge Pan-American Boeing Stratocruiser roared down the runway but did not land.

Another popular attraction was the four-engined North Star that was on a static display. Hundreds of people were conducted through the plane by the crew and later 40 lucky ticket holders were treated to a half-hour ride around the city.

Attracting a good deal of interest was an R.C.A.F. air-sea rescue Lancaster parked near the control tower. On display in front of the aircraft were various types of rescue equipment for crews in distress on the seas or on high mountains.

June Cool, Brighter In Victoria

Victoria had more sunshine, a lower mean temperature and less rain than is normal for June according to the weatherman.

He says the mean temperature was 56 degrees, which is one degree below average.

The maximum for the month was 75 degrees which was reached on the fifth. Minimum was 44 degrees and the minimum, "on the grass," 36 degrees, both registered on the eleventh.

Rain for the month totaled .68 inches which, according to weather office records, is .20 inches below average. Total for the year is 11.05 inches, which is 1.47 inches below average.

The warmest section of the weatherman's report showed this city basked in the sun for a total of 315 hours, 36 hours above average.

NO SCHOOL ZONES!

City motorists can forget about slowing down to 15 miles an hour for school zones.

With school out until September, school zones are not effective, but city police warn drivers not to go "hog-wild" because the 30-mile-an-hour limit will be strictly enforced as usual.

They request drivers to exercise caution in driving near playgrounds throughout the Summer because of the large numbers of youngsters who will be frequenting all city playlots.

Council-Manager System Worth Study and Trial

NO city can develop from 40,000 to 80,000 population in the space of ten years and not have acute growing ains. Victoria has them badly in its unicipal administration. While amalgamation has been pointed out as the logical nswer, and one day it will of necessity ome, the three outlying municipalities annot alone be blamed for their unwillingness to unite while the city's own affairs emain in such a bewilderingly unsolved tate. The arena is only one example. The bsolete yard-a-day method of remaking he roads is another. The same can be said f unbuilt sewers and needed waterworks, Point Ellice Bridge and several millions of lollars worth of other unfinished business. Assume that no one individual is to blame here is still enough wrong with the present system of municipal administration to condemn it on the basis of its own results.

It was in relief from just this state of affairs that 35 cities in Canada and 800 in the United States have turned since 1913 to the council-manager system, wherein a city council remains the policy-making body and the city manager is the chief administrative official to carry out that policy. Lethbridge, Westmount, Verdun, St. John, Woodstock, Niagara Falls and a congregation of towns in Quebec have long since adopted the council-manager system, and they are staying with it. Cincinnati and Dayton, Ohio, with 455,000 and 210,000 people respectively, long have had city managers, as have hundreds of large and smaller cities in the United States. Reversions to council governance have been rare.

To bring out the facts of the case by presenting the council-manager plan as it is in full operation now in nearly 900 cities across this continent, The Daily Colonist is commencing today the publication of a series of special articles showing the main features of that plan, the ineffectiveness of the council-is-boss system which obviously has been outgrown, and some suggestions as to how a remedy can be applied if that is the wish of the ratepayers of Victoria. Both pro and con, the council-manager system is thoroughly worth study on its own merits. It seems to work.

Shortage of Nurses Poses Serious Problem

IN recent discussions of hospital problems the emphasis has been almost entirely on finance and the availability of beds. Most programs of expansion have been directed at the building of new hospitals and enlargement of existing institutions, with too little thought as to how they are to be staffed.

Latterly, however, it has been brought forcibly to public attention in Victoria that hospital beds are of small use to the sick if there are not enough nurses to attend them. A short time ago an increasing shortage of nurses compelled the Royal Jubilee Hospital to close another of its wards, with the result that of 500 beds in the hospital 45 in three wards are denied to the public.

It is of little avail for the hospital authorities here to look elsewhere for nursing staff. The shortage is common to Canada and to all branches of nursing. A recent estimate places the shortage in hospitals alone at 8,200, with not enough nurses under training to meet current needs, let alone those of new and expanded hospitals.

The reasons are not hard to find. The training is exacting and rigidly disciplined; the work is hard and working conditions not always what they might be; and the pay in comparison with other occupations open to young women is low. With employment at a high level, therefore, it is easy to understand why it is difficult to attract girls to a profession offering little more than a sense of service to humanity.

Nevertheless if existing hospital facilities are to be maintained and of necessity widened, some solution of the problem must be found. As accommodation needs increase, hospitals can be built somehow; but women cannot be drafted into the nursing service, and the only hope seems to lie in making the profession more attractive.

Mr. St. Laurent Could Break Further With the Past

PRIME Minister St. Laurent did an unusual thing when he went to the country for the re-election of his government—he left 14 Senate seats unfilled. Customary procedure would have distributed these favors among party stalwarts lest it was too late to do so afterwards. He has the opportunity now to break further with precedent and make appointments to the Red Chamber on a broader scale than prime ministers of the past have seen fit to do.

No doubt there will be certain claimants who must be taken care of by elevation or fresh appointment to the Senate. Any reorganization of the Cabinet will probably necessitate acknowledgment of past services by the reward of a seat for life in the Upper House of Parliament. There are practicalities that would force even the most liberal-minded Prime Minister to bow to tradition in some degree. The tradition, however, is not one that reacts entirely to the benefit of the country at large.

While some able parliamentarians fill a useful niche in the Senate, some other Senators merely occupy seats and are never heard from. The system of appointment only by virtue of partisan political merit shuts out Canadians of worth unconnected with party politics. The Liberal majority is so large in the Senate as it stands now that Mr. St. Laurent could afford to make some exceptions to the hitherto general rule. It is in his power to make a start in changing the complexion of the Upper Chamber by more diversified representation. Canada would be the gainer if the Senate became the repository of the best minds in the country and not just an old man's home for tired politicians and their supporters.

MAKE BEACHES SAFE

Sir,—Parent-teacher associations of this area are very pleased that, at last, the City Fathers are going to clean up the pollution of Fairfield and Gonzales beaches.

The parents in this district have long been aware of this deplorable condition, and have prayed that no epidemic would stem from this source.

Victoria is blessed with much seafront, but very few sandy beaches, and it is a great pity that the few we have are unsafe. Hundreds of young children regularly frequent these beaches which are so easily accessible, and it is going to be difficult to keep them away this Summer.

The parent-teachers wish to thank The Victoria Daily Colonist on its present campaign, drawing attention to these existing conditions, and commend the City Council on its desire to rectify this situation. We sincerely hope that something will be done speedily, as Summer is now upon us.

ANNE SPEDDING,
Corresponding Secretary,
Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council.
700 Belton Avenue, Victoria, B.C.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS

Sir,—According to Alderman John Baxter, the local improvement plan is all wrong. To prove it he backs it up with a statement reported in your issue of June 22 demanding the work to be done under this plan should be paid for in cash; for if spread to pay it over a term of fifteen years it will cost double to carry it. In other words, if you are now stuck in the mud you should remain so unless you can plank down the cash, or wait another twenty years or so, as many have done before getting a sidewalk or pavement out of general revenue.

I suggest that Alderman Baxter's objections are out of order. Actually the cost of interest for fifteen years for each $100 expenditure under the local improvement plan based on 3½%, totals $30.32 and not double or $100.00 as stated. His latest great objection to a sidewalk on Richardson Street, at a cost of $300 on which interest for fifteen years cost $90.69, included in yearly instalments of $26.06 between all of the property owners facing the sidewalk, or in the case of only 26 lots at $1 each per year. The property owners don't object to the small cost of a dollar a year to get out of the mud.

GEO. BASKIN.
1609 Redfern Street, Victoria, B.C.

SOOKE PIONEERS

Sir,—May I be allowed to make a correction to your issue of June 26, pages 6 and 7, of the magazine section, re Sooke?

The centre view is taken from the highway, opposite Sooke Elementary School, although Saseenos, which is, of course, in Sooke, has equally lovely scenes.

The old Muir home, known then as "Burnside," was the home of Michael Muir. The home of Robert Muir was demolished, to make way for two modern homes, which were built for the elderly Mrs. Robert Muir by her devoted son, the late William Muir, and in which they both resided in turn, until comparatively recent years.

This letter is not written as a criticism, but only to have the facts correct, as they remain in our archives to be read by posterity.

(MRS.) FLORENCE A. ACREMAN.

Care-Charmer Sleep

Care-charmer Sleep, son of the sable Night,
Brother to Death, in silent darkness born,
Relieve my languish, and restore the light,
With dark forgetting of my cares return.
And let the day be time enough to mourn—
This shipwreck of my ill-adventur'd youth;
Let waking eyes suffice to wail their scorn,
Without the torment of the night's untruth.
Cease, dreams, the images of day-desires,
To model forth the passions of tomorrow;
Never let rising sun approve you liars,
To add more grief to aggravate my sorrow,
Still let me sleep, embracing clouds in vain;
And never wake to feel the day's disdain.

Thinking Aloud

". . . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

WHEN two nations live side by side in amity, exchange visits, speak the same language and have a dozen points of individual contact, you would think they should know one another pretty well.

If a survey conducted recently by Time International is any guide, they don't.

Ever since President Truman upset the pollsters, opinion surveys have been rather suspect, and the Time questionnaire sampled the views of only 1,000 scattered United States businessmen and 388 Vancouverites of the same ilk.

You may not consider this cross-section wide enough to be pertinent, but even so the results of the survey are interesting.

In general Canadian businessmen appear somewhat more familiar with the United States than vice versa, but there is a deal of vagueness on both sides.

Only half of the Americans polled picked the correct population of Canada out of half-a-dozen alternatives. On the other side of the ledger, 97 per cent of the Canadians knew that Texas is the largest state in the Union.

* * *

Every Vancouverite questioned had visited the U.S. at some time or another; 2 per cent of the Americans have never seen Canada. Half of the Americans haven't been across the line for a number of years, where all but 5 per cent of the Canadians are frequent travelers.

When they do travel the Americans come here mainly on pleasure, only one in eight being on business bent. Nearly a third of the Canadians cross the line with nothing more relaxing than business in mind.

American businessmen are not well up in Canadian politics. Eighteen per cent of them never had heard that Mackenzie King had retired. Seven per cent think Duplessis is this country's Prime Minister, 2 per cent plumped for Viscount Alexander and 62 per cent named Mr. St. Laurent correctly.

Vancouver men seem better informed. Four-fifths of them know that Dean Acheson is the U.S. Secretary of State, but 20 of the 388 believe General Marshall still directs American foreign policy.

When it comes to business matters, it might have been expected the answers would reflect a closer understanding than seems to be the case. More than 90 per cent of the Vancouver men were unaware that the U.S. buys more than half of Canada's exports. Conversely, 90 per cent of the Americans guessed correctly that the largest Canadian export to the United States in dollar value is newsprint.

Almost every Canadian, judged by this survey, knows that the President of the United States is elected every four years. Five per cent of Americans think Canada is still a colony of Great Britain.

* * *

On the average, Americans underestimate by $100,000,000 the amount spent annually by Canadian visitors to the United States. Matching this, one-fifth of Canadians underestimate the strength of U.S. investment in Canada, citing in error Great Britain as the principal investor.

On one point the American businessmen were surprisingly up to date. Four-fifths of them knew that Canada made a greater per capita financial contribution to the United Kingdom during and after the war than did the United States. It is doubtful if four-fifths of Canadian residents from coast to coast are aware of this.

Between Canada, the U.S.A., Britain and the Argentine the greatest mutual trading was done in 1948 by the U.S.A. and Canada, but only 60 per cent of the Americans queried realized that.

The survey contains other questions and answers but enough have been quoted here to indicate that an improvement in reciprocal knowledge would be helpful. For some reason the 1,000 American businessmen were asked 13 questions and the Vancouver businessmen only eight, thus tending to put the Americans in a poorer light than the Canadians since a substantial number fell by the wayside on nearly every question.

A similar survey among professional men, say, or store clerks, might show a vastly different result, although the chances are the discrepancies would be even more glaring.

There is no iron curtain screening the 49th Parallel, either.

James Bay Jottings . . .

By FRED McNEIL

NEVER before have Canadians so emphatically told their representatives to Parliament what they want. They were weary of the extremists of the left and suspicious of the Tories at the other end of the scale.

Most remarkable was the rejection of the C.C.F. in the face of blanket endorsement by the giant Canadian Congress of Labor. The first attempt to wield a large scale pressure organization—the political action committee—was a failure.

The evidence indicates that decision to support the C.C.F. was taken at the executive levels of the unions and was not by any means supported wholeheartedly by the rank and file. Individuals in the unions have been doing their own thinking, and their vote shows they were wary of granting the labor leaders power to call the tune in Government.

The voting reflected, too, acceptance of the principle that industries can better be run by industrialists than by Government bureaucrats, that labor gains most by efficient operation under trained management.

It was an expression of confidence by the people that the so-called "class struggle" between employer and employee can best be worked out around the bargaining table under fair Government laws. It was an affirmation of democratic principles, a faith that employee can educate employer and employer teach employee that the interests of both lie in the same direction.

The Conservatives, willy nilly, were associated in the public mind with the principle that business, freed of restriction, should be left to persue its own ends, that the individual should be left to make a fortune or starve according to his own resource and desire.

Canadians, it seems, were willing to sacrifice some of their freedoms to have protection from the giant industries upon whcih more men every day become dependent for their livelihood.

They were willing to surrender month by month a lot of their money to the state to obtain freedom from the fear of sickness in a cold world and from want in old age.

In a world overwhelmingly complex, they wanted to be assured of the shelter of society when the burden became too heavy to bear. For the rest they could look after themselves.

* * *

The Provincial Progressive Conservatives are scheduled to do a little soul-searching, at what has been announced by Party Leader Herbert Anscomb at a routine executive meeting in Vancouver, July 9. They have been going through a slow but steady decline since Coalition was first formed in 1940. They were outmanoeuvred under the Coalition formula for nominating candidates at the election just past, and as a result they have now only 14 members as against 24 for the Liberals.

* * *

The P.C.'s will be taking stock of their party's whole position, in an attempt to lay the groundwork for the expected return to straight two-party politics. There is no doubt, too, that Mr. Anscomb will be discussing with his followers what attitude the party is to take in the Liberal-dominated Coalition.

* * *

Unless the final official count changes the picture, Mrs. Dorothy Steeves, fiery C.C.F.-er, will be going to Ottawa. It was Mrs. Steeves who in 1939 kept the Provincial Legislature in an uproar for days when she attacked the British Empire and its motives in fighting the war against Hitler. Bruce Hutchinson wrote, at the time, that she "spoke with the innocent look of a pixie and the sting of a hornet." Later she lost her only son in the war.

Opportunity and the Caged Ape

(From Industry)

THE most popular word in the political arena today is "security." Conspicuous by its absence in the battle of the hustings is the word "opportunity."

Years ago, Canada was called the "Land of Opportunity." Pioneering Britons and hopeful Europeans boarded the westbound boats at Liverpool and Cherbourg and Rotterdam with their thoughts on a common mental target—improving their and their children's lot in this new and untapped country. And not so long ago, Canada was still the promised land for many a Dutchman and Belgian and German when he talked to Canadian soldiers at war's end and discussed the chances of repairing his fortunes in a free country spared the ravages of war and the suffocating stricture of the numerous "isms."

Freedom, opportunity, hope and faith in a richly endowed land should be the selling points of the men who aspire to guide Canada in the next few years of this amazing technological age, not merely security and benefits.

Security is a wonderful thing, but not if it is bought at the price of vanished incentive and lost freedom, not to mention the steadily increasing taxation to pay for the alleged benefits. Genuine security for Canadians can be obtained if the word "opportunity" is resurrected from the list of obsolete words by our national leaders. Security can become a reality if it is paid for not merely out of additional imposts but out of multiplied national wealth and increased production of goods and services.

Security without opportunity in a country like Canada, which should be considered a barely-trodden hunting ground for the new pioneer and not an exhausted tract of badland, will drag us down to the level of those countries where enervating security measures have robbed the people of all moral and spiritual fortitude and tied them inexorably to the apron strings of the state.

Except that he pays a righ rate of tax for the privilege of security, the welfare state citizen is much like an ape behind bars at the zoo. The ape has security but he has lost his freedom.

Victoria in Beard and Crinoline

From Files of The Daily British Colonist for July, 1862

By G. E. MORTIMORE

THERE was a surplus of spinsters in England and a shortage of wives in the Pacific Coast colonies. The answer to both problems was easy enough: ship the ladies west.

But The Daily British Colonist warned that they would have to be the right kind of ladies. Lily-handed drones and schoolmarms might as well stay at home, Editor Amor De Cosmos wrote bluntly.

To earn their citizenship and the price of their marriage licences, the immigrants would have to slave over a hot stove most of the day and look beautiful in their spare time.

"The English papers tell us that there is a college for the purpose of promoting the emigration of educated women; and it appears that a lady named Miss Rye . . . is the head mistress . . .

"Miss Rye, or some other lady, is about to favor us with a large supply of eligible females, who will possess in addition to all other lady-like accomplishments, the peculiar attractions of the 'Blue-Stocking.'

"We fear that merely educated females will find that colonial life has its thorns as well as its roses . . . The 'comparatively leisurely life of a British colonist' is a sight which only exists in the brain of English novel-readers. . . .

"If an educated woman is one who requires a lady's maid to wait upon her, who is too proud to answer the door-bell, and is far above performing her ordinary household work which falls to the lot of a housemaid at home, she will look in vain for a happy home in Vancouver Island, British Columbia, or any other colony."

There were enough schools already, and only a few rich families could employ governesses. Frail intellectuals would probably end up as scullery-maids.

"The women we want in this and other colonies are women prepared to rough it as well as ourselves, women who, while acting as domestic servants, the class we particularly lack, will possess all the fair graces of womanhood and the virtues which will make them an ornament to their sex, at once model servants as well as model wives."

Outstanding Communist, Bulgaria's Dimitrov Dies

SOFIA, Bulgaria, July 2 (AP). — The death of Premier Georgi Dimitrov, internationally-known revolutionary leader, was mourned tonight by Communists the world over.

The Bulgarian Communist party's Central Committee announced tonight the death in a sanatorium near Moscow, where Dimitrov had [illegible] and liver ailments since April. He was 67.

The Kremlin itself set the pace in expressing grief at the death. The body was removed from the sanatorium to lie in state in Moscow's Hall of Columns in the House of Union. A guard of honor was placed over the bier.

The Moscow radio, in a broadcast heard in London, said Prime Minister Stalin was a member of the honor guard. Memorial services in factories, schools and collective farms, were being held throughout the Soviet Union.

Dimitrov had been Premier since November 22, 1946.

His death ended the action-packed career of a man who was reputed to have been the most influential Communist outside the borders of the Soviet Union.

He was a close and trusted friend of Stalin for 30 years. Like Stalin, he had clung to the Communist line since the hectic days of the Rus- [illegible]

WON "FAME" IN '33

The swarthy Dimitrov, with bushy eyebrows and a heavy black mustache, was exiled from Bulgaria for 22 years because of his early Communist activities. He remained an obscure figure until 1933 when the Hitler clique in Germany accused him of engineering the Reichstag fire conspiracy. From then on he was known to the world.

Dimitrov, refusing an attorney, defended himself and so outfoxed the Nazi judges that he won acquittal. After the trial Dimitrov went to Russia where he became general secretary of the Comintern, the Communist international organization from 1935 until it was formally disbanded in 1943.

In March, 1945, with the war over, Dimitrov surrendered his Russian citizenship and membership in the Soviet Parliament and returned to his native Bulgaria. He soon was made Premier. His regime was described by his enemies as "the iron broom."

Alberta Oil News

By C.O. NICKLE

Special to The Colonist

Scores of millions of American dollars have poured into Canada's West, and are continuing to pour in for exploration and development of oil and gas resources of the Western Provinces. Before Leduc and subsequent major oil discoveries on the Alberta Plains, only a few American oil firms worked alongside Canadian companies in the striving for oil in the West. Since the Leduc strike, and particularly in recent months, the entry of American firms has grown to flood proportions.

British oil firms, handicapped by the problem of getting dollars for pounds, are represented in Western Canada only by the huge Royal Dutch Shell group, through Shell Oil Company of Canada, which is exploring in Alberta. Several other British oil concerns have been keeping tab on Canadian oil, but exchange restrictions have so far kept them out of the play.

MORE EXPECTED

In Alberta, where over 95 per cent of current Western oil spendings are concentrated, some 27 major and independent American oil concerns are currently active. More are expected to come in. In Saskatchewan, where a vast land play has been under way in recent weeks, preliminary to a long-range and perhaps large scale exploration program, some 15 American oil concerns have taken commitments on Crown lands. Several other American groups have taken up freehold oil rights in Saskatchewan.

In Southwest Manitoba, one large American firm — the California-Standard Company—has been conducting geophysical work on Crown lands for more than two years. Several others have taken up freehold rights, including Jersey-Standard (through Imperial), and Superior of California. In Northwest British Columbia, one large American company—Phillips Petroleum Company—is in early stages of geological and geophysical examination of Crown lands along the Alaska Highway. Sunray Oil Company is associated with Canadians in gas exploration in the Peace River bloc of British Columbia.

LEADING OPERATOR

In Alberta exploration and development, Standard Oil (New Jersey) is the leading operator, through its Canadian king-sized subsidiary, Imperial Oil Limited. Sparked by Imperial's Leduc, Woodbend, Redwater and Golden Spike discoveries —Jersey-Standard's Canadian unit is spending $50,000,000 this year alone.

Other American multi-million dollar spenders in Alberta include: Amerada Petroleum Corporation; Continental Oil Company (through Hudson's Bay Oil & Gas Company); Gulf Oil Corporation (through Canadian Gulf Oil Company); Socony-Vacuum Oil Company; Standard Oil of California (represented by the California-Standard Company); Standard Oil of Indiana (represented by Stanolind Oil & Gas Company), and the Texas Company (represented by Texaco Exploration Company and McColl-Frontenac Oil Company).

A multi-million dollar program is also being undertaken by the team of Barnsdall Oil Company, Honolulu Oil Corporation and Seaboard Oil Corporation; with the Los Nietos Company a fourth partner in some important phases of the program.

Other big American spenders in Alberta include the Phillips Petroleum Company-Husky Refining Company team; Pacific Western Oil Company; Skelly Oil Company; Superior Oil Company (represented by Rio Bravo Oil Company); Sun Oil Company; Sunray Oil Company; Tidewater Associated Oil Company, and Union Oil Company of California.

NEWCOMERS

Newcomer American firms to Alberta, at early stages of their programs, include: Amcan Petroleum Corporation (unit of the O'Shaughnessy interests of Kansas); Ohio Oil Company; Pike Drilling Company; Sinclair Oil & Gas Company; Pure Oil Company, and Woodley Petroleum Company (through Western Prairie Exploration Company).

This list of American firms in Alberta includes only those engaged in exploration and development on their own behalf. It does not include a lengthy list of American drilling and geophysical contractors, working for Canadian and American firms in Alberta.

In Saskatchewan there are now three main groups of American companies which have taken on commitments to explore Government lands in the southern third of that province. One group, headed by Tidewater Associated Oil Company, includes Atlantic Refining Company; Barnsdall Oil Company; Columbia Carbon Company; Honolulu Oil Corporation, and Seaboard Oil Corporation.

Another Saskatchewan group, headed by Sohio Petroleum Company (unit of Standard Oil of Ohio), includes the Chicago Corporation; Midstate Petroleum Company; Texas Gulf Producing Company; Republic Natural Gas Company, and Union Sulphur Company.

The third main group consists of Husky Refining Company and Phillips Petroleum Company. Woodley Petroleum Company (through its Western Prairie Exploration) has started the fourth American-backed preliminary exploration of Saskatchewan Crown lands.

American interests in Saskatchewan on freehold rights include: Jersey-Standard (represented by Imperial Oil); California-Standard; Sun Oil Company; Superior Oil Company (through Rio Bravo); Sunray Oil Company; Pacific-Western, and probably others.

More Mennonites Leave Canada for Paraguay

—Central Press Canadian.

En route to begin new life in Paraguay are Peter A. Buhler, his wife and 12 children and grandchildren. They are Mennonites from Carrot River, Sask., who are going 7,000 miles south "for religious and economic reasons." Many Mennonites who went to Paraguay from Canada last year died from disease. Others returned. But some remain in spite of hard living conditions.

Alberta Crops Not Threatened By New Rust

CALGARY, July 2 (CP).—There is practically no danger of the new type of rust—15-B—attacking crops in Alberta, Dr. Marshall Grant, plant pathologist at the Lethbridge Experimental Station, says.

He said press reports had given rise to a "scare" that the newly-discovered stem fungus was a potential threat to the whole wheat industry of Canada and the United States. He said such fears were unfounded. The only instance of the new rust had been in Manitoba.

SCIENTISTS PREPARED

However, he added, cerealists are right on their toes in the case of any eventualities. Scientists of the Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology and the Dominion Laboratory of Cereal Breeding are prepared to combat the spread of the fungus should there be an increase of the disease.

Dr. Grant said this would be accomplished by cross-breeding.

He also said rust had never been much of a factor to contend with in Alberta.

Frontier Days Reborn At Macleod Celebration

MACLEOD, Alta., July 2 (CP).—Days of the wild and wooly West sprang out of the past here as thousands of Canadians and Americans, Indians as well as white men, joined in Macleod's three-day 75th anniversary celebration this week.

Coming from throughout Southern Alberta, Southeastern British Columbia and Northern Montana to pay homage to the Northwest Mounted Police who founded Fort Macleod in 1874, and to the pioneer settlers who played a major role in the development of this area, visitors jammed the rejoicing towns and streets, and once more made it look like a frontier settlement.

SEVERAL FROM EAST

Former Mounties and early-day residents of Macleod were gathered here from throughout Canada for the celebration, several coming from the Maritimes and Quebec and large numbers from Ontario. Many had their first look at Macleod in more than half a century and could hardly see the true modern Macleod through all the pageantry and revival of the frontier days.

From early Thursday morning until tonight this community relived the exciting days of its existence as a bristling police garrison, a headquarters for traders, Indians and ranchers.

RADIO INTERFERENCE

CEDAR SPRINGS, Ont. (CP). — Two amateur radio operators found the interference too heavy when they lifted their radio antenna with a hydrogen balloon. A low-flying aircraft took a low pass at the balloon, shattered it and cut the antenna.

Bears Attack Alberta Herds

PINCHER CREEK, Alta., July 2 (CP).—Bears again are on the rampage among the cattle on the Twin Butte forest reserve south of this southern Alberta town.

Hungry after the long Winter, the bruins killed three young calves the first day herds were taken to Summer range. They are believed to be a pair of grizzlies working together and an old bear working alone.

Bounties of $50 have been placed on the bears and they probably will be raised to $100 for each killer that is caught.

Settler Famed For Writings

EDMONTON, July 2 (CP).—It was at the turn of the century that a young student from Dijon, France, decided to seek fame and fortune in Western Canada.

That same student, Georges Bugnet, now a silver-haired, upright man of 70, has found no fortune during the passing years, but he has achieved fame.

For Bugnet, the first settler in Rich Valley in the Peace River district, who thought when he came to Canada that everyone made a fortune in five years, has become known as one of the best French authors in this country.

His books, mostly novels, were written between 1919 and 1936 and are recognized as a valuable contribution to Western Canadian literature.

Bugnet could be termed a jack-of-all-trades. Not only did he build his own homestead near Lake Majeau, he also delivered three of his ten children himself.

It was during the "big" Winter of 1919 that his first book, "Le Lys de Sang," was written. "Nipsya," a novel of the 1885 rebellion, was published five years later and has since been translated into English. His other published works, which include "La Foret," have been in both prose and verse.

Widespread Rainfall Came Too Late To Benefit Some Prairie Farmers

WINNIPEG, July 2 (CP). — Heavy widespread showers during the last two weeks improved crop conditions in sections of the Prairies, but, for some farmers the rains came too late.

Crop prospects in the southwestern and south-central areas of Saskatchewan, where recent rains were too late to benefit the greater portions of crops, are reported as "poor" by the Provincial Department of Agriculture.

In other parts of the province, however, the recent rains maintained and improved the general crop conditions.

WEEDS PROLIFIC

Prolific weed growth is reported through Saskatchewan and extensive spraying and dusting operations are continuing. The wheat pool reports that grasshopper control measures are meeting with success, but a heavy infestation in the central crop district is spreading into the west-central and the south-central areas. Losses are being held to a minimum.

Manitoba is the lone Prairie province reporting a good overall crop outlook.

BELOW AVERAGE

A. M. Wilson, Alberta field crops commissioner, showed little sign of optimism about good soaking rains which fell on the province Wednesday and Thursday.

He said that he doesn't think it possible for Alberta farmers to get up-to-the-average crop output this year.

The latest rain brought .82 inch of precipitation to the Calgary district where crops are improving after early drought conditions.

'HOPPERS CHECKED

Coronation, Edmonton, Grande Prairie and Lethbridge received under .17, while one of the farthest north farming communities, Lac la Biche, about 150 miles northeast of Edmonton, received the heaviest precipitation, 1.02 inches.

All three provinces report that the 'hopper menace is being held in check and that little damage by the pest has been reported.

Unlike Alberta and Saskatchewan, Manitoba has not been stricken with any serious drought conditions this year.

Many of the early seeded crops are already heading freely in Manitoba, and in the Red River Valley heads on some barley stands are advancing. Haying on alfalfa and other tame hays has already started.

In Alberta, the wheat crop averages 18 bushels per acre; oats 22, and barley about 24 bushels per acre.

Mr. Wilson said that there will be "a very short crop from Innisfail, 68 miles north of Calgary, through to Edmonton and Athabasca, a total distance of 190 miles, and points east of that line to the Saskatchewan border."

Bathing Beach Now Memorial

OTTAWA, July 2 (CP).—Following the drowning near here of 17-year-old Allen Cameron, boys and girls of suburban Nepean Township formed the J.A.C. Club to begin a program of civic improvements for teen-agers in the area. They took the club's name from the initials of their dead friend.

First step in their program was the improvement of swimming conditions at Westboro Beach on the Ottawa River. The beach and water had to be cleared of broken glass and stones and the youths planned dressing-rooms and sand beaches.

They got the support of local service clubs and also enlisted residents, the Nepean Township Council and Federal District Commission.

NOISY POLICE

WINNIPEG (CP).—The voice of the law has been strengthened by a new "loud-hailer" which will be used by the R.C.M.P. to curb speeding on Manitoba highways. The device is simply a loudspeaker attachment on police cars, but its voice carries 1,000 yards.

New Zealand Government In Gas Trade

AUCKLAND, N.Z., July 2 (CP). — The Labor Government has entered the gasoline trade as its latest venture in State trading.

A company, the British Petroleum Company of New Zealand, Ltd., was formed last year under an arrangement between the Government and the Anglo-Iranian Company. The Government holds 51 per cent of the shares.

PUMPS INSTALLED

The company's pumps have now been installed at service stations throughout the country and storage tanks have been erected. Motorists have the choice of the Government-controlled company's gasoline or private firms' supplies at most service stations. There is no price war as gasoline prices are stanrardized by the price tribunal.

There have been complaints by private concerns, however, that aviation fuel contracts have been allocated by the Government to the British Petroleum Company without reference to competitive tenders by other companies, and that some service stations have been given licences for Government pumps while being refused licences for extra pumps to sell private firms' gasoline.

TO RATION WHALES

LONDON (CP).—Decision to regulate more strictly whale fishing throughout the world was made at the meeting of the International Whaling Commission here. Reports during the last three years said that the numbers of whales in many places are diminishing.

BUSY ISLAND

Britain's present labor force totals more than 20,000,000 persons.

Water Rationed For London Gardens

LONDON, July 2 (AP).—Londoners got orders today to quit soaking their gardens and washing their cars. The reason: Britain is having its driest weather in nearly 30 years.

The Metropolitan Water Board said it could allow, "for the present," use of hoses to sprinkle gardens and wash cars two days a week.

London has gone 19 days without rain.

Plan to Spend $8,000,000 On U.K. Palace

LONDON, July 2 (CP).—Britain's "Palace of Culture," to be built on the south bank of the Thames, is expected to cost nearly £2,000,000 ($8,000,000).

The building is planned in two stages. The greater part, including a mammoth concert halls, is to be ready in time for the Festival of Britain in May, 1951.

In its report the general purposes committee of the London County Council says the palace will have:

A 3,450-seat main hall and a smaller hall for chamber music, amateur and school theatricals; a reception foyer for dinners and dances; public restaurants opening on a terrace and gardens; a two-story art gallery and two large rooms suitable for any purpose.

"The Londoner out for a stroll along the terrace will be able to enjoy a service of meals and refreshments in the open air," a committee spokesman said.

Buildings and terraces have been designed as a whole and, as the concert hall develops, surrounding ground levels will be built up and planted with trees, grass lawns and flowers.

NEW DELHI (CP). — The world-famed whispering gallery in the Gol Gumbas monument at Bijapur is being repaired by the Indian Government. The monument was built in 1656 by Sultan Mohamed Adil Shah. The gallery, 11 feet wide, hangs 109 feet above the inside floor.

PROBE WOOL SALES

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP). — The Government is being urged to prevent possible resale of New Zealand wool sent to European firms. Some United States buyers have been absent from recent sales and wool interests have charged that some American firms are buying New Zealand wool from Europe at a discount.

INDIANS AIR-MINDED

MAIDSTONE, England (CP).—Prisoners in a social study class at the Maidstone jail debated: "The rights of property and nationalization."

Tired Civil Servant "Forgets" Jonathan Swift Died in 1745

LONDON, July 2 (CP). — A civil servant who didn't know Jonathan Swift died 200 years ago is still at his desk in the Government's Central Office of Information.

Whitehall officials said he wasn't fired because he had been working hard and thought his lapse was "just one of those blackouts that happen to everybody sometimes."

The matter was raised in the House of Commons by Brendan Bracken, wartime Minister of Information. He said the civil servant wrote a letter to a London publishing firm which would take prominent rank in any "Anthology of Futility."

TRANSLATION RIGHTS

The letter asked whether translation rights were available for "'Gulliver's Travels,' by J. Swift."

(Swift, Irish-born satirist, died in 1745.)

Bracken said it was a "scandal" that the Government should employ somebody to ask about the possibility of producing the work of an author who died 200 years ago. He added:

"As honorable members know, this book was a literary earthquake in the 18th century. Voltaire, then an exile in England, made it popular reading all over the continent."

He said it is obvious that even the film rights to "Gulliver's Travels" are available now.

BLACK SPOT

In an earlier exchange, Mr. Bracken referred to Morrison as the "black spot deliverer" to Prime Ministers. This was a reference to Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island," in which delivery of a "black spot" meant sudden death.

In his general criticism of the Central Office of Information, Bracken contended such an office is not necessary in peacetime. He said the Government spends more than £16,000,000 ($64,000,000) annually on publicity, and much of the Central Office's work was amateurish.

It produced publications which were a sort of "glossy parish magazine" and its films were pretty poor stuff. It also broadcast or telegraphed a daily news service to many parts of the world. This was an insult to Dominion and other foreign correspondents in London, who sent home an accurate picture of events in the United Kingdom.

In his reply, Morrison said that the Government is running the C.O.I. more economically and with less manpower than Bracken did during the war.

Former Chorister New Archbishop

LLANDRINDOD WELLS, Wales, July 2 (CP).—Rt. Rev. John Morgan, a Welsh-speaking Welshman who once sang in the choir in Llandaff Cathedral where he later became bishop, is the new Archbishop of Wales.

He was elected by the six Diocesan bishops of Wales and representatives of clergy and laity to succeed Most Rev. D. L. Prosser, who resigned.

Dr. Morgan, 63, has been Bishop of Llandaff for ten years and will be enthroned as archbishop in bomb-wrecked Llandaff Cathedral during the late Summer.

MAN WITH IDEAS

TONBRIDGE, Kent, England (CP)—Charles Andrews, 50, railroad ticket inspector, has made 1,000 suggestions for improving the local service in the last 30 years. They have earned him £250 ($1,000).

B.B.C. Bans Radio Catcalls

LONDON, July 2 (CP).—Catcalls, whistles and cheers are out at B.B.C. radio shows.

Audience participation is welcomed, but only to a point, says a leaflet handed the public as they enter the studio to watch a program on the air.

"We welcome your laughter at any time," it says. "We hope for your applause, but in appropriate places only."

Officials said they hope to strike a happy medium between noise that distracts home listeners and silence which artists complain has a deadening effect on their performance.

Oceanography Study Planned by U.B.C.

Marine News

Plans for the establishment of an institute of oceanography within the University of British Columbia are due for immediate consideration, it was reported yesterday by officials of U.B.C.

If plans are ratified the university will work in close harmony with the Dominion Fisheries Research Board, the National Defence Research Board and other organizations in an intensive study of the ocean.

Commenting on the proposed institute, University President N. A. M. MacKenzie said: "We are glad that it appears possible to begin this work in oceanography. The study of ocean currents and the chemical, physical and biological aspects of large ocean areas has come to play an increasingly vital role in the welfare of this nation in peace as well as in war."

TO TRAIN STUDENTS

The university will start immediately to train graduate students in the specialized field of oceanography. Initial courses in this field of study will get under way this Autumn.

Dr. W. A. Clemens, head of the U.B.C. department of zoology has stressed the importance of ocean studies to the welfare of the country. There is a great deal yet to be learned about the habits of the fish on this coast, he said. "One of our most important commercial fish is the pilchard. We want to find out why this species was so abundant in some years and so scarce in others." He mentioned herring as another fish of which comparatively little is known.

New Ferry Has Trials

The combination automobile-passenger ferry Delta Princess, built at Yarrows Ltd. for the Provincial Department of Public Works for service between Ladner and Woodward Landing on the Fraser River, last week completed trial runs in the Esquimalt area.

Built at a cost of approximately $260,000, the vessel was launched at the local shipyard May 12. Her keel had been laid in the middle of February.

The 147-foot ship is powered by two Vivien engines and has two propellers and a rudder at each end. She has neither a stern or a bow, and is literally a "two-way ship."

Steel decked, and one of the most modern of her kind, the Delta Princess will carry 30 cars and upwards of 200 passengers. A large public room is located on the upper deck. She has a beam of 44 feet and a draft of only six feet to allow for navigation in exceptionally shallow waters.

During final trials held yesterday morning the ferry demonstrated her extreme manoeuvreability as she headed out of Esquimalt harbor by making extreme turns and having her appear to "turn on a dime."

Officials of the shipyard said she would be delivered within a short time.

Appoint Chief Engineer

Capt. (E.) Arthur C. M. Davy, O.B.E., R.C.N., of Victoria, has been appointed engineer-in-chief at Naval Headquarters and deputy chief of Naval Technical Services, it was announced yesterday.

Captain Davy entered the Royal Canadian Navy as a naval cadet in August of 1917. Graduating in 1920, he served and trained for the next eight years in ships and establishments of the Royal Navy. Returning to Canada in 1928, he served as engineer officer of the destroyer H.M.C.S. Vancouver until May of 1931.

Promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Commander (E) in October, 1932, he held appointments at Naval Headquarters, in the destroyer H.M.C.S. Skeena, and in the R.C.N. Barracks, Halifax, until 1938, when he supervised the construction of the minesweepers Fundy, Nootka and Gaspe.

SERIES OF STAFF POSTS

Appointed to Naval Headquarters in November, 1939, he held a series of staff appointments there during the war years. For his services as director of shipbuilding, he received the Order of the British Empire. In 1946 he became superintendent of the dockyard at Esquimalt, a post which he held until November, 1948.

Captain Davy will complete a senior officers' staff course at the National Defence College, Kingston, Ont., on June 30. He takes up his new appointment August 1.

MORE FLIGHT SPACE

R. L. Williams, district traffic and sales manager for Trans-Canada Air Lines here, yesterday announced the addition of seven seats per flight on aircraft flying between Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle.

He explained that modifications to standard DC-3 aircraft have made possible the addition of extra seats with little sacrifice in comfort. Galley equipment from the cabin was removed to provide the additional space.

At the present time T.C.A. operates ten flights daily between Victoria and Vancouver and two each way each day between this city and Seattle.

BOOKINGS AVAILABLE

Travelers planning trips to Europe this season will now be able to obtain immediate bookings on all ships of the Cunard White Star fleet for late Summer or early Autumn sailings, according to a report from head offices of the shipping line.

In the Canadian service, it is reported immediate bookings will be available after the first week of July in the liner Aquitania, sailing between Halifax and Southampton, and in the ships Scythia and Samaria which sail from Quebec to London.

Many Canadian and American travelers are expected to avail themselves of this opportunity to visit Europe during the late Summer and Autumn months, after the peak of Summer travel has passed, and to enjoy uncrowded resorts, hotels and restaurants.

ENTER RACE

Four vessels of the Capital City Yacht Club will enter the International Power Boat Association's predicted log race from Olympia, Wash., to Nanaimo next Saturday. Finish time at Nanaimo has been set at 4 p.m.

J. W. Bostock, chairman of the C.C.Y.C. publicity committee, reports this event will call for the utmost in skill on behalf of the skippers of competing craft. Skippers of each vessel will be under the close observation of a member of the United States Coast Guard. No speed change or deviation from course is allowed during the entire race.

After leaving Olympia, there will be a continuous run of approximately 20 hours.

Members of the C.C.Y.C. and their vessels to enter the race are J. M. Porter, in Awaywego; Harold Henshall, in Ysidro; H. Greenslade in in Avon; and J. H. MaClain, in Deja.

BRINGS BIG CARGO

When the Cunard White Star cargo ship Arabia arrived at Montreal several days ago longshoremen turned to a heavy cargo.

Commanded by Capt. G. H. G. Morris, the Arabia brought a total of 5,165 tons of general cargo, one of the heaviest loads brought to Canada from Britain this season.

Major item aboard the ship was a cargo fo 250 English cars. In addition there was large shipments of woollens, carpets, candies, fine china, cutlery from Sheffield, leather goods, shimmering silks from Leeds and precision tools from Birmingham.

There was also window and plate glass, lawn mowers, motorcycles, toys and crochet needles . . . and for barbers of the Dominion, a quantity of the latest type of hair clippers

CLAM REGULATIONS

A. J. Whitmore, chief supervisor of fisheries for British Columbia, in a release yesterday, noted there was some confusion over the digging of clams on this coast, and explained that current regulations governing this phase of the fishery industry will remain effective until January 1 of next year.

In addition to more detailed rules, there is one overall regulation which applies to the size of butter clams throughout the entire coastline. Mr. Whitmore points out that it is against the law to dig clams that measure less than 2½ inches across (through) the longest diameter of the shell. In other species of clams, the diameter limit is 1½ inches.

The use of any mechanical digger apparatus or dredge for the taking of any species of clams is prohibited.

Trim, 30-Foot Cruiser Launched

Four and half years of spare time went into building of this trim 30-foot cruiser, launched in the Inner Harbor recently by G. M. Lane, of 522 Frances Avenue. Valpam, seen above as she was lowered into sea, was christened by Mrs. Lane. Vessel will undergo finish work at new fishermen's floats during next few weeks. It was built in owner's backyard, and is his first effort at boat building.

BACK IN SERVICE

With a new and powerful 152-horsepower eight-cylinder Gardiner engine, the ferry Brentwood is back in service between Brentwood and Mill Bay. The vessel was taken out of service last November, and since that time has been completely over-hauled and re-engined.

In addition, she now has two rebuilt terminals, a project handled by the Provincial Department of Public Works. The service has been in effect for the past 25 years, and today it is faster than ever before.

She will now make the run across Saanich Inlet in 21 minutes.

ARRIVES IN NEW YORK

Miss Gertrude Altree-Coley of 203 St. Charles Street, was among the 963 passengers who arrived at New York several days ago aboard the Holland America Line's vessel, Nieuw Amsterdam, which docked at the Eastern United States port after colliding with a small fishing vessel in dense fog about 20 miles southeast of Nantucket, Mass.

Commodore C. H. P. Coster, newly-appointed master of the large ship, reported there was no loss of life, and no one in the fishing boat was injured.

The luxury liner put a motor launch over the side and found the damaged 84-foot fishing craft. Reporting the accident to the American Coast Guard, the liner proceeded to New York after on hour's delay.

WINS PROMOTION

Chief Petty Officer Raymond B. A. Stenning, 32, of Victoria, has been promoted to the acting rank of warrant cookery officer, R.C.N., it is announced by Naval Headquarters.

Mr. Stenning joined the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve in June, 1940, as a cook (S). He served in the armed yacht H.M.C.S. Sans Peur until April, 1941, when he transferred to the permanent force. After a period of duty ashore in H.M.C.S. Naden, he again served afloat in the armed merchant-cruiser H.M.C.S. Prince Henry. In December of 1943 he joined the destroyer H.M.C.S. Athabaskan as a chief petty officer cook. When the Athabaskan was sunk off the French coast in April, 1944, Mr. Stenning became a prisoner of war.

On his release from prison camp in 1945, he returned to Canada to resume his naval career. He has since served in the destroyer H.M.C.S. Crescent and as an instructor in Naden.

Veteran 'Platter Pal' Looks Back To Early Days of Disc-Vending

MUSIC, DRAMA AND ART

By BARNETT McKINLEY

Mrs. Rae Case, veteran "platter pal," holds no grudge against Thomas Edison for inventing the gramophone.

Even though she has had some experiences in the record-selling game that would set a less stable character spinning like a turntable.

Actually Mrs. Case started in the business some time after Edison's "wonderful music machine" with its cylindrical records was on the way out.

But she remembers selling the old flat Edison records, the famous "unbreakables."

SELLING STUNT

She says that a great selling stunt of the time was to demonstrate the indestructibility of the thick platters by throwing them on the floor, jumping on them and otherwise acting in a very energetic manner indeed.

"I only managed to break one of those old records," she recalls, unhappily. "And that one I had to throw right across the room."

Another Edison advertising stunt was to have an artist singing along with a recording of her voice and then suddenly turn out the lights. The audience was supposed to be completely mystified as to whether the singer was in full voice or it was the recording alone that was responsible for the noise.

Nobody was ever really fooled, but it was great fun sitting in the dark.

MANY LOST IN FIRE

A lot of fine old-time records disappeared in the Arcade fire of 1922 in Victoria, the platter pal says.

In fact some 50,000 of them went up in a blaze so searing that firemen had difficulty getting even close to the fire.

"And then came the orthophonic," Mrs. Case says. "That was a sensation because it reproduced the sound of the letter 's' for the first time.

"So we played 'I Miss the Bliss My Swiss Miss Gives to Me' several hundred times a day to demonstrate the new development."

The new machine could also bring out the bass notes in richer style than was possible before, she remembers.

"And that led to the constant repetition of 'The Soldiers' Chorus' from Faust, so everybody could enjoy that oompah, oompah."

HIT BY DEPRESSION

During the depression years the gramophone and record business fell off badly. In fact it nearly vanished altogether in Canada, the story relates. But in 1937 it started a comeback when the combination radio-phonograph began to sell.

Since then the platter pals of the land have seen some of their busiest days and albums of recorded music have blossomed forth throughout the land.

The evolution of the booth where you listen to the record before deciding that you don't what it after all has kept pace with other developments in the field.

Record booths in the old days were entered from a separate door outside the store. The record clerk reached through a wicket and wound the machine after choosing your requested number from a long rack of unwrapped records.

Of course with everybody listening to "Swiss Miss" and "The Soldiers' Chorus" her task was not a difficult one.

Later electric motors were installed, and later still the operator became hardened enough to bring the listeners' booths right inside the store.

Nowadays they have rooms with loudspeakers attached to a baffle board in the ceiling. Mrs. Case denies that platter pals have also been equipped with baffle boards by General Electric in an effort to screen some of the stuff they have to listen to day and night, night and day.

DOESN'T HEAR IT

In fact she claims all the credit herself for the fact that she doesn't actually "hear" any of the music the customers play in the course of an afternoon.

And at night she relaxes by listening to some of her own treasured old records. If you turn the light out, she claims, it's just as though Edison was right in the room with you —inventing the gramophone all over again.

One of the platter pals' worst trials are the people who come in humming a little tune to themselves and ask her to get them the records featuring the tune.

"This is awkward when the customer is tone deaf," she says. "But we usually manage to solve the case."

ALL-TIME FAVORITES

Mrs. Case reports that all-time favorites among the recordings are "Deep Purple," "Stardust" and the "Waltz You Saved for Me." These items sell year after year, she says.

Among the classics its Chopin's "Polonaise," of course, that has set the record sales.

The platter pal sometimes get a laugh handed her by the customers. For instance the man who asked for Largo's Handel.

A lot of them ask for the alphabet song—"A"—You're Adorable."

But perhaps the favorite question heard by the veteran record seller is a 'teen-age special.

"Whadda ya got in the way of hot platters, pal?"

PAINTER HAS TROUBLES

Victoria painter Katherine McEwen told an Art Centre gathering recently, that she once had to call in the fire department to help finish a large fresco she was painting on the wall of a church in the United States.

"My helper and I worked for a whole year before we could get the scaffolding down and view the work as a whole," she said.

"Then we made the painful discovery that the dark timbers of the roof reflected on the gold in the painting so that it looked brown instead of a blaze of gilding."

"It was decided that special lights would have to be installed in the roof," she stated.

"That's where the fire department came in. Because all the scaffolding had been pulled down and there were no other ladders in town long enough to reach the roof."

The tops of the ladders had to be wrapped in rags to prevent scratching the walls, she recounted.

"It was a hot and worried looking bunch of firemen who finally got the job done and the ladders down again without disaster."

McVIE RE-ELECTED

James A. McVie was re-elected president of the Arion Male Voice Choir at the 57th annual meeting of the choir held here recently.

An honorary life membership was presented to Herbert Kent, conductor emeritus and choir historian. He is an original charter member of the choir and has been singing with the group since 1892.

Other officers elected were S. Murphy, vice-president; W. Brimblecombe, financial secretary; K. Cummings, recording secretary; Frederick Wright, treasurer; Tom Kelway, concert master; David Stewart, librarian; Alex Geddes, assistant librarian; H. A. Cox, auditor.

Frank Putman was again named conductor, with [illegible] as assistant.

The choir is reported to be considering the establishment of a Gertrude War Memorial Scholarship in memory of the former accompanist.

Two former conductors, Frank Sehl and Philip Hughes were special guests at the meeting.

Equipment Approved

Standard Oil's foam tower equipment on the Industrial Reserve plant has been given the approval of Victoria Fire Chief Robert T. Brindle.

Under the chief's supervision recently, and with two engine crews taking part, the equipment was given a practice test in combatting a possible storage tank fire. The drill involved the erection of the foam tower, feeding of foam, dismantling of the tower, washing and stowing away, and disconnecting and rolling up all hose lines. This took ony 20 minutes from the arrival of the trucks until the last line was rolled.

Standard Oil is the only oil company in Victoria with this particular type of foam equipment.

With nationally-known experts in all positions, the bidding proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
1 no trump	Pass	3 hearts	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

North thought for a long time before passing to three no-trump, but he finally decided that since he had already announced good heart support, and since South had nevertheless shown a disinclination to bid game at the major suit, three no-trump might be the easier contract. This was a questionable decision, but it was certainly justified by the result! Four hearts could not have been made, whereas South managed to bring home three no-trump.

West opened the diamond king and continued with the suit, declarer holding up his ace until the third round. (A shift by West would not have furthered his cause.) Now, since South would certainly have to lose at least one heart trick, and since he could not keep West off lead if that defender had the heart king, South led a low heart to the queen. East won and made the only safe return of a club. Dummy took this trick with the ace, and a low spade was now led toward the closed hand. East could not afford to put up the ace—that would have given South two natural spade tricks—and when he played low, South's queen of course held.

Now South ran three more club tricks—to East's acute embarrassment! Dummy was reduced to the K-8 of spades and the J-4 of hearts. East could not give up a heart without letting South run the suit, so he had to blank the spade ace. South promptly led his spade nine, ducked in dummy, and then could claim the contract.

Purchase of Island Property Of Wide Agricultural Interest

By ERITH M. SMITH

When members of the British peerage purchase property in Canada the news is often of purely "social" significance.

This is not, however, the case in the purchase of Swallowfield, fine Island estate between Duncan and Chemainus, by Rt. Hon. Lord Brocket.

In this instance, the news is of wide agricultural interest and apt to become more so with the passing of time.

ACTIVE AGRICULTURIST

Lord Brocket is an active, enthusiastic and practical agriculturist who has served as chairman of such organizations as the Hertfordshire Agricultural Society, the Central and Associated Chambers of Agriculture, and as president of the British Percheron Horse Society and the Clun Forest Sheep Society.

The breeding of purebred cattle and thoroughbred Percherons, however, is the primary concern of the Brocket estates in Britain. At Brocket Hall, Welwyn, Herts., and Bramshill Park, Basingstoke, Hampshire, Lord Brocket maintains a combined herd of Ayrshires which includes 100 pedigreed milking cows.

At Aldersend, Hereford, the family has what is reputed to be one of Britain's finest herds of the blocky, beef-yielding Herefords.

DEVELOPS NEW STRAIN

To the north, at Knoydart in Inverness-shire, Lord Brocket has been experimenting with a cross-bred cattle involving Hereford and Highland stock. To this strain he has given the name, "Hereland."

Something of this work was explained in an interview by Lord Brocket's eldest son, Hon. Ronald Nall-Cain, at present representing his father on Vancouver Island in completion of details for the purchase of Swallowfield — pictures of which will be found in today's magazine section.

Canadian cattlemen are thoroughly familiar with the practice of dehorning cattle — particularly raisers of beef cattle. This is done because of the costly damage caused by horns during shipment.

Dehorning is a common custom, too, in dairy herds—for obvious reasons. A bunt from a short-tempered milk cow is less painful when not preceded by a strong, sharp horn.

SEES ADVANTAGES

In pedigreed cattle, however, the practice is rare — and it is in this direction that Lord Brocket and his son have been experimenting on their British herds —with both Ayrshires and Herefords. While regulations forbid the registering of dehorned animals in the pedigree book, Lord Brocket is carrying on in the belief that the practice is sufficiently advantageous to spread on its own merit.

As a matter of fact, one breeder in South Africa has already placed an order for some of Lord Brocket's dehorned stock.

Plans for Swallowfield, Mr. Nall-Cain emphasized, are still indefinite. Eventually, he and his father hope to send out from Britain some foundation stock, but that must await improved shipping conditions.

Meanwhile Swallowfield will continue as the home of a good Hereford herd introduced by the former owner, J. J. E. Sloan of Capetown, South Africa. Mr. Sloan's brother, John, has been managing the property, and acting in the sale to Lord Brocket.

ON BRIEF VISIT

Mr. Nall-Cain is in Canada only for a few weeks on this visit — to complete arrangements for the purchase of Swallowfield and to see the Calgary Stampede.

While in Calgary he hopes to visit some of the cattle ranches in the nearby foothill country before returning to England, where he is studying with a view to increasing his knowledge of cattle and their ways and means.

He is interested, as well, in the performance of some of the Brocket animals at Britain's "Royal" Show, being held this year at Shrewsbury.

Entered in the "Royal" is Brocket Gregory, two-year-old Hereford bull which was judged junior champion at the recent Three-County Show at Worcester. Also entered are 12 of Lord Brocket's Percheron mares.

ALSO WIN FAME

Other individuals from Brocket herds which have won fame for the strain are Brocket Churchill, and Brocket Emphasis, former senior champion at the Three-County Show.

If shipping conditions improve, it is from this strain of cattle that Lord Brocket may draw foundation stock for a herd at Swallowfield.

Roll out to ⅝-inch thickness and shape with a floured 3-inch round cutter. Arrange biscuits, an inch apart, on ungreased pan. Bake in preheated oven 10 to 12 minutes.
Split hot shortcakes, spread with soft butter and fill and top generously with sweetened strawberries; serve with pouring cream or lightly sweetened and flavoured whipped cream.

England Said "In Bad Way" By Recently-Returned Visitor

Nigel A Tomlin, president and general manager of B.C. Cement Company Limited here, has returned from England in a gloomy frame of mind as far as conditions in the United Kingdom are concerned.

He said last night that England "was in a bad way."

"And conditions are going to get worse before they improve," he added.

He traced some part of the blame for existing conditions on the people of England themselves.

"The people in England are not working very hard," he stated. "They haven't got down to it.

"There will have to be some change in attitude if conditions are going to improve."

The general concensus is that the Labor Government will be re-elected, he reports.

"But the feeling is that they will fail to gain enough of a majority to enable them to bring their plans to completion."

TO MAKE REPORT

He said that he would be making a report on the London conference with B.C. Cement business associates, "in two weeks."

It was expected that something definite with regard to the company's giant Home Lake project for a new cement plant would develop from the London meeting.

Bulky, Bright Jewelry To Be Worn This Autumn

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, July 2 (INS) — Any resemblance between an oyster's pearls and those milady will wear next Fall will be a remote coincidence.

It will be a season of bulky, bright jewelry, and the dainty white pearl won't have a leg to stand on.

In the general [illegible] away from Victorian vanities, costume jewelry designers are making everything robust.

Pearls will be the size of 25-cent marbles.

They will be lipstick-red, paprika-pink, charcoal-grey, burnished-copper and putty-putty. Black pearls will be comparatively conservative and are expected to be favorites.

Strings of the over-sized pearls will be worn in quantity, with as many as three 30-inch strands wrapped round a single throat.

It will take a capable ear to handle the 49 earrings on which little seed pearls will dangle from one large, round one. Some designers will bow to the smaller woman with the fragile neck . . . she will get a "soft-look" necklace in which the wild-hued pearls are strung together with small, unobtrusive beads.

Another husky trend is toward heavy tailored gold jewelry.

For 59 cents and up, there will be gold chokers, collars, watchchains, shoe buttons and spectacle rims. Designers say that all gold gadgets are the safe, decorative foil for tweeds, because tweeds usually are flecked with goldish tints.

Bangle bracelets will be revived, to be worn in groups of five or six per wrist. The new bangles are usually three-eighths of an inch wide.

Heavy link chains in gold will be worn in a loop that circles the neck and reaches just below the second button on a tailored shirtwaist dress.

A fad that was popular in pearls two years ago—"bib" necklaces—will reappear this Fall but in gold links. Tiny interlocking links will be strung together in the shape of a bib that hugs the throat and half covers the chest.

Interlocked links to match will be made into very narrow belts at the waist.

JEWELED HEADGEAR

Combinations of gold and pearls will be good fashion next season, if they're piled on abundantly. These are for daytime wear, along with bulky chatelaines and watch chains that stretch from pocket to pocket.

Jeweled headgear is news, if it's big.

Despite short hairdo's, the pigmy barrette is to be replaced by flashy bands and combs in gold, silver or rhinestone.

All earrings will almost engulf the earlobe.

Copies of French Court jewels will be as regal as jewels can be at 1.98 and up. They consist of monstrous colored stones, surrounded by rhinestones and filagree.

For daytime, these pins can be worn as dress lapels, and in the evening, they can be hung on long gold chains as pendants.

Most "after-five" jewelry next Autumn will be slightly daintier than the morning models, but quite as flashy. Square-cut rhinestones, combined with pearls or bright-colored stones, will be popular. And all-rhinestone necklaces will be fashionable in two, three and four-strand drapes.

"The bigger the better" and "The more the merrier" are the predicted jewelry slogans for Fall.

Candy, Cakes Hard on Teeth Of Children

Don't reach for the candy, junior. It will punch holes in your teeth.

Dr. Rex R. Waggoner, Hollywood, president of California unit of the American [illegible] of Dentistry for [illegible] that sweet stuff is tough on the molars.

So are cakes, cookies, white bread, [illegible] and the kind of pies that mother used to make and still does make, unfortunately.

All refined carbohydrates generate acids which eat through the enamel and open the way for bacteria which swarm in the mouth, Dr. Waggoner explained to a reporter at the Empress Hotel, where he and Mrs. Waggoner are holidaying over the week-end.

PREVENT CAVITIES

Dr. Waggoner's life work is to cure decayed teeth and cavities before they happen. He is one of North America's 75 child-dentistry practitioners and one of an estimated ten practitioners of preventive [illegible].

He worked on adult chewing machinery with his son, Robert, [illegible] to have his teeth straightened. This last turned his interest toward pedodontic dentistry—in everyday language, dentistry for children.

Expensive dental repairs and suffering can be averted by an ounce of prevention in childhood, he discovered.

In this pioneer field it started only a few years before the war. Dr. Waggoner has to feel his way, with few precedents to guide him.

[illegible] of preventive [illegible] infant's [illegible] immediately after [illegible] can [illegible] of a baby [illegible] the desired shape [illegible] that teeth [illegible] in the right places.

"A few [illegible] after birth is too late, for by then the cartilage has already begun to harden to bone. It is seldom, however, that parents can be persuaded to call a dentist to the [illegible] ward.

Right time to brush the teeth is within 20 minutes after a meal, before acids can get busy, Dr. Waggoner says.

Thumb-sucking may cause "buck teeth," [illegible] in passing. His dental health rules: Eliminate thumb-sucking. Keep sugar and starch consumption down. Convince the child the dentist is a friend, not a bogey [illegible] and regular care and supervision.

His patients include David Stollery, [illegible] who appeared with Bing Crosby in the [illegible] at the Court of King Arthur; [illegible] Frank Sinatra's children Nancy and Frank; [illegible] Alan Ladd's children Carol Lee and David; Swedish actress Viveca Lindfors' children Jan and Lena, and the late Jan Savitt's [illegible] and Joan.

TO STAY IN PORT

British Columbia's salmon fishermen have voted to remain in port until a new union agreement is signed. The seiners normally head north about the first week in July.

Superfortresses Fly Over Island

Boeing B-50 Superfortresses like these have been seen over Vancouver Island recently while on test flights from Seattle. Successor to war-famed Boeing B-29, the new Superfort carries 20,000 pounds of bombs and has a combat radius of 2,300 miles. B-50 has wingspan greater than length of cricket field and is powered by four 3,500-h.p. Pratt & Whitney Wasp Major engines.

Residents of Island Gasp in Awe As Giant Airliners Make Test Runs

By NEIL MACDOUGALL

During the past few weeks Vancouver Islanders have had an opportunity of seeing the largest aircraft ever flown in this area. Huge Boeing B-50 Superfortress bombers and Boeing Stratocruiser transports have been droning over the Island on test flights out of Seattle.

On Friday the Pan-American World Airways Stratocruiser Clipper Seven Seas put on a [illegible] at the Air Show. The crowd gasped as the announcer described the aircraft's [illegible] features, [illegible] cocktail bar without Mr. Kennedy's supervision. On its last test flight before going into service on the New York to London run, the silver and blue Clipper roared over Sidney, Victoria, Salt Spring Island and the Malahat.

PATRICIA BAY "BUZZED"

Earlier in the day a four-engined B-50 Superfortress "buzzed" Patricia Bay at 100 feet and circled the Saanich Peninsula.

Fishermen and yachtsmen watched the big bomber sweep in from the Gulf Islands, stopped [illegible] and housewives rushed to their porches for a better view [illegible] to gaze at the [illegible] monster. A hundred or a thousand B-50s attacking Victoria would be a terrifying sight, reflected one man. Most people thought one big enough [illegible] impressive enough.

The big Boeings were so quiet that many people did not notice them until the aircraft were overhead. Last week's low-level flying was unusual as most test flights are made at relatively high altitudes. The distinctive drone which occasionally fills the sky here is usually from a high-flying, supercharged Stratocruiser or Superfortress. During the Summer the pretty white vapor trails of these aircraft can often be seen as they cruise three to five miles above the Island.

FEATURES TWO DECKS

The [illegible]-seat Stratocruisers feature two decks, a spiral staircase, a cocktail lounge, a full-size galley, three [illegible] a [illegible] cabin, a very [illegible] and spacious cockpit. The Stratocruiser's tail is as high as a four-story building and [illegible] hinged so that the aircraft can be hangared.

Each of the four 3,500-h.p. Wasp Major engines costs $75,000 or as much as a T.C.A. DC-3. The power output of the plane is enough for the brilliant lighting of over 25 five-room houses and the body is so long that a bowling alley was once set up inside. Fifty-five Stratocruisers, costing a toothsome $1,500,000 each, have been ordered by five major air lines. Later this year British Overseas Airways will introduce 3-deck [illegible] Stratocruisers on its Montreal to London run.

STRATOCOACH VERSION

A Stratocoach version of the luxurious Stratocruiser, offering second or coach-class [illegible] for 99 or [illegible] air travelers, was announced today by the Boeing Airplane Company. According to Frederick B. Collins, Boeing vice-president and sales manager, the day [illegible] of limited means and time, may well be just around the corner.

A cargo version of the 142,500-pound Stratocruiser, the C-97 Stratofreighter, was used on the Berlin airlift by the United States Air Force.

Like the Stratocruiser, the B-50 Superfortress is a development of the famous Boeing B-29 Superfortress. The B-50s recently seen over the Island were sister ships of the "Lucky Lady," the first aircraft to fly non-stop around the world. The new Superfortress is 39 feet larger and more than twice as powerful as the search and rescue Lancasters used on this coast by the R.C.A.F.

DUNCAN, July 2—Miss Margaret Gibson, a member of the Maple Bay Yacht Club entertainment committee, will be convener of a benefit dance to be held by the club on July 9. Proceeds of the dance will go toward the inhalator and rescue squad truck of the Duncan Volunteer Fire Department.

NAVY APPOINTMENTS

Naval headquarters at Ottawa yesterday announced the appointment of two university graduates as instructors in the navy. They are [illegible] Clarence W. Montgomery, 28, of Kingston and Stratford, Ont., and Sub-Lt. Alexander Slattow, 27, of Winnipeg.

IMPORTANT R.C.N. ROLE

The Royal Canadian Navy is destined to play an important part in keeping control of communication lanes in the Atlantic, Sir Frederick H. G. Dalrymple-Hamilton, head of British Joint Services Mission in Washington, said at Halifax.

Pipin' an' Kilts, Dancin' an' Sports Set for Highland Games on July 30

"Och, mon, it'll be a braw sicht, wi' the caber tossin' an' hammer throwin' an' the pipin' an' the kilts an' a'."

This assurance to prospective patrons that they will be given royal entertainment in return for their bawbees comes frae the Victoria Hielan' Games Association, which is sponsoring Scottish games at Macdonald Park July 30.

OUTSTANDING EVENT

An outstandin' event will be a gran' competition tae determine once and for a', or, for this year, at least, just who is the "champion of champions" when it comes tae open professional Hielan' dancin'.

Entry forms are noo' bein' mailed tae points as far east as Winnipeg and south tae California, according tae Secretary-Treasurer John MacKay.

Sassenachs are, o' course, entitled tae attend the games also, provided they pay their admission.

The championship competitions were set up at a recent meeting of the Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle Highland Games Associations.

Under the plan, dancing championships will be staged in Victoria this year, piping championships in Vancouver on August 6, and track and field championships in Seattle on August 14.

Next year the competitions will be rotated among the three cities.

TO FEATURE SPORTS

However, the Victoria games this year will feature sports, including hammer throwing, tug-of-war, shot putting and "tossing the caber" and piping contests.

Among piping entries will be the Seaforth Highlanders Pipe Band from Vancouver, Victoria's 16th Scottish, the Washington Pipe Band from Seattle, the Victoria Girls Pipe Band and the Glengarry Girls Pipe Band from Vancouver.

In charge of arrangements are Association President John Grant; Mr. MacKay; A. MacLeod Baird, dancing committee; Ian Duncan, chairman, piping committee; Alex Cameron and Arthur Manson, track and field, assisted by Ross Humber, Archie McKinnon and Jack Baxter.

Victoria Painters, Contractors To Sign Agreement This Week

A new agreement between Victoria painting contractors and Local 1163, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, will be signed early this week.

The proposed contract, which provides for wage increases and includes a union security clause, was unanimously endorsed at a meeting of the union Thursday night in the Broughton Street Labor Hall.

Identical proposals were approved [illegible] committee of the Master Painters Association, the employers' bargaining group.

The committee, comprising Association Secretary Frank Ireland, George Kaiser and Claude Howard, was empowered to accept or reject the new proposals for the whole association.

ACCEPT SUGGESTIONS

The new contract embodies suggestions made through H. E. Gould, chief executive officer of the Labor Relations Board and conciliator in the dispute.

Minimum wages for all brush painters will be $1.25 an hour and $1.35 an hour for spray painters.

Increases of five cents an hour will become effective September 30 and December 1.

Further increases will be "pegged" to five-point variations in the cost-of-living index.

If by December 31, the index has gone up five points from June 30, painters will receive a five-cent-an-hour increase. If there is a five-point decline, a corresponding wage cut will follow.

TO REVIEW INDEX

The agreement calls for reviewing of the index every three months and the making of necessary adjustments.

Under the union security or [illegible] clause, painters who are now members of the union, subsequently become union members or are reinstated as union members, must continue their membership as a condition of employment.

An "emergency work" clause states that no work except emergency work "with the permission of the union" is to be performed on Saturdays and Sundays.

"Emergency work" is defined as work "endangering the property or the life or health of the workman if done during week days."

An example is ceiling painting performed over open operating machinery.

Elected president at the union meeting Thursday was W. B. Brigden.

Other officers are: W. H. Rivers, vice-president; T. Newton, recording secretary; D. Bushell, financial secretary; Al Fletcher, treasurer; A. F. Williams, warden.

RESIGNED THIS YEAR

He resigned his latest appointment as acting district Scoutmaster early this year on being transferred to Ucluelet.

Cattle Prices Hold Firm; Record Gains

OTTAWA, July 2 (CP). — Cattle prices were firm this week with some price gains recorded the Department of Agriculture reported today in its weekly live stock review.

Cattle off grass and lacking finish however were hard to move and some price declines resulted. United States markets suffered sharp declines but Canadian domestic demand was sufficient to prevent any serious break in the market.

Hog prices reacted upward from recent declines, Eastern centres selling $1 above last week and Alberta markets 50 cents to $1 higher.

Cattle receipts at Toronto were 6,000 cattle and had only 60 carried from the previous week, and it was estimated that 100 would be unsold at the close. Trade was active, with prices generally strong with last week's close. Good to choice weighty steers made $20.50-$22.50, and good light steers $21-$22. Cows were strong sellers at $16-$16.50 for good quality, a few $17 and good bulls were weighed at $18-$18.50. Fed yearlings took $20-$23.

At Montreal, 1,096 cattle were sold and all cleared early at prices $1 to $1.50 higher than last week. Good steers were scaled at $21.50-$22.50, mediums $19.50-$21, good cows $16.50-$17.50, common down to $12.50, and canners and cutters $10-$12.

Slight Increase In Car Loadings

OTTAWA, July 2 (CP). — Carloadings showed a slight increase during the week ended June 25 to [illegible] cars from [illegible] cars the previous week, but were lower than the 78,901 cars for the corresponding week last year, the Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Gains were shown over the similar week of 1948 in loadings of grain, ore, building materials and gasoline. The main declines were in grain products, livestock, coal, pulpwood, lumber and wood pulp and paper.

WHEAT LOWER

CHICAGO, July 2 (AP).—A mild amount of hedging pressure sent wheat slightly lower on the Board of Trade today. The bread grain also was influenced by declines of 1 to 2 cents for cash wheat at major terminals. Local traders were inclined to get out of the market for the holiday week-end.

Wheat drew some support at one time on trade reports that the Commodity Credit Corporation bought wheat in Southern Illinois yesterday. It was said the purchase were made at 10 cents a bushel over the July Chicago future for delivery at Gulf of Mexico ports.

SNAKES AT THE MOVIES

VANCOUVER (CP). — A lantern-slide lecture on how to handle snakes had a practical twist when the American Society of Ichthyologists and Herpetologists met here. Several snakes escaped from bottles while the room was dark. The scientists kept calm, but one girl left hurriedly—for another meeting.

Petroleum Output Up

OTTAWA, July 2 (CP).—Canadian production of refined petroleum is still inching upward.

The Bureau of Statistics today reported output in March totaled 5,719,000 barrels, compared with 5,251,500 in the corresponding month [illegible] three months of the year totaled 17,847,000 barrels, compared with 16,[illegible]00 for the corresponding period a year ago.

Venezuela was the largest source of supply for Canada's imported crude petroleum supplies during the first quarter of the year. A total of 7,665,800 barrels was imported from the South American country, compared with 7,112,600 in the same period of 1948. The United States followed with [illegible], compared with 6,708,000, Arabia with 1,158,000 compared with nil. Imports from Trinidad dropped from 225,000 to 101,000 barrels.

Dollar Market Active Again

SHANGHAI, July 2 (CP). — The black market in United States dollars never stopped by the Nationalists, has come back again to plague Shanghai's Communist regime.

Rising commodity prices have forced development of the new black market.

Metals Review

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP) — Sales of lead and copper continued to improve last week and prices of all major non-ferrous metals held firm. Zinc demand still lagged.

Lead made the sharpest gains. Tonnage sold were the largest since the beginning of the year. June delivery sales came to about 60,000 tons, more than the monthly average last year.

Custom smelters have sold good-sized tonnages of lead for July delivery on an average price basis rather than at the present fixed quotation of 12 cents a pound, New York.

Copper buying again was more than sufficient to absorb the daily custom smelter intake of ore and scrap. On some days, the smelters had a carryover of sales orders, at 18 cents a pound, into the following day.

Bank clearings for June totaled $28,171,924, compared with $27,082,898 during the corresponding month last year according to the Victoria Clearing House.

Millions in Scrap Lost In Jungles of Pacific

LORENGAU, Manus Island, July 2 (CP). — The jungle is gradually beating efforts to salvage millions of dollars worth of equipment left on Pacific islands by the United States during the war.

On this island alone there is salvagable equipment with an estimated value of from $75,000,000 to [illegible] up by the creeping jungle.

The works and housing division of the Australian Government has been working overtime in a race with the jungle, but unless they are prepared to spend years cutting it back they will lose millions.

It was from Manus, the largest island in the Admiralty group, [illegible] miles south of the Equator, the Americans mounted their offensive that heralded the end of the war in the Pacific. At one stage they had full battle equipment and stores for a huge fleet and about [illegible] men on the island.

SOLD RIGHTS

After the war the Australian Government refused to allow the Americans to maintain a peacetime base on the island on the grounds that it encroached upon Australian sovereignty. The Americans then cut their final ties with the Southwest Pacific and moved to bases further north.

Before they left they sold salvage rights to all movable stores and equipment to China. Australia bought the fixed installations for a price quoted from Canberra as $1,250,000. All essential war equipment was sabotaged by the Americans to prevent it being used in the conflict now being waged in China.

The Australian Government gave the Chinese a set time to get their purchases off the island and refused to extend it when the time was up. The action caused considerable ill-feeling among the Chinese, and, it is said, much material was wrecked.

In scrap alone Manus is worth a fortune. Jeeps, trucks and heavy earth-moving equipment were bulldozed into heaps and then stacked high by cranes. When the cranes had finished their work they, too, were abandoned to rot in the steaming tropics.

United States steel companies are interested in buying scrap rights to the island but the Australian Government refuses to sell. Some of it did find its way to the U.S. from China. Sold to the Chinese for $30 a ton it was re-bought for double the price which meant simply a back-door loan to China.

Thousands of deserted Quonset huts on the island give the place a ghostly appearance.

The Australian Government has ordered that they be pulled down and shipped to the mainland to house displaced persons from Europe. So far fewer than 200 have been recovered.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

THOSE WORDS "COBBLE" AND "VAMP"—WHAT THEY HAVE IN COMMON

Today the mender of shoes sometimes puts "shoe-maker" on his shingle, and sometimes he uses the old name of his craft, "cobbler." He would not do this if he were aware of the word's origin.

"Cobbler" comes from the old French "cobler," which goes back to the Latin word meaning "to join." No offence in this, to be sure. However, the early use of the term was in allusion to coarse mending and to patchwork in the sense of "botchwork." Thus Dryden alluded to "cobbled rhymes" to signify that the rhymes were botched. And the Elizabethan's understanding of the word to describe a "clumsy workman," whatever his craft might be, is evidenced in Shakespeare's usage.

An intensely interesting analogy exists in "vamp," which is generally understood to denote a part of a shoe, that portion above the sole and in front of the ankle. The terminology "short vamp" and "long vamp" in referring to shoes is fairly familiar, but this word also has another application, sometimes in the form of "vamp up" or "revamp," as well as simply "to vamp," to indicate patching or repairing—in other words a sense synonymous with "to cobble" when this means "to patch."

"Vamp" comes from the old English "vampe," deriving from the French "avant pied," before plus foot, hence the forefoot, or vamp of the shoe. However, while the words are analogous to each other in this way, their development might be said to be in reverse order, for in the case of "vamp" the "vamped" music or "revamped" drama seem to have come after the "repaired shoe." With the cobbler the general significance of patchwork or botchwork preceded out of the derivation "to join," and the "shoemaker" then came into the picture.

ANSWER TO FRIDAY'S PUZZLE

Preventing Dementia Precox—Persistent Dream State

By DR. J. B. WARREN

Dementia Precox, the condition in which the individual lives in a dream state, may be prevented by care on the part of the parents and teachers. Any child who is "queer," "shy," "unsociable," "reserved," "good," "difficult," should be suspected of a possible development of dementia precox. In the home the parents should play no favorites, and the extra ability of a brother or sister should not be pointed out. The biggest factor in preventing dementia precox is to have the youngster mix with others and particularly to play in group games.

Stanley Park Summer Shows To Follow "National" Theme

This Week's Radio

Third annual series of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's Summertime concerts from Vancouver's Stanely Park will be launched this week-end. The hour-long Sunday evening programs, presented from the Malkin Memorial Bowl, will be carried in part to the four Western provinces via the C.B.C.'s Trans Canada network.

Harry Bryce, familiar to followers of the Leicester Square program, will direct the 26-piece orchestra and will present nine concerts of light music—all designed to meet popular demand.

Douglas Nixon, C.B.R. production chief, who is in charge of the programs, has indicated that the Summertime shows will follow a national theme this year. Today, for instance, being the eve of July 4 the opening show will emphasize the music and temperament of the United States.

NORA GRENHAM

Featured soloists will be Nora Grenham and Juliette, widely-known Vancouver vocalists, and Ray Norris, guitarist and leader of the Ray Norris Quintette.

On July 10 the concert will salute the British, with Betty Phillips as featured soloists. July 17 will be Viennese Night. July 24, Old Timers Night. July 31, New Artists; August 7, Canadian Composers; August 14, Continental Europe. August 21, Canadian Folk Music, and August 28, Encore Night.

ERNEST ADAMS

Artists to be heard include Lorraine McAllister, Ruth Popeski, Karl Norman, Suzanne, Belle McEwan, Bill Carr, Ernie Prentice, June McBride, Eleanor, Erika Nalos, George Calangis, Bobby Highes, Kay Cole and Clyde Gilmour.

* * *

Cy Howard, director of C.B.S.'s popular "My Friend Irma," is vacationing in Europe during the show's Summer holiday. He will visit Rome, Milan, Capri, Paris, and will take an Alp or two in his stride when he visits Switzerland. Howard will fly back in time to kick off the first Autumn broadcast on August 29.

* * *

Not everyone in radio can travel to the four corners of the world come Summer. Most must stay close to the home base, their noses to the microphone.

Cast members of the "Junior Miss" show have had no vacations until this year because of consecutive weekly broadcasts. This year they'll get three weeks, thanks to transportation but it really makes no difference.

Gale Gordon has to stay in Hollywood to appear in several other shows that carry on through the Summer. K. T. Stevens has varied motion picture commitments. Barbara Whiting will appear in Summer stock for one of the three weeks—then spend two in New York.

Incidentally while the character Barbara portrays was born, raised in and never been away from New York, this will be Barbara's own first visit to Gotham.

A top recording company has made a bid for Bill Farrell's singing voice. The 19-year-old singer of the Bob Hope Show, just completing his first year on the air, made a big hit with audiences across the U.S. during the show's tours this past year. Hope calls Farrell the Boy Boomer. "Farrell," says Hope, "is Jolson before all that money brought him to one knee."

A new Sunday recital series starts today on the C.B.C. Dominion network, to continue through the Summer, from 7 to 7.15 p.m.

Produced in Toronto by Terence Gibbs, the series leads off today and next Sunday with two recitals by the Vancouver baritone, Ernest Adams.

* * *

Stories of famous or interesting personalities of the past will be related in dramatized form in a new series, "A Name to Remember," starting Monday at 8.30 p.m. over the Dominion network.

Alan King, a Toronto writer, has prepared the scripts and will produce the two-week series. Subjects have been chosen on the basis of their individual human interest, and no attempt has been made to make them representative of various countries or ages. Mary Stuart, Queen of Scots, will be the subject of the opening broadcast, with Alice Hill in the title role.

There are 170 copies of John Wycliffe's handwritten Bible.

Japan "Polices" Fishing Fleets

TOKIO, July 2 (AP).—General MacArthur today approved a Japanese Government plan to keep its fishing fleets from straying into prohibited waters.

The Government plan is to put 116 inspection ships to sea to check daily on the activities of fishing boats. Penalties up to ten years imprisonment would be meted out to violators.

It is believed the Government's action is designed to give Japan a better bargaining position the next time it asks other nations for larger fishing grounds. All previous pleas have been rejected.

Japan's fishing grounds have been drastically cut since the war.

Texas City Lacking In Civic Assets

McALLEN, Texas, July 2 (U.P.).—Where most Texas towns brag about what they have, McAllen is almost in tears over what it doesn't have.

The Chamber of Commerce reports its civic face is red because the town of 22,000 is probably the biggest city in the country without:

An office building with elevator service, a bowling or a general recreation hall. Within 75 miles are 7,000,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas but the town has no recycling plant. Plenty of cattle are raised nearby but the town has no packing plant.

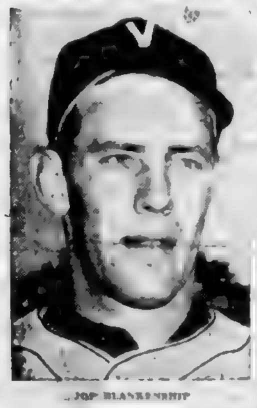
VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, SUNDAY, JULY 3, 1949

Blankenship Back; More Help Arrives

Jo-Jo and Outfielder Len Noren Join A's At Tacoma Today—Bolyard Due Tomorrow

Best news Victoria baseball fans have heard for some time is the confirmation of rumors that Joe Blankenship will return to his old club. Announcement to this effect [illegible] last night by Reg Patterson, business manager of the Victoria Athletics. Old Reliable is flying up from Beaumont and will join the club today at Tacoma, where it is billed to play a double-header this afternoon.



JOE BLANKENSHIP

Nor could Blankenship put in an appearance at a better time. Down to six pitchers, the A's face another twin bill at Bremerton tomorrow and were sorely in need of additional mound help. It is likely that Blankenship will see service either today or tomorrow and then make his first home appearance of the season later in the week. The A's return Thursday for four games against the Tigers.

This will mark Blankenship's fourth season with the A's and he improved each year, setting a new league record last season by winning 25 games. In his record-breaking year, he appeared [illegible] 47 [illegible], 16 of them complete, allowed 251 hits in 251 innings, gave up only 82 bases on balls, struck out 137, and had an earned-run average of 3.19. He lost ten games.

This is not all the good news for the A's. Also joining the club at Tacoma tomorrow is Len Noren, one of the most highly-regarded prospects in the Yankees' farm system. Noren played [illegible] season with Ventura, where his play was rated much better than his record would indicate. He spent the early part of the season with Newark but barely failed to make the grade. He is joining the A's from [illegible]hamton. He appeared in 137 games for Ventura in 1948, making 151 hits for a batting mark of .290. He hit 26 doubles, ten triples and two home runs and batted in 64 team[illegible].

JACOBS MAKES BID

Earl Bolyard, the A's new manager, will join the club at Bremerton tomorrow and will have a better chance to make a showing than his predecessor, Ted Norbert. Both Noren and Blankenship are valuable additions [illegible] there is more help coming. To top this off, Ray Jacobs seems to have hit his stride in recent games and will be a difficult man to oust.

To make room for the new men, the A's have sent Rex Jones to Ventura and Frank Prowse has been placed on the disabled list. Prowse has been suffering from a sore arm and is probably out for the season. Bolyard will make his own decisions if any further cuts are needed to keep within the player limit.

Big John Marshall, long a Victoria Nemesis, received his comeuppance at Royal Athletic Park last night before over 2,000 happy fans as a thrilling W.I.L. fixture ended in a riotous scene with the big Bremerton righthander pelted with cushions from angry spectators in the third-base stands after he had attempted to get at a heckler through the screen.

Sent into the game in the ninth inning with Vic Buccola on second [illegible] one out, Marshall curved a called strike over against Gil McDougald and then watched the Victoria second sacker sail his second home run of the game out of the park to break the 7-7 deadlock and give the A's a 9-7 win which squared the series at 2-2.

DAY, MARSHALL DISAGREE

Trouble started in the seventh when the Bluejackets became a bit put out with catcher Bob Day, who rammed into Bremerton-catcher Al Ronning while unsuccessfully trying to cross the plate on the scoring end of a double steal. Dugout hecklers jumped on Day in the eighth when he allowed Lil Arnerich to steal second by hesitating with his throw. [illegible] replied in kind and Marshall came out of the dugout with evil intent. [illegible] was restrained by teammates but immediately went to the bullpen to warm up, apparently more than willing to relieve a shaky Bob Pirack if necessary. His eventual mound appearance [illegible] jeeringly greeted and his subsequent failure was even more roundly blasted.

Heading for the Bremerton clubhouse, Marshall, seriously or in a bit of showmanship, poked at the screen in front of a heckler. This was the signal for the cushion shower which ended a real fan-pleaser.

The victory went to Jim Propst, who toiled grittily throught the full nine innings to gain his sixth win since joining the club a month ago. The slender southpaw, pitching with only two days of rest, was in almost continual difficulty but had it in the clutch. He was touched for 11 hits, gave up ten bases on balls, and saw his teammates boot three times to give the Tars three unearned runs. He stuck it out, leaving 14 runners stranded and making the most of his eight strikeouts. Five times Propst came up with an inning-ending whiff with runners [illegible].

HOME-RUN BARRAGE

The A's scored singletons in the second and third, the first without benefit of a base hit and the second on Frank Matoh's home-run blast. Trailing 6-2 going into the fifth, they went [illegible] with five runs, [illegible] coming on circuit clouts. McDougald hit his first with two out after Buccola had walked. The improving Ray Jacobs then hit a tre[illegible] fly [illegible] Pembroke Street after Day [illegible] John Hack had singled.

HAD IT FRIDAY

[illegible] had better luck on [illegible]y, overcoming a shaky start in the morning to record his 15th victory with an 8-2 decision and then coming in to stop the rallying A's under the lights to save a 14-11 game for his team. Box scores are on Page 21.

Spokane Team Gangs Up On Umpire; Forfeit Game

WENATCHEE, July 2 (AP). — The Wenatchee Chiefs won a 9 to 0 Western International League game from the Spokane Indians by forfeit here tonight.

But only after six Spokane players were ejected from the game by Umpire Max Skulik, and Skulik had entered the shower room with his uniform ripped by irate Spokane players.

The fracas began in the sixth inning when Skulik ejected Lyle Palmer, Indian centrefielder, for protesting a called third strike too vehemently. An inning later, Jim Neely, warming up in the bullpen, was thrown out by Umpire Rocky Flammima for continuing the protest. He was followed by Manager Jim P. Brillheart. In the eighth, Bill Werbowski, Tuck Stainback, and Jack Calvey were ordered out. It was Calvey's refusal to leave that precipitated the Spokane team's descent on Skulik.

At that point, first of the eighth with no one out, the game was tied at 8 to 8. Home runs were hit by Jim Warner and Richie Meyers of the Chiefs.

American Aces Show Wimbledon Form

Defending Champion Bob Falkenburg lost out in quest for second consecutive Wimbledon tennis crown but title returned to United States when Ted Schroeder defeated Jaroslav Drobny, Czecho-Slovak Davis Cup ace, in gruelling five-set final yesterday. Schroeder climaxed great uphill fight by breaking Drobny's service with two terrific passing shots in seventh game of final set with score tied at two sets and three games each with points at 30-30. Falkenburg is shown rising after spill in match with Hungary's Josef Asboth in panel at left, while Asboth is shown making point in second panel. Grim determination is shown by Schroeder in panel at right as he returns hard shot in match against Australian Frank Sedgman.

Snead Shoots Sparkling 64 At Washington

WASHINGTON, July 2 (INS).—"Slamming" Sammy Snead grabbed a half-way mark lead today in the $15,000 National Capital open golf tournament with a 36-hold score of 133.

The slim P.G.A. titlist from Hot Springs, Va., took the Prince Georges County, Md., course apart in his second round with a blistering 64. Thirty-six holes remain to be played.

Jim Ferrier of Australia pulled into second place with a 134 total, firing a second round of 65 to pass a lot of faltering early pace-setters in the tourney.

Skip Alexander, bespectacled pro from Mid-Pines, N.C., was third with 135.

A crowd of 10,000 followed Snead as he toured the course, his card showing twin nines of [illegible].

At the 18th green Sammy's 18-foot putt stopped 12 inches short of the cup to keep him from setting a course record of 63.

In his great round, Snead collected eight pars, nine birdies and one bogey.

Ferrier was almost as sensational. He was out in 32 and back in 33, with seven birdies.

Farther back but still in the running was National Open Champion Cary Middlecoff.

Middlecoff had a total of 137.

Next game, today: Brentwood Aces vs. Bluebird Cabs, Upper Central, 2:30 p.m.

Veteran Manager Rom Knott of Brentwood Aces took on the task of trying to stop the fast-stepping Douglas Tire squad in the Senior "A" Men's Softball League last night. Knott hooked up in a tight hurling duel with Tiremen's ace, Norm Martin, and didn't quite make it.

The Tiremen were held to their lowest score of the season but their two runs were good enough for a 2-0 triumph as Martin gave up but five singles to the Suburbanites. Victory boosted Tiremen's league-leading margin to five and a half games over the runner-up Aces.

Knott showed excellent control, failing to walk a batter, as he scattered eight hits. The only extra-base blow—a triple by Jim Morrison in the second—proved to be a big one as Chick Newman followed with a single to drive Morrison in with the first and winning run. Singles by Morrison and Newman and Dale Kilshaw's long fly accounted for the final run in the seventh.

Martin also showed excellent control, walking a lone batter in the ninth. He struck out five while Knott whiffed four.

Both clubs played sparkling ball in the infield with Aces' keystone combination of Shortstop Hal Yardley and Second Baseman Bill Benn and First Baseman Newman of Tiremen being standouts.

Seven Cars in Smash-Up Give Fans Added Thrills

It's amazing the type of accidents race car drivers can get into and live to tell about it. A capacity crowd of racing car fans had the thrill of their life last night at Langford Speedway as seven racing cars piled into one another to cause one of the worst accidents seen for a long time.

Exactly what did happen was very difficult to tell as the swirling clouds of dust made it nearly impossible to see. It happened in the third lap of the main event as 14 cars were thundering down the straight-away on the far side of the track and just starting into the north turn.

HOW IT HAPPENED

George Hutchison in the No. 10 was up near the lead and entering the turn. Eddie Kostenuk in the No. 22 car and Bob Simpson in the No. 64 car were trying to pass him on either side. There just wasn't enough room on the corner for the three of them at once. Something had to happen and it did. They hit the corner at a terrific speed and sandwiched the blue No. 10 car between them. Simpson's rear wheel climbed over the front wheel of the No. 10 car and then the dust started to fly. Simpson and car were flipped end over end to land right side up again against the fence. Vern Bruce in the No. 36 car was immediately behind and in trying to avoid the melee was forced through the fence. Digger Caldwell in the No. 4 car, Jack Spaulding in the No. 1 and Del Fanning in the No. 26 all joined the pile-up. Simpson's helmet saved him from serious injury. He ended up with a grazed arm and shoulder. No one else was hurt.

RACING THE HARD WAY

The race was started over again with the ten remaining cars, slightly battered up but still running. Brownie Brown in the No. 9 car put on the show of his life as he and Fanning fought it out for first position. It was touch and go for nearly ten laps of the reverse start race but Fanning finally passed Brown and held the lead for the remainder of the 30-lap event. Dave Cooper in the No. 5 car showed what race drivers are made of as he drove nearly 15 laps of the event holding the dust pan of his speeding racer off the track with one hand and driving with the other. Brownie Brown was second and Spaulding was third.

WATCH THE FORDS GO BY

The fans were treated to plenty of laughs in a special five-car stock car race. Some even thought it was better than some of the standard race-car shows. Roy Newton, driving a 1932 Ford, showed the fans just what can be done with the family gas-buggy. Brownie Brown, dressed in cowboy garb and flourishing an oversized six-gun, acted as official starter. The "cannon" went off with a feeble pop and the cars were off. For 16 laps they chased each other around the track to the amusement of the crowd. Newton wound up a winner in the event with Hal Samson second and Eric Whitehead third.

Regains Diamond Sculls Title

John B. Kelly, Jr., of Philadelphia, won Diamond Sculls at Henley Regatta yesterday by defeating fellow-Philadelphian, John Trinsey, easily. Kelly finished 20 lengths in front of his rival, completing the course in eight minutes 12 seconds. It was most lop-sided triumph in 110 years of Henley Regatta. Kelly first won title in 1947 but did not compete last year when Mervyn Wood of Australia captured crown.

Beavers Score Close Victory

[illegible] Bay Beavers pushed over a run [illegible] the bottom of the ninth to edge out New Westminster, 3-2, in a senior women's softball game at Nanaimo last night.

Shirley Stevens led off the inning with a single and completed the circuit on a passed ball, a fielder's choice and a wild pitch. Helen Pettigrew homered for winners in the second.

Gladys Ballance received shoddy support from her teammates in the early innings but retired the Mainland squad in order in the last three innings.

Clipper Big Noise On Pair of Singles

DiMaggio Bats in Four Runs to Spark Yanks Again—Brooks Gain as Cards Lose

By Associated Press

Washington pitchers held Joe DiMaggio homerless for the second straight game today but the Yankee Clipper drove home four runs on a pair of singles to spark the New York Yankees to a 10-2 triumph over the Senators.

Since he began playing last Tuesday, DiMaggio had driven home 13 runs in five games and has extended a hitting streak that began last season to 18 consecutive games.

The victory was the Yankees' fifth and it enabled them to maintain their five-and-one-half game lead over the runner-up Philadelphia Athletics. The A's downed the Boston Red Sox, 3-1, behind the four-hit pitching of Joe Coleman.

BIRTHDAY SPOILED

The loss spoiled bonus Lefty Charlie Stobbs' celebration of his 20th birthday. The Sox are ten full games behind the Yanks.

Detroit's Tigers took over third place from the Cleveland Indians, edging the Chicago White Sox, 7-6, in 11 innings as the Indians bowed, 4-2, to the St. Louis Browns.

Don Kolloway, formerly of the White Sox, broke up the game when he singled home George Kell in the third extra frame at Detroit. Pat Mullin sent the game into overtime with a homer in the bottom of the ninth.

HOME RUN BATTLE

The National League's front-running Brooklyn Dodgers came from behind and beat the New York Giants, 13-8, in a home-run battle at the Polo Grounds. Each team belted four homers.

The Pittsburgh Pirates turned in the fourth triple play of the season in beating the Chicago Cubs, 8-3, in the National's only other [illegible].

TRIPLE PLAY

With the [illegible] in the third Andy Pafko lined to Third Baseman Pete Castiglione. Castiglione, in trying to run for third in the same motion dropped the ball. He then picked it up, tagged Walt Dubiel who stood on third, then stepped on the bag to force Hal Jeffcoat for the second out. Castiglione then threw to catcher Phil Masi who yelled for the ball. Masi noticed that Pafko didn't [illegible] and he fired the ball to first to complete the three-play killing.

Blix Donnelly tossed a six-hitter against the Boston Braves for a 3-2 victory that moved the Philadelphia Phillies into a third-place tie with the National League champions.

At St. Louis the veteran Johnny Vander Meer completely mesmerized the Cardinals 4-0. He gave up only three singles.

It was the first victory for the 34-year-old craftsman since he blanked the cards in Cincinnati in the second game of the season.

Kulai's Penalty Marker Gives Vets Cup Triumph

George Kulai's conversion of a penalty shot late in the game gave Canadian Legion a 5-4 decision over South Hill at Macdonald Park yesterday and advanced the veterans into the second round of the Dominion Cup soccer competition.

Legion will meet Vancouver City of the Coast Soccer League in a second round match at Macdonald Park next Saturday.

South Hill held an advantage in the early part but passed up several scoring opportunities that could have meant a big lead. Goalie Charlie Sadler was hampered considerably by the crowding of his own backs.

YOUNGSTERS SHOW WELL

Strengthened by the addition of youngsters, Jack Robbins and Tom Walker, Legion gave a hustling performance and showed better than its Province Cup display against St. Andrews.

Walker notched Legion's two first-half goals and shared the starring [illegible] with Centre-Half Sid [illegible], who turned in his usual steady performance. Left Fullback Jim McIntosh played an outstanding game for South Hill.

Walker's two first-half goals were offset by tallies by Bill Worton and John McMillan for the Vancouver XI and the teams reached the breather with the score deadlocked at 2-2.

Kulai scored Vets' third goal [illegible] Alf Travis netted the fourth, but it was Kulai's second marker, the penalty shot, which proved to be the winner. McMillan, with his second tally, and Hugh Brown completed South Hill's scoring.

Line-ups follow:

South Hill: Rosen; Bowan and McIntosh; Urquhart, Foster and Kersey; Worton, McMillan, [illegible], Johnston and [illegible]. Subs—McSween and Harrison.

Legion — Sadler; Moss and Joe Robbins; McCormick, S. Robbins and Anderson, Davidson, John Robbins, Kulai, A. Travis and Walker. Subs: Speller, Duncan, Slater and Christenson.

By GRANTLAND RICE

Another British Open Golf Championship breaks loose on Monday the Fourth. No invading player had ever broken through this tournament, which started in 1860, until Jock Hutchison, a transplanted [illegible] United States in 1921.

That was the year Jock won in a play-off from Roger Wethered, the British amateur, who blew the show by stepping on his own ball in the final round. This mistake [illegible] Wethered a stroke and let Jock in with a tie. Jock won the play-off by 150 to 159.

After this the deluge broke. The British had felt their golf championships were safe under the different playing conditions that prevailed.

11 OUT OF 13

But after Jock Hutchison broke through, the British defence collapsed completely before a new United States attacking force, headed by Walter Hagen and Bobby Jones. In the next 13 years, American invaders won eleven championships and nine of these fell to United States home breds. Walter Hagen won four and Bobby Jones won three and it was not until 1934 that Henry Cotton, the present crown wearer, rolled back the invading attack.

Jim Barnes and Tommy Armour were the ex-Britons who won while the home breds were Hagen, Sarazen and Danny [illegible]. There is an interesting [illegible] connected [illegible] Walter Hagen's first trip across in 1920.

HAGEN ENDS UP 53RD

Hagen went over as United States Open champion. But he couldn't handle Deal. Hagen's four rounds were from 82 to 84. He took quite a ribbing from the press. Hagen played practically alone, his caddie being his only gallery after the first round.

He had every excuse to pick up. But he played out the four rounds. He finished 53rd among the 55 who turned in scores. That final day, Hagen posted his last score down near the bottom of the list. There were over 10,000 looking on. "There it is, gentlemen," he said pointing to his score. "But please remember this. I'll be back."

MAKES PROMISE GOOD

He came back to win four championships in the next eight years.

Some time late on Archie Compston, the [illegible] British star, beat Hagen 18 and 17 in a challenge match. It was a terrific beating. Hagen only grinned as they finished the final hole. "Wait for the Open next year," he said. Hagen won that open, leaving Compston far in the rear.

The United States invasion [illegible] away after Shute won in 1933. In recent years, Frank Stranahan has been the main invader, although Sammy Snead went across and won again for Uncle Sam in 1946. Henry Cotton won for the third time in 1[illegible].

LOOKING BACK

A good part of the history of golf belongs to this British title hunt.

For example, how many remember that a father and his son each won four British Opens? They were Old Tom Morris and Young Tom Morris.

Around St. Andrews today the ghost of Young Tom still plays the old game. Young Tom won the title in 1868, 1869, 1870 and 1872. He died before he was 30 years old and they'll tell you he would have won at least ten more titles if he had been permitted to live that much longer.

It was in this championship that the great triumvirate of British golf came to fame—Vardon, Taylor and Braid. Together they won 16 British Opens, with Vardon leading with six. Taylor and Braid each had five. Vardon first came to the U.S.A. in 1900. He won our Open that year and 20 years later he had our Open won again when a lightning and thunder storm wrecked his march six holes from home on the last round.

VARDON MOST ACCURATE

He was the most accurate hitter of a golf ball I've seen, although Ben Hogan deserves to share this praise.

The two lowest scores in the British Open belong to Gene Sarazen in 1932 at Sandwich and Henry Cotton in 1932, at 283, also at Sandwich. Jones still holds the mark of 285 at St. Andrews. His famous qualifying round at Sunningdale is still the masterpiece — 33-33—66 without a 5 on his card.

I happened to be at St. Andrews with Bob when he received the greatest tribute any golfer has ever received. He slipped out quietly with three friends one morning just to play the Old Course. When he finished, a gallery of 12,000 spectators was on hand, cheering every shot.

Only a few fine golfers have ever won the United States and British Opens. Vardon was the first. Ted Ray was the second. After these two, Hagen and Jim Barnes followed. Then we had Jones, Sarazen and Armour to close out the list.

On this next occasion, our strongest challenger is young Frank Stranahan, who has finished as high as second. The favorite will likely be Bobby Locke, who fell into a slump after winning the Goodall Round Robin.

"Y" Sprinters Gain Spots In Empire Games Trials

A record-equalling performance by Bob Hutchison at the annual Vancouver Police Sports on Friday earned the Y.M.C.A. junior sprint [illegible] the team to be sent to Toronto to compete in the British Empire Games trials on July 15 and 16.

Hutchison equalled the Canadian junior record of 22.3 seconds in winning the 220-yard sprint and finished third in the century dash, won by Dan Henthorne of Oregon in 9.7 seconds.

Hutchison will be joined on the British Columbia team by Y.M.C.A. team-Captain Harry Mitchell, who was selected on the basis of past performances this season. Mitchell was disqualified in the police sports century dash for false starts. His previous triumphs over all other British Columbia sprint stars this season was considered good enough for his selection.

NEW DOMINION MARK

The Vancouver Hudson's Bay girls relay team set a new Dominion record for the 440-yard distance in winning the event in 49.8 seconds, to clip 8-10ths of a second from the old standard.

Olympic star John Pavelich set a new British Columbia record for the shot put with a toss of 47.4 feet.

Other Y.M.C.A. results included a triumph in the 440-yard men's relay, a third by Rafael Duke in the open 220, a third by Pat Fleming in the women's high jump and a fifth in the mile by Phil Matson, who could not cope with Bill Parnell's winning time of 4:25. Miss Fleming equalled the qualifying standard of five feet in the women's high jump, but missed selection as she was topped by two other girls at 5 feet one inch.

The British Columbia team selected included Hutchison, Mitchell, Parnell, Bowers, Jack Hutchins, and Don Pavelich for the men's events and Patterson, Moore, Eleanor McKenzie, Gerry Bemester, Pat Jones, Shirley Gordon and Cave for the women's squad.

Alberta Names Cup Golf Team

CALGARY, July 2 (CP) — Three Edmonton and one Calgary golfers will make up Alberta's 1949 Willingdon Cup team when it meets teams from other provinces for the coveted trophy at Riverside Golf and Country Club, N.B., next July 23.

Leading the team will be Gord Grey of Edmonton, who automatically qualified by winning the Alberta amateur title.

Vern Mohs and Jim Harper, both of Edmonton, and Ron MacWilliams of Calgary, won the other three positions in a 36-hole medal tournament.

Canyens Bag Star

MONTREAL, July 2 (CP).—Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League have announced that Bob Frampton has signed a two-year contract.

Frampton, left-winger on the Montreal Royals' Canadian junior championship team that defeated Brandon in the final, is considered one of the best prospects from that squad.

Miss by Wicketkeeper Gives Vancouver XI Cricket Victory

VANCOUVER, July 2 (CP).—Victoria cricketers were beaten by 130 runs to 100 in the first game of the annual home-and-home intercity series against Vancouver at Upper Brockton grounds yesterday before a good-sized crowd of spectators.

Thanks to Pete Hobson, who hit up 56 runs, Vancouver compiled a larger total than appeared likely against some very steady bowling by J. Richards, J. Payne, and R. Wenman. Hobson, however, should have been run out before he had made 10 runs, but Victoria's wicketkeeper S. J. Vyvyan, dropped a perfect throw with Hobson four yards from the crease, and the batsman scrambled home safely. Richards came out with the splendid bowling analysis of five wickets for only 28 runs.

Wenman and Twite gave Victoria a fine start and hit up 51 runs before Twite was brilliantly stumped by Adams for 20. Wenman followed shortly after for 26, but Sparks hit up 18 rapidly, and only four wickets were down with 83 runs on the board.

The last six batsmen collapsed, however, before the slow spin bowling of Pete Darling, who took five wickets for 15 runs. Jack Adams gave him fine support by brilliantly stumping three men, and he also finely caught Morgan behind the stumps for the last man out.

Fans Select All-Star Line-Ups; Williams, Robinson Lead Polls

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO, July 2 (AP).—Baseball's armchair strategists—a record 4,637,743 of them from all parts of the United States—have selected by remote control the starting line-ups for the 16th annual All-Star game in Brooklyn's Ebbets Field July 12.

Fans voting in the 30-day poll chose these players for the two rival managers, Cleveland's Lou Boudreau of the American League and Boston's Billy Southworth of the National:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Greatest oddity in the balloting was lack of support from the fans for players of Boston Braves, 1948 National League pennant winners, and the World-Champion Cleveland Indians.

Under the agreement by Commissioner A. B. Chandler and President Ford Frick of the National League and Will Harridge of the American the fans' first selections must play at least the first three innings of the game.

Boudreau and Southworth will select their own pitchers, eight or nine apiece and the remainder of their staffs. Each group will total 25 players and undoubtedly some Braves and Indians will be included.

Only American repeaters for starting roles in the Midsummer dream game are Kell and Williams. Williams—1947 and 1948 batting champion—became the poll's "most popular champion" by reaping 2,087,466 votes. Jackie Robinson, the Dodgers' sensational negro second sacker, was second with 1,891,212.

National League holdovers are Mize, Reese and Musial.

Near Miss Brings Regatta Thrill

Typical of much of thrilling action in this year's Hearst Regatta is this near miss in vicinity of Crissy Field buoy, near Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco Bay, California. Holganza, owned by Don and Hamilton Lawrie, comes mighty close to stern of Dick Danforth's Gitana (Q-28) as they manoeuvre to round mark.

Double One-Two Pay-Off On Exhibition Park Card

VANCOUVER, July 2 (CP).—A dead heat for place money in the eighth race climaxed the fourth day of racing at Exhibition Park today as Redster, with Bobby Summers aboard, and Loose Talk, ridden by Ed Neal, chased the winning Gala Hat to the wire.

Both finished in a blanket [illegible] ahead of the fourth horse, Worth Silver. The first quinella, Gala Hat and Redster, paid $5.85, while the Gala Hat to Loose Talk combination returned $6.60.

Longshots continued to flash to victory as Blue Lightning, with the clever Ken Coppernoll aboard, copped the opener to pay $60.30, $34.35 and $9.95. Scram On, ridden by Kenny Wilson, took the third and returned $41.25 on the straight end. Termite, also steered by Wilson, clicked in the fifth for a $23.25 pay-off.

In the featured Citizens' Allowance, the favored Ab Jr., a three-year-old chestnut, set a track record for the five and one-half furlongs, winning easily by three lengths in 1.07 1-5, 1 2-5 seconds faster than the mark set last year by Touch Wood.

Blue Lightning's surprise win in the first, coupled with Brilliant Help's easy length victory, returned a season's record daily double of $224.45. Coppernoll and Wilson rode away with riding laurels, taking three races apiece.

Four Wimbledon Championships Won by American Tennis Stars

By THOMAS C. WATSON

WIMBLEDON, England, July 2 (INS).—Louise Brough, Beverly Hills, Cal., today led the United States to four victories in the five-event All-England tennis championships by retaining her singles and doubles [illegible].

She was thwarted in completion [illegible] three events open to women when she and Jack Bromwich of Australia went down to a defeat in mixed doubles before a jam-packed crowd witnessing conclusion of the ancient tournament.

The 17,000 spectators who turned out today to contribute to record attendance and gate receipts for the tournament saw Miss Brough retain her singles title with a 10-8, 1-6, 10-8 victory over Mrs. Margaret Osborne Dupont of Bellevue, Del.

They watched her team with Mrs. Dupont for an 8-6, 7-5 victory in defence of the doubles crown over Gussie Moran of Santa Monica, Cal., and Mrs. Patricia Canning Todd of La Jolla, Cal.

STAMINA FAILS

But they saw her scarcely able to lift her racquet in the mixed doubles which went to Eric Sturgess and Mrs. Sheila Summers of South Africa, 9-7, 9-11, 7-5.

However, her aim was to win the women's singles and thus join Ted Schroeder of La Crescenta, Cal., who yesterday beat Jaroslav Drobny of Czecho-Slovakia in the men's singles as victor in the highlight events.

She was the only two-event winner in the tournament, which today saw Dick (Pancho) Gonzales and Frankie Parker of Los Angeles win the men's doubles over Schroeder and Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

At the completion of the day's play, Miss Brough was physically knocked out by the exertion under a hot sun most of the way.

Hillcrest Club Winds Up Meet

The Hillcrest Tennis Club held their club tournament July 1, with Miss L. Northam and Reg Wood walking off with the important prizes.

Miss Northam won the women's singles, women's doubles and mixed doubles. She defeated Hazel Brundson, 6-1, 6-3 in the singles.

The men's singles was a hard-fought battle with Wood defeating Don McCormick, 7-5, 3-6, 6-2, 9-7.

In the women's doubles, Miss Northam teamed with [illegible] MacDonald to beat Hilda Parkinson and Kay Harris, 7-5, 7-5; the men's doubles saw Herb Davey and Joe Ball defeat Wood and [illegible] McCormick 7-5, 6-1, 6-8, 4-6, 7-5. Miss Northam and McCormick downed Kay Harris and Joe Ball, 3-6, 6-2, 6-1 in the mixed doubles.

Bev Campbell and Ian Parlak bested Dave Book and Jim Hallam 6-2, 6-3, in the consolation men's doubles.

EVER-READY ENGINEERS INVENT
NEW CORUX BLADE
TO GIVE "STRAIGHT-EDGE" SHAVE
Corrugated Steel Makes Blades More Rigid, Edges Keener, Longer-Lasting try super-keen CORUX shaving . . . free!
Can you imagine a razor blade thin enough to take a perfect shaving edge, yet strong enough to eliminate "pull"?
"Pulling" is caused when thin steel vibrates against the beard. Vibration dulls the shaving edge.
These shaving problems have been solved by a new invention developed by Ever-Ready Corux Engineers. They scientifically strengthened fine surgical steel through the principle of "corrugation"—then ground and honed it to a super-keen edge.
For more than a century, the "corrugation" principle has successfully strengthened structural steel. But it has never before been applied to wafer-thin razor blade steel.
Because they are corrugated, Corux blades vibrate far less than ordinary blades. Thus they give smoother, more comfortable shaves, and retain their super-keen edge longer.
Get Corux double-edge blades for the best shaves ever—and more shaves per blade. Made in Canada.

Try this on your friends. Place a crisp bill across two glasses (or any other similar objects), like a bridge. Then ask your friends to try to rest a fifty-cent piece on the bill without the bridge collapsing.
Then show them how it can be done. Take the bill and carefully crease it lengthwise in about four creases. What you are actually doing, of course, is corrugating your bridge for strength.
Now the bridge will support the coin! This shows how "corrugation" adds strength. This is the principle that makes Corux stiffer, so they vibrate less and hold a keener edge for longer.

Major Willoughby Wins Top Rifle Meeting Prize

Expressing his desire to see a larger prize meeting next year, Brigadier F. Bogert, Commander British Columbia Area, presented the prizes to winners in the 65th Annual Prize Meeting of the British Columbia Rifle Association in a pleasant ceremony held yesterday afternoon at Heals Range.

Principal prize winner was Major L. C. Willoughby of the Seaforth Highlanders who won the Grand Aggregate and British Columbia Championship for the second successive year. He was awarded the Governor-General's silver medal and B.C. Bond Corporation Cup and the exquisite and much sought-after B.C.R.A. gold wire-worked badge with a score of 663 points made through the entire meet.

NARROW VICTORY

Maj. A. M. Taylor Spittal of the Canadian Scottish tied with Willoughby in total point score but his 663 was adjudged second to Willoughby's when the scores at 900 yards were compared. Major Spittal won the Governor-General's bronze medal and B.C.R.A. silver badge to add to his gold badge won in the 1946 meet.

The Dominion of Canada Rifle Association silver medal went to Joe Gibault of the 5th Regiment Rifle Association for placing third with 667 and the D.C.R.A. bronze medal went to Major T. W. Hall of the Westminster Regt. who placed fourth with 655 points. Sgt. J. H. Regan of the Canadian Scottish received the B.C.R.A. silver medal with a fifth-place score of 647 points.

Second-Lieut. Arthur Sherwin and Bdr. Fred E. Richardson of the 5th Regiment placed 6th and 7th respectively, both with scores of 646. Mrs. Gwen Spencer Hethey, also a 5th Regiment shooter, placed 9th with 644 points.

Lieut. Hugh Thorburn and Sgt. George E. Knight of The Canadian Scottish placed 11th and 13th with scores of 643 and 641 respectively.

SELECT B.C. TEAM

The first twelve marksmen in the Grand Aggregate have the option of a fare-paid trip to the Dominion Championship matches at Ottawa as members of the British Columbia Team. In addition to these at least twelve tyros are selected to make up the balance of the team. Standings of other local shooters in the Grand Aggregate are as follows:

21st, Lt.-Col. A. W. Hunt, C.S.R., 633; 22nd, Sgt. A. E. Ashe, C.S.R., 635; 26th, Bdsmn. Frank Dresser, C.S.R., 631; 27th, V. G. Valleau, 5th Regt., 630; 28th, C.P.O. E. A. Moore, R.C.N., 630; 29th, Mr. A. E. Evans, Esquimalt Garrison, 629; 30th, S.-Sgt. E. O. Roberts, C.S.R., 629; 31st, Capt. Les Palmer, 5th Regt., 628; 32nd, J. Cramer, 5th Regt., 628; 34th, Maj. W. H. Wood, C.S.R., 627; 37th, F. Morse, C.S.R., 626; 39th, Sgt. F. T. Akin, C.S.R., 625.

Major Willoughby won the All-Comers Aggregate, composed of all scores except the final stage of the Lieutenant-Governor's match with a better 500 than Gibault. Lieut. F. Sullivan of the Westminster Regiment placed third with 496. Maj. Spittal and Sgt. Regan placed 4th and 5th with 493 and 492 respectively. Sec.-Lt. Sherwin placed 6th with 491 and the Westminster Regiment's Maj. Hall placed 7th with 490. Bdr. F. E. Richardson of the 5th Regiment placed 8th with 490 points.

SCORE CORRECTION

A correction in the report of the first stage of the Lieutenant-Governor's match, won Thursday by Sec.-Lt. Sherwin with a score of 102 showed that Sgt. Knight had won the B.C.R.A. bronze medal awarded to the high tyro in the match. Knight fired a steady [illegible] in the match to tie with three marksmen of considerable shooting experience, Maj. Hall, Mrs. Hethey and Gibault.

Knight scored again when the Tyro Aggregate was compiled. The Canadian Scottish tyro won the Letson Trophy, souvenir and cash prize for his 355-point aggregate. He was followed closely by S.-Lieut. (Nursing Sister) H. Mullin, R.C.N., who handed in a ticket for 353 points.

LOCALS DO WELL

Friday's matches showed that local shooters had it practically all to themselves on the fourth day of the five-day meet.

V. G. Valleau of the 5th Regiment started it with a shoot-off win in the Victoria Corporation match against Gibault. Both Valleau and Gibault fired 50-point possibles in the ten-shot 200 yard match, but Gibault dropped one of the three extra shots automatically shot after a possible in a single range match. Valleau, neglecting to fire his three tie-breakers at the time, had to settle himself down on the mound again and, overcoming this extra hazard, ticketed all three rounds for the bullseye. Valleau couldn't miss. Counting his two sighters before the match, the tyro marksman had 15 bullseyes in the match to take the City of Victoria Trophy and handsome medal bearing the seal of the city.

Mr. F. Morse and Maj. Spittal sewed up the match for the locals by placing third and fourth with 49's.

Capt. Les Palmer of the 5th Regiment won the second match of the day with a neat 48 at 300 yards and a magnificent 49 at 900 to score 97 in the British Consols No. 2 and collect the prize in kind and first prize money.

SCOTS TAKE CURRIE CUP

The Canadian Scottish team won the General Sir Arthur Currie team match fired by a coached team of six men at the 1,000-yard firing point. The Scots scored 396 to register a clear win, 32 points ahead of the team from the School of Military Engineering at Chilliwack. Individual scores of the Scottish team were: S.-Sgt. E. O. Roberts, 70; Sgt. A. E. Ashe, 70; Lieut. H. Thorburn, 66; Maj. A. M. T. Spittal, 64; Sgt. J. H. Regan, 65; Lt.-Col. A. W. Hunt, 61.

A team of four tyros won the Branson-Brown Trophy for the 5th Regiment with scores [illegible] in the Victoria Corporation match. The Canadian Scottish were second with 185, a clear five points behind the 5th Regiment. The Navy was third with 184 and the Seaforth Highlanders fourth with 183 points.

WINS TEAM HONORS

The 5th Regiment team won the sterling silver Laurie Bugle, emblem of team supremacy for the meet, for the second successive year with a score of 2,445 points made up of individual scores in the All-Comers' Aggregate. Individual scores were: J. Gibault 500; Second-Lieutenant Sherwin, 491; Bdr. Richardson, 490; Mrs. Hethey, 485; Capt. Palmer, 479. The team of The Canadian Scottish Regiment placed second with 2,434 points. Individual scores were: Major Spittal, 493; Sgt. Regan, 492; Sgt. Ashe, 487; Lieut. Thorburn, 484; Staff Sergeant E. O. Roberts, [illegible].

The Lieutenant-Governor's team trophy was also won by the 5th Regiment team with a score of 772 points made up of scores in the first (qualifying) stage of the Lieutenant-Governor's.

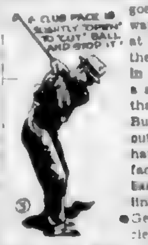
The Seaforth Highlanders won the Infantry Association Cup match by three points when they downed the 5th Regiment team who placed second with 1,104 points.

Gibault added to the 5th Regiment honors by winning the Lord Mayor's Rifle for the highest score of any competitor in the Victoria, Vancouver and New Westminster City [illegible]. Gibault dropped three points out of the 170 possible in the matches for a victory by a wide margin.

Better Golf

By SAM SNEAD

In the explosion shot, you can put "cut" instead of backspin on the ball. This stops the ball quickly as it lands on the green. Here's how you do it: Have the face of the club slightly "open" and swing into the ball from outside-in across the line of desired flight. By having the face open and swinging outside-in across the direction line the ball goes straight toward the flag and at the same time the stroke made in this way gives a spin to the ball that stops it dead. But if you hit outside-in without having the clubface open, your ball will go off-line to the left. Get that point clearly in mind. When you study this point, you'll see the the open face of the club counteracts the effect of hitting outside-in across the direction line. Now you're getting into the side of golf that really packs a thrill. In other words, the open face causes the ball to go straight even though you swing a little outside-in and the outside-in action puts the spin on the ball which stops it dead. Get it?



A CLUB FACE IS SLIGHTLY "OPEN" TO "CUT" BALL AND STOP IT.

Swedish XI Wins

WINNIPEG, July 2 (CP) — The touring Kamraterna soccer team from Sweden walloped a Winnipeg all-star aggregation here last night, 10-1, before 3,000 fans at Osborne Stadium. Sweden took a 4-1 lead in the first half, and scored six times without a reply in the final 45 minutes.

Feldman to Seals

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2 (INS) — Harry Feldman, 29, former New York Giant right-handed pitcher who jumped to the Mexican League in 1946, has been signed by the San Francisco Seals.

Feldman was declared a free agent when he failed to come to terms with the Giants after he was restored to good standing by Baseball Commissioner Happy Chandler.

Royals Ousted In Cup Soccer

VANCOUVER, July 2 (CP).—Paced by John Halley's two-goal effort, St. Andrews advanced to the semi-final round of the Dominion soccer competition here yesterday, tripping New Westminster Royals, 4-1, before 1,000 fans.

In bowing, Royals put up a splendid fight but failed to come through with the necessary finish around the opposition's goal-mouth. Time and again they'd worked the ball into scoring position only to have one of the forwards shoot wide of the mark.

St. Andrews fielded their strongest side of the season but were hard-pressed to win. Jackie Jones and [illegible] Henderson, both out the past few weeks with injuries, were in the line-up as were all the other regulars.

Mawhinney Leads Field In Willingdon Cup Test

Just who will make up British Columbia's Willingdon Cup golf team is as much of a mystery as ever following the first 36 holes of the 72-hole test here Friday. Selectors will have to make some close decisions tonight unless several prospective members burn up the course today at Vancouver during the final 36 holes.

[illegible] one of the four berths, proved that he deserved the choice by leading the field with a half-way total of 141. Mawhinney overcame a stiff wind on the long layout at the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club Friday morning to post a brilliant two-under-par 68 coming in with a sensational 32 on the back nine. He started out well at Uplands Golf Club in the afternoon, being only one over par on the tough first nine, but lost his touch coming in and finished with a three-over 73.

McCOLL RECOVERS

On the basis of the tests, Bill McColl is Victoria's best bet to snare one of the berths. The slim Colwood shotmaker came in with a par 70 on his home course, faltered on the first nine at Uplands with an eight-over-par 43, then regained his best form to complete the last nine in 32 and wind up with 145 for the two rounds. Vic Painter, who had an edge for the Victoria hope on the basis of winning the city title, got all the worst of the breaks, particularly on the greens, and had to struggle to post 76-75 for 151, good enough to wind up fourth along with Uplands' Don Gowan, who had 75-76.

Other Victoria entries were further back. George Bigelow had 152, Ted Colgate had 153, Gordon Verley had 154 and Frank Scroggs had 162.

DANIELS, BAJUS CLOSE

Following Mawhinney and McColl came Noel Daniels, New Westminster city champion, and Doug Bajus, lanky Point Grey member. Daniels was steady with a 75-73 while Bajus finished strong on Upland's back nine to score a 72 for a 149 total.

Jack Ellis, Hughie Morrison and Lyle Hurschman, three strong Vancouver contenders, each had 154. Hans Swinton, Vancouver, and Roy Stone, Trail, were bracketed at 157, R. J. Cunningham, Vancouver, had 161; H. Donaldson, Trail, had 162, and J. Reynolds, Vancouver, had 163.

Eighteen holes at Capilano and Point Grey Golf Clubs complete the test today. Selectors will immediately name the team and there is every likelihood that either Painter or McColl, perhaps even both will make the team. Bajus and Daniels, particularly the latter, have excellent chances and it is still not known whether or not Walt McElroy, who passed up the tests, will be considered.

Airmen, Oak Bay, Incogs Win in League Cricket

In Victoria and District Cricket Association matches played yesterday afternoon, Ex-R.A.F. scored a narrow 73-70 victory over Cowichan at the Duncan pitch, Oak Bay handed Seattle a 94-39 setback at Windsor Park and University Incogs put up 152 runs for six wickets after dismissing Albions for 56 at Beacon Hill Oval.

WENMAN GETS CENTURY

Highlight of the day was Reg Wenman's batting. The big Incog skipper stayed in for two hours and topped the century mark with 103 runs. He was patient and careful in the first hour and a half but opened up in the final stages with some heavy knocking. He also topped the bowling by taking three wickets for 11 runs.

Airmen batted first in the Up-Island engagement and saw their opening pair go out cheaply. Albert Jagger came in at the first wicket to compile 16, and Woodruff added 23 in his fourth-wicket stand to pace the win. Dunlop and McCleery were the only Cowichan members to reach double figures, scoring 16 and 15 respectively.

Green of Cowichan captured three of winners' wickets for 17 runs while Day led Ex-R.A.F. bowling with five wickets to his credit.

EASY FOR OAK BAY

Oak Bay had things pretty much its own way while registering a triumph over the visiting Seattle XI. [illegible] with 22 runs, Vyvyan with 16, Scott with 14 and Sparks with 11 led the home-team attack. In the Seattle innings, batsmen failed to solve the bowling of Green and Sparks and were dismissed before they had a chance to get their eyes in. N. Shah and E. Abnett headed visitors with 13 and 12, respectively.

Green captured four Seattle wickets for 15 runs and Sparks lifted five for 23. Veteran Matt Hughes claimed five Oak Bay wickets for 33.

Seattle will meet the league-leading Five C's in a league fixture this afternoon at Beacon Hill starting at 2:30. University Incogs will host the visitors in another league match at University School tomorrow.

Baseball Popularity Provides Challenge to British Cricket

LONDON, July 2 (CP).—Baseball's popularity in Britain has simmered for years under the die-hard traditions of cricket.

But today, baseball is boiling up for a boom, says its backers. Every week sees bigger crowds attending league games.

The Beavers, a team of American and Canadian players, operating in the Birmingham Major League, are drawing crowds up to 7,000, and in the Midlands and the North, where the game is most popular, 10,000 spectators are normal.

The game in Britain is simon pure. Although some supporters' clubs raise funds to meet the cost of renting ball parks, players have to provide their own gear—which costs about £10 ($40) annually.

Most of the players are British. But there is a fair sprinkling of Canadians and Americans in most teams. The Canadians are chiefly former servicemen now settled in Britain, and the Americans servicemen doing a tour of duty.

"People come first to watch out of curiosity," said an official of the Baseball Association, the national organization set up to guide the game in Britain. "Then they become ardent ball fans."

YOUTH PROGRAM

Despite financial difficulties, all the clubs are coaching youngsters, many under 16. Baseball's enthusiasts say that if the youngsters develop as expected the game will soon be challenging cricket as Britain's number one Summer sport.

Baseball has three advantages over cricket. First, spectators can watch a game through, whereas country cricket matches spread over three days. Secondly, the occasional tie in baseball is a common occurrence in cricket. Thirdly, unlike club cricket, baseball fans enjoy the thrills of knockout cups and league battles.

Horseless Churchill Registers Colors

LONDON, July 2 (CP). — Winston Churchill today registered his racing colors although he doesn't own a horse.

The racing calendar said Churchill's colors will be "chocolate, pink sleeves and cap."

The Conservative leader's entourage said this was the first inkling they had that Churchill planned to go for the sport of kings.

Officials Take Dim View Of Team Work

WILMINGTON, Del., July 2 (AP).—Greentree Stable's team of Capot and Wine List were accused of a football manoeuvre at Delaware Park today and were promptly penalized by the racing stewards.

Capot, pacemaker to the three-year-old crown, finished first in the Leonard Richards Handicap by a half-length and set a track record of 1.48 2-5 for the mile and a furlong route.

But his racing partner, Wine List, with Jimmy Stout up, was caught blocking and the glory and the $24,830 top money went to Sun Bahram, the horse blocked.

Sun Bahram's rider, Carson Kirk, protested to the stewards his mount had been carried out soon after reaching the stretch by Wine List.

"Capot and Wine List, running as an entry, were disqualified for collusion against Sun Bahram and were placed third and fourth," the stewards said. Cochise was promoted to second and given a $4,000 cut of the prize money.

B.C. Scattergun Crown Captured by Jack Roach

Jack Roach of the Victoria Gun Club, was crowned British Columbia champion following the first day of competition in the three-day meet being held at the Victoria club's Albert Head shooting grounds here.

He won the 100 bird "A" Class British Columbia championship in [illegible] posting the highest score in all the events on the program.

To post the 100-bird win Roach had to shoot off against Garnie Carter, New Westminster, after both had scored 95x100 in the first shoot. In the extra 25-bird shoot-off, Roach only had a single miss while Carter muffed three.

Another Victoria shooter, Henry "Peg" Pottinger, was runner-up to Roach for the over-all score when he wound up just one bird off the hot pace set by the new champion.

In the Class "B" section of the 100-bird event, H. Ormand of Nanaimo and W. H. "Bill" Dalziel, Victoria, finished in a tie. The Nanaimo man won the 25-bird shoot-off.

In the Class "C" group, J. W. Green of Courtenay finished ahead. Bill Johnston of Victoria was runner-up.

Non-resident trophy was won by C. O. Jennings of Tacoma with a score of 96 out of 100 birds. A. Swenson of Big Harbor, Wash., was second with a 95.

Murray Laidlaw, C.I.L., was top man in the professional ranks with a 95x100, and W. R. Wood, Seattle Winchester man, was in second spot with an 89.

Courtenay's Green scored another win when he topped the card in the [illegible]-bird-handicap and Henry Pottinger took top place in the 25-doubles event. R. Green of Courtenay was winner of the Class "B" contest in the 25 doubles.

In the non-resident department Yakima's Walter Stoddard took the top spot.

The Victoria team of Roger M[illegible] [illegible] and Roach won the British Columbia resident team contest with a 118x125. The Nanaimo entry took second-place honors.

The Canadian team won the international team shoot with a 109x125 score.

In Class 'B' of the all-around championship contest, Courtenay's Curran came out winner with 165.

It is Visitors' Day at the trap and skeet ranges today as the meet goes into its final session. A prize presentation in the clubhouse at 5 p.m. by Russell B. Horton, club president, is on the agenda.

5 IN MEMORIAM

RUSH—In loving memory of my dear wife, Margaret Isabella, who passed away on June 29, 1948.

The unseen strings of memory's harp
Are softly touched today,
Thoughts of her come crowding fast
And tears we cannot stay.
So I shed a tear that is silent
And breathe a sigh of regret,
You were mine, I remember,
Though all the world forget.

—Sadly [illegible] by her loving husband, Fred.

"$64 QUESTION" TO BUILD OR NOT TO BUILD

That is the question in the minds of many Victorians today who hesitate to build at present high costs. Regardless of whether you plan on building NOW or LATER we can offer you one WISE suggestion. Choose the location you prefer and get your building site NOW. Choice view property near Victoria is rapidly disappearing. The man with vision is choosing his lot today in a reasonable TAX and PRICE area. If necessary, he can then afford to delay his building program a year or two.

Ask us for details of the beautiful "SEA-VIEW HEIGHTS" Subdivision overlooking CORDOVA BAY, MOUNT BAKER and the STRAITS. Lots may be purchased (on budget terms if you like) for prices as low as $700. We have two splendid lots which owners must resell: one is HALF-ACRE of level land, good soil, cleared, light and water; the other lot, gentle slope, all-round view, cherry trees. Already over 40 new property [illegible] in this attractive subdivision.

At CADBORO BAY we have a limited number of lots, some on the waterfront, in an exclusive, private subdivision just on the market. We will be pleased to supply particulars.

In the TEN MILE POINT area we can offer you two adjoining ACRE [illegible] on TUDOR AVENUE for $1,100 each. Also two reasonably priced waterfront lots. Corner lots may be purchased as low as $800. Lots with 100 ft. frontage for $1,175. A choice waterfront lot between Mount Douglas Park and Cordova Bay, which has been held by an American resident for over 30 years. 90 ft. frontage by over 370 ft. brush and nicely treed with cedars and [illegible]. City water and light available plus additional well. Details and location at office. Your opportunity to obtain a beautiful building site on the water.

We will be pleased to give you further details on the above properties at our office—without obligation on your part.

Uncertain Destiny

By BETTY WEBB

XXIX (Continued)

Linda hesitated for a moment. She had great respect for Steve's judgment, knowing he spoke the truth about Challenger. He was an exhibition horse, proud, nervous. She always had been afraid of him. Then she laughed coolly and entered the stables.

"Bring out Challenger," she ordered the stable boy, and when he stated [illegible] command impatiently. Her heart pounded as the boy helped her into the saddle but she tried to conquer her fear. It would never do for Challenger to realize his rider was afraid. Instead she walked him out to the clearing and said lightly to Steve: "Your man-eating horse seems quite subdued."

Steve whirled about angrily. "Don't say I didn't warn you, Linda, if he [illegible] He's dynamite and [illegible] drate."

"Meaning what?" she demanded.

They [illegible] at each other [illegible] Diane, who had been watching the scene from a vantage point, rode up beside Steve. [illegible] she ordered [illegible]. "This is no time to quibble. Steve, ride along with us and make it a foursome."

Linda was startled. She had a guilty feeling that Diane had planned this very arrangement, but she expected Steve's refusal.

"Thanks," Steve said curtly. "I will."

The little procession started off, and automatically Linda reined her horse beside Steve, her eyes fixed on a distant point. She heard Diane and Greg engaged in a [illegible] conversation up ahead and groped for some witty remark to make to her companion, something that would let him know how completely indifferent she was.

"Patrician seems in fine form today." She eyed Steve's chestnut mare.

Steve patting the horse's shining neck. "I wish you were riding her instead of that skittish stallion. Challenger is a man's horse."

Linda laughed unamused. "He's not afraid of me. Challenger and I understand each other. We're very much alike in many ways."

"If you [illegible] each of [illegible]ize a certain type of beauty, I suppose that's true."

Linda glanced stealthily at Steve's profile, saw he was grimly in earnest, although his eyes remained fixed on the road ahead.

"You're very gallant," she retorted, "but that's hardly what I had in mind. Challenger needs love, patience and a little understanding. He was wild and untrained, but [illegible]."

"Then I fell down on my job." Steve's voice rose as they urged their horses into a canter. "Perhaps [illegible] to lose me."

"What?" Linda could not believe her ears. Surely fate was playing another trick on her imagination. [illegible] her heels dug into Challenger's sensitive sides, her hand relaxed their grip on the reins.

"When we went back to Prairievale," Steve was saying stonily, "I thought you understood how I felt, that I loved you and wanted you to be my wife. I'd loved you for so long, but when I saw that it was Greg you really wanted ..."

"But Brenda ... you were together so much ..."

"Brenda!" Steve laughed bitterly. "Now that you're leaving, now that everything is settled between us, you might as well know there was nothing between Brenda and me. Oh, I'll admit she tried desperately to well, re-arrange my life. But I told her that everything was over for good. When she's had her little fling, I expect she'll be glad to come back to Jerry and remain faithful to him the rest of her life."

"I thought if you believed I was interested in Brenda, you'd feel free to make your own decisions, but stay with me because you believed it your duty, so I ..." Suddenly Steve broke off, his face whitening. "Linda!" he shouted. "The jump!"

There was a blur of black gliding through the air as the horse took a [illegible] fence. Linda had taken [illegible] now oblivious of everything save Steve's agonized face and his low, bitter confession; she was off-guard.

As Challenger took the fence, Linda's slim body hurtled from the horse. There was another cry from Steve, a gasp from Linda as the ground seemingly flew up to meet her, and then she was a limp, strangely still figure.

Up ahead Greg was accusing Diane, his face sullen. "You planned this," he said wrathfully. "You knew Steve was out here and you threw Linda at him, trying to get them to patch things up. Why?"

Diane looked away. "I think everyone deserves one break," she insisted. "If I'm wrong about things, I'll be the first to admit it, but I can't forget that Linda and Steve—"

The former would seem is often true ... the fatalists ... point of view. The best that YOU ... are going to get but if the trouble has ... YOUR name on it. You've no protection from a blow, to be sick ... or bad love. The good die young ... the sinners late & so it seems ... life's just fate. So why not have a good old time now ... the [illegible] ... your [illegible] the [illegible] is long short ... the works ... wine & song. That's the way it's always bin and I can take it ... on the chin. Well, there's little comfort in this slant to accept such thots ... I ... simply CAN'T. 'Cause in truth it doesn't make sense that life should hang ... by such suspense. All around me I can see Fate NEVER was ... nor NEVER'LL be. All things ARE governed by a law when we make of ourselves a camera. Focus our sights against being sick & listen for ... that little click. "Long green" too ... flows from this point as our camera catches ... the clearer print. Out of the shade ... into the sun our development then ... half way won. Negative thots ... will pass away as surely as nite follows day. But we mustn't wobble to make this choice or we'll not hear "the still small voice." ALL NATURE listens ... and obeys. Beauty & bounty ... in a million bouquets. And o'er the land is spread perfume as o'er our town was crept the broom. (Here another rhyme I had to be this written in June but read in July.) Love is all. It conquers hate, roses disprove ... this thing called fate. Let us, [illegible] ... be not afraid 'cause we're ALL equipped ... with THIS hearing aid. To listen ... be still ... and from above, the amplified voice ... NOT fate ... MORE LOVE.

Little Stories for Bedtime

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

IT TAKES A THIEF TO CATCH A THIEF

"It takes a thief to catch a thief."
This saying is quite old,
But there's no saying that I know
In which more truth is told.

Sammy Jay was proving this. If there was anybody in all the Green Forest who could catch Chatterer the Red Squirrel at his thievery that somebody was Sammy Jay. You see, Sammy is a thief himself. I am sorry to say it, but it is true, as everybody knows. And he is a very clever thief, too. So being very clever in the art of stealing, Sammy was just the one to catch Chatterer.

He Flew Over the Hole and Peeked In

Silently, and keeping out of sight, he followed Chatterer and saw him disappear in Happy Jack's storehouse in the hollow limb of a big tree. In a minute Chatterer was out and starting back for his own storehouse in the old nest of Blacky the Crow. Sammy started to follow and then changed his mind. He knew where Chatterer was bound for. What he didn't know was whether or not Chatterer was really stealing those nuts. It might, it just might be possible that Chatterer was simply moving his own stores from one hiding place to another. So Sammy remained right where he was.

It wasn't long before he heard a rustle of dry leaves, and looking down, he saw Happy Jack the Grey Squirrel scampering along with his mouth full of beechnuts. Up the tree he ran and disappeared in the hole in the big limb. A minute later he was out and away in the direction of the beech trees. Sammy Jay chuckled. "I thought as much," said he. "Chatterer has discovered Happy Jack's storehouse and is stealing those nuts as fast as Happy Jack brings them, and Happy doesn't know it."

He flew over to the hole and peeked in. It wasn't a hole he cared to enter. So far as Sammy was concerned, Happy Jack's stores were quite safe. Then Sammy flew off a little way to watch and think things over. He saw Chatterer return and hide until Happy Jack had come back and gone away again. Then Chatterer stole some more nuts just as before and raced away with them toward his own storehouse in the old nest of Blacky the Crow in a big tree some distance away. Sammy chuckled and if you had been there to hear that chuckle, you would have at once suspected that Sammy had something on his mind. He did have.

"That red coated thief thinks he is smart," thought Sammy. "He is robbing his own cousin and thinking how smart he is to get all those sweet, brown little nuts without the trouble of hunting for them one by one. What is fair for one is fair for another. I think those nuts will taste quite as good to me as they possibly could to him. I'll wait a bit and see what happens here and then—" Sammy didn't finish that, but he chuckled more than ever, and it was plain to see that he found his thoughts very pleasant. Meanwhile he kept hidden and watched and waited. He felt sure that sooner or later Happy Jack Squirrel would find out what was going on and when he did there was bound to be lively times about there. He wanted to be there. You know Sammy Jay is very fond of excitement. He never misses anything of the kind when he can help it. So Sammy waited and watched and, sure enough, his patience was rewarded.

City Man Has Odd Occupation Filling Up Holes in Socks

By BARNEY McKINLEY

MENDING [illegible] socks is the favorite [illegible] of [illegible] Jackson, English war veteran, who runs a [illegible] darning machine in a [illegible] department store.

On his way to [illegible] the [illegible] in the West of [illegible] Mr. Jackson [illegible] lengthy apprenticeship in England, where he worked for [illegible] [illegible] experience [illegible]

However, he [illegible] [illegible] with the express purpose of keeping them in repair.

Mr. Jackson's wonderful darning machine operates at the staggering rate of 4,000 stitches a minute, which is a lot faster than grandmother can handle the job, he remarks complacently.

MATTER OF MINUTES

A small hole takes about a minute to mend.

A half-sole job would require three or four minutes, Mr. Jackson estimates.

The sock mender says he doesn't give a darn how fast your socks wear out, his mechanical mender can keep them whole if given a chance.

But he admits there have been troubles to iron out. For one thing, the machine requires a special fine mending wool from England that is not always easy to procure. And the machine itself was out of kilter when Mr. Jackson took over. The previous operator apparently just didn't have the steadiness of eye and nerve that is required for a [illegible] speed [illegible] in the mending machine.

AND BUTTONHOLES

Next door to the mending machine Mr. Jackson has a sewing machine with a special buttonhole-making attachment.

This causes him some worry because he [illegible] up a few buttonholes [illegible] socks [illegible]

The machine is for men only, he understands. The mending of modern silk stockings is not on the list of repair projects.

SOME ODD JOBS

Mr. Jackson takes care to emphasize that his time is not taken up every with sock mending. He also repairs all the industrial sewing machines in the store, waits between [illegible] on the counter. Prior to his present job he was employed in the supply department and on a [illegible] machine. His spare moments he whiled away doing gold lettering on leather goods.

An advertisement in the help wanted female led Mr. Jackson to the sock mending business, he recalls.

At the time he was looking anxiously for a job after a promoted partnership in a new business had fallen through.

Victoria Craftsman Pursues Vanishing Art

Embossing on Parchment Followed Through Ages

By G. E. MORTIMORE

AT a window overlooking busy Government Street in Victoria, there sits one of the few craftsmen of a nearly-forgotten art.

He is Morris Jacob, 73 years old, an engrosser and illuminator of manuscripts, mottoes and addresses.

In his simple bedroom studio, Mr. Jacob taps a precious, waning tradition which goes back to the monks of the Middle Ages and the artist-priests of ancient Egypt.

Mr. Jacob is a happy exile from Ireland, an old soldier (five times wounded in two wars, crippled, and many times decorated), a scholar, something of a philosopher, a craftsman and above all an artist.

MADE THOUSANDS

Mr. Jacob's illuminated addresses have been officially presented to Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth and to several Governors-General of Canada. Prints of his illuminated mottoes hang in thousands of homes.

Engrossing and illumination are possibly the most difficult of all the pictorial arts. To qualify for membership in the tiny group of competent engrossers and illuminators who are working today, a man must master a number of skills.

He must have a knowledge of English and a feeling for words. He must be a first-class penman, a master of color and design, and a technician of paints and pigments.

First step in creating an illuminated address is to rough in the lettering—keeping in mind from the start the over-all design.

Mass-production, copy-book methods will not do, either.

TRICKY MATERIAL

"Mechanized writing has no life, no body," Mr. Jacob says.

Then comes the difficult process of laying the wafer-thin gold leaf. A special adhesive, the composition of which is "a military secret," is applied to the paper or parchment. The leaf is floated off the paper to which it is attached and carefully spread on the new surface.

It is impossible to draw on gold leaf without tearing it, so illumination has to be painted on direct. Flowers, leaves and figures often carry a traditional symbolic meaning.

Mr. Jacob blends his own paints. As for gold paint, "a decent man won't use it!—because it tarnishes. The wrong kind of paint will deteriorate and react chemically."

Mr. Jacob guarantees that his paint "will last longer than I will."

When the illumination is complete, the artist finishes the lettering and adds complex pen-filigree.

A TEDIOUS JOB

The illuminated address of the Province of Manitoba to King George VI and Queen Elizabeth took Mr. Jacob two weeks' painstaking work to complete. Quicker jobs of simple engrossing are judges' and Kings' Counsels' warrants.

All Mr. Jacob's work finds an immediate market. Illuminated mottoes and quotations are snapped up by United States firms and printed for mass distribution.

Quotations go a little beyond the "bless our home" stage. Mr. Jacob, a widely-read man, peppers his conversation with tags from poets and wits of the past.

Mr. Jacob has been young all his life. He gets up every Summer morning at 6 a.m., walks on crutches to Beacon Hill Park and sits down quietly to watch the birds.

"The birds in the morning before the sun comes out have an entirely different note to what they have at night. The different species get together on a bough without any quarrelling. But as soon as the sun comes out and they get warm, they start to fight like human beings."

ANOTHER WORLD

Artists differ from ordinary citizens in that they keep their child-like early-morning freshness and clear vision.

He thinks they can help others "bring back that sense of nature and everything that was lost in our materialistic adulthood when all we had before us was the almighty dollar."

"But you can't do it as the abstracts do—get a lot of paint and throw it on. This 'modern art' fad is pushed by young men and women who really can't draw. They're trying easy methods of slapping paint on, and they hope to goodness that it'll turn out all right.

"This modern art fad 'shall fold their tents, like the Arabs, and as silently steal away.' It won't last.

"There are three great letters in the English alphabet—n, r, g—energy. There are two lights that enlighten the world—sunlight and the student's lantern.

"Nothing easy is worth while. You need training and hard study. As Edison said: 'Genius is 1 per cent inspiration and 99 per cent perspiration.'"

BACK TO NATURE

The swing in art is back to representation of nature, he thinks. "There's nothing abrupt in nature. There's harmony even in the old broken-down stump of a tree. The knots are beautifully curved. Nature has a rhythm, and man takes it out."

In his County Wexford boyhood, Mr. Jacob was a victim of obstinate parental ambition. It was the old story: his father wanted him to be a doctor because painting didn't pay.

But he and Edinburgh University took a dislike to each other, and his medical studies were soon over. From then on, he was on his own. He went to fight in the Boer War and was wounded twice.

Once out of the army he began to study and paint. In his studio he kept an experimental picture. When somebody suggested that something be added or changed he would do just as they said. Otherwise he never touched it.

TAKING ADVICE

Years later the picture was an astonishing hodge-podge. "There's water running uphill; there are ducks where cows should be and cows where ducks should be. The sun and moon and all the constellations are in there, too."

He keeps the picture as a reminder of what happens if you listen to everybody.

He toured the Continent, sketching. Baron Von Richtofen, father of Germany's Great War air ace, opened his priceless art collection to the public. Mr. Jacob still remembers something the old baron told him in his castle on the Rhine: That carpets in the galleries had to be renewed. Discouragingly, the carpet in front of a full-length mirror wore out twice as fast as the carpet in front of old masters.

When the Great War came, Mr. Jacob joined again, received his commission in the field after winning the Military Medal and a mention in dispatches, and became a front-line observation officer. He won the Military Medal and bar and emerged from the war with three more wounds. Ever since then he has gone on crutches.

Many years ago he came to Canada and busied himself at the task he likes best.

"I'm perfectly happy creating the beautiful," he says. "Although I'm unable, because of my legs, to spread around the better things in life, yet I can do it by way of my mottoes."

Vaudeville Top Billing

Variety Shows Due For Expansion

By BOB GURNEY

VAUDEVILLE, that vehicle of versatility whose meteoric rise from an obscure beginning in a New York candy shop to become the leading entertainment medium for millions, is again pushing itself through the maze of intricate channels of show business. How far it will get depends on the gambling instincts of the producing clan and the box office. Show business the world over is undergoing a period of transition and no one will hazard a guess as to when it will reach some measure of stability.

* * *

The situation in Hollywood, mecca of mechanical entertainment, has undergone a decided change within the last year. Actors and actresses are feeling a sense of insecurity. No longer are they at liberty to defy producer and director with whims and fancies under the guise of temperament. They work or else. In France, despite the dazzling display of class "A" movie productions, the motion picture industry is on the rocks more than ever before. About 50 per cent of picture workers are out of work. "Manon," a $400,000 screen epic, was "pulled" after eight weeks in only two theatres—a net loss. The receptive mood of audiences cannot be measured by any scientific formula and it would appear that producers are about ready to consider some other form of entertainment where it is not always necessary to put all the golden eggs in one basket. Vaudeville may offer an outlet devoid of a competitive element and at the same time supplementary to existing movie productions. It might mean a curtailment of picture length and the reintroduction of shorts, but there would be variety and that would seem to be what entertainment-seeking people want. It is too early to assess the effect of television on show business generally, but it is already conceded that this new constellation will not eclipse the stars of any other form of pastime. At the moment it is costly, networks have not been developed, but it is growing.

As television advances, show business comes smack up against vaudeville. Present radio shows are vaudeville shows running blind. Television will simply put on the "specs" and romp around the circuits carrying the best of entertainers. You will then be able to get your show at home or in the theatre. You take your choice.

* * *

The foregoing does not mean that vaudeville is dead in the United States. Far from it. But it does not hold the top billing it did from 1911 to 1928 when it was the most generally patronized form of entertainment for millions of Americans in more than a thousand houses across the continent. It also had a wide appeal in Canada following the formation of Canadian chains in co-operation with American. The merger of the two major circuits in 1928—the Keith-Albee and the Orpheum—was one of the greatest developments in the institution of American vaudeville. That same year witnessed the unification of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation with the Radio Corporation of America. Vaudeville is still on the boards across the line. So it would appear that vaudeville is due for wider circulation rather than a revival. It was never dead.

* * *

American vaudeville originated in 1883 in Boston, Mass. Ben Keith, a young man with vision and very little money, opened a museum in a vacant candy shop and called it the Gaiety. It had a midget, an ancient (stuffed) mermaid and a pair of comedians, Weber and Fields. Ed Albee joined Keith in 1885 and the two set out to make vaudeville a family entertainment; to keep it free from vulgarity and give it refinement. They were successful.

* * *

Early day geniuses who descended from the theatre to "accept" engagements on circuit were the Four Cohans, Montgomery and Stone, David Warfield and others. Other names in theatrical social registers who appeared included Maurice Barrymore, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, the great and beloved Sara Bernhardt, Lenor Ulric, Nazimova and William Faversham.

Yes, talent scouts are on the move in Canada and it may not be too long before the footlights and spotlights will again shine on a new generation of entertainers born in the maelstrom of celebrity, ability and even notoriety. Vaudeville is intimate. It has background as well as technique.

CONCERT MUSIC

WHO said Mozart is the most inaccessible of the great masters? The record makers (they're not in business to advance culture) don't think so, since they've issued more Mozart this year than any other composer. No complaint, of course. Nothing could be more pleasant, particularly the Serenade in B Flat (K. 361).

Written for 13 wind instruments, it is here played with high spirit and keen appreciation by musicians of the Boston Symphony conducted by Serge Koussevitsky (RCA Victor; four 12-inch standard or four 7-inch 45 rpm's). The tumbling tonal colors and melodic inventions of its first movement, the incandescent poetry of its second, its constantly succeeding wonders through to its final rondo—this is the Mozart who never fails to gladden and enchant.

BASSOON VIRTUOSO

The Concerto for Bassoon and Orchestra (K. 191) is not on the serenade's peak of compact beauty but to dismiss it because it is slight would be out of the question. First, it is rollicking in unfettered gaiety, then it is a drawn-out, loving sigh (a slow movement that stays long in memory); finally it is arrestingly dramatic.

Leonard Sharrow, the soloist, will surprise you with his virtuosity and by the way it reveals the range, depth and color of a maligned and little appreciated instrument. He is accompanied by the N.B.C. Symphony, of which he is first bassoonist, directed by Arturo Toscanini, who implants his characteristic stamp on the performance. (RCA Victor; two 12-inch standard or two 7-inch 45 rpm's.)

A third Mozart is more Lily Pons than Mozart, with no joke intended. It is his piano variations on the A-B-C nursery song (K. 265) but arranged for coloratura and sung ah-oh-oh-with many a la-la-la by the glittering Lily. If you love her, you'll love it. If your love is for Mozart, you'll be happier with Sharrow and his bassoon. (Columbia; 12-inch single.)

QUICK ONCE-OVER

To Capitol-Telefunken, the reviewer presents a palm for pleasing quick "once-overs" of well-known operettas. Last month, it was done to three of Franz Lehar and this month it is done to "Die Fledermaus," "A Night in Venice" and "The Gypsy Baron" of Johann Strauss, Jr. (three 12-inch) and to "The Merry Wives of Windsor" of Otto Nicolai (12-inch single).

NORTH BANK—The stately buildings on the North Bank, which now look out on the muddy wastes of the opposite shore, will soon have a rival city facing them. Five acres of the famed Thames River have been reclaimed as part of the reconstruction scheme. Modern buildings and terraced gardens will beautify this area.

London Plans a Paradise

Reclamation Along Thames To Be Ready for Festival

GREAT Britain furnishes the world with a spot of work that is a refreshing contrast to the black rumors of war; the news of death and destruction pouring in from other parts of the globe. Londontown is in the process of a face-lifting from which she will emerge a shining example of peacetime construction. A wide-scale housing program, now under way, is being spurred on by plans for the gala opening of a mammoth "county fair" to be held in May, 1951, the month and year that mark the tenth anniversary of London's devastating blitz.

The festival is not to be a transient affair of tinsel and temporary trappings, however, but a permanent part of an over-all housing project. The model "Festival City" will be a cross-section of a residential district, complete with homes, shops, factories, schools, a church and a pub. These buildings, constructed as an architectural exhibit for the festival, will later form the nucleus of a model suburb, a city within a city, rising from the rubble of warscarred London.

The cost of the project is estimated at around ten million dollars and it will cover more than 27 acres of land, between London County Hall and Waterloo Bridge. Five additional acres will be reclaimed from the famed Thames River, using enormous heaps of rubble which had been dumped as London cleared away the blitz debris. Modern buildings, an experiment in both material and design, will replace the battered and derelict waterfront warehouses. Other buildings with terraced gardens bordering on the river, will rival the stately beauty of the opposite North Bank.

For some Londoners, of course, the bright prospect has its sad aspects. An 81-year-old coffee house proprietor, for example, must step aside to make way for progress. He has lived there all his life, and will miss the deafening rumble of trains over the nearby railway bridge. Another "victim" is the grocer who'll have to vacate his store for the third time—the blitz "evicted" him twice. Now it's progress. Their reward will come when New London is unveiled in '51.

GHOST

The ghost season has opened among the French chateaux this year ahead of that in the castles of England and Scotland. And the first "ha'nt" reported is the shade of Jean of Orleans, half-brother and companion of Joan of Arc and commander-in-chief of the French armies fighting the English and Burgundians toward the end of the Hundred Years' War. He was seen by a group of midnight treasure hunters riding at the head of a ghostly company of mounted soldiers through locked gates and thick stone walls into the courtyard of the castle of Montrognon in Auvergne. His visor lowered and his heavy lance down, he spurred his charger toward the twittering treasure hunters—then rode on into the far wall and disappeared.

CRAZY?

Eminent foreign psychiatrists were being taken around a French lunatic asylum. In the corridor, they met an inmate.

"Why," one of the specialists asked him, "do you remain huddled up in this corner all alone, scratching yourself?"

"Because," replied the madman, "I am the only person in all the world who knows where I itch."

CEDARS

The phrase coals to Newcastle takes a Biblical turn with the report of cedars being carried to Lebanon. The Lebanese Government is importing trees as part of a long-term project to renew the famed cedar forests that gave shade to the crusaders. But giants such as Richard the Lion Heart and Godefroy de Bouillon saw will not adorn Lebanon until the year 4000. However, some few isolated cedars are there today that survived the elements and may still "remember" King Solomon.

YO-HO

"Fifteen men on dead man's chest, yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum . . ."

The famous ballad of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island," has long been true in so far as concerns the middle part; the balance came true recently when the Governor of the British Leeward Islands flew emergency rations containing rum to a group of 15 men shipwrecked on Dead Man's Chest, a 500-foot-long islet, five miles from Tortola, whose gruesome name derives from its appearance as it lies on the horizon.

Hitler's Yacht Was Finest in the World

Built for a Naval Career Craft Is Now at New York

By LAWRENCE PERRY

NEW YORK. — Emil Wessel was chief engineer of Adolf Hitler's yacht, The Grille, in the final decade of "that man's" world-shaking dictatorship. Today, as the craft—one of the largest and handsomest private yachts in the world—lies in the East River here at the foot of Wall Street flying the British ensign, Wessel is still in command of the engine room.

He is proud of that engine room, gleaming and shining and orderly as the kitchen of a de luxe hotel; so proud that even the Fuehrer, when he came aboard, was comparatively a negligible person to Wessel. Machinery, not humanity, is the concentrated interest of a man so thoroughly competent in his profession that when the British Admiralty took over the craft in 1946 he was retained with it. Neither he nor his three assistants—also kept on—were Nazis and all were cleared by the British Foreign Office when the vessel was preparing to cross the Atlantic. As for Hitler, he never seemed to be concerned about the ideology, if any, of his engine room force.

JUST AN ENGINEER

"He spoke to me often," said Wessel, a tall, lithe, big-chested man with level blue eyes and close-cropped moustache, "but he never asked me if I belonged to the party or anything like that. No, he just seemed to respect me as an engineer who knew his business. That was what he wanted on his yacht—men who knew how to run it safely and well.

"He would come down to my engine room and look at the machinery, and he would say how beautiful machinery was and how nice it would be if men were like that, never tiring, smooth running and perfect. And I would say yes, that was so—and I still say that!"

You associate a great palatial yacht with pleasure, relaxation, idling in wicker chairs on the after-deck with stewards very attentive; you picture jovial dinner parties and all the diversions that go with cruising.

"But not Hitler," said Wessel. "He had—what do you say—? Yes!—He had a very earnest manner. All business. Sometimes he would come aboard with Count Ciano, with Horthy of Hungary, with Admiral Raeder, with Rudolph Hess or General Von Brauschwitz. But no party. Whatever they came for, it was not for fun. Even when they were there, Hitler would be in his cabin, but up there, sending out messages, receiving them—all business, as I have said, and all by himself.

FLARE OF TEMPER

"I never saw Hitler smile, but twice I saw him get mad. Once was when he had a lot of his generals and admirals and so forth at dinner and, since Hitler did not drink, they did not order any drinks either; they drank lemonade and soda. I mean they were about to when Hitler knocked all the glasses from the table, saying that one thing he did not like was—what is it you say? Oh, yes—hypocrites. He meant they drank plenty when they were not with the Fuehrer. So, for that, they would drink nothing, not even water."

The other manifestation of irritation came when Hitler first looked into his stateroom—where some ardent, though misguided, decorator had run riot with color effects and frills.

"He ordered everything out," Wessel said. "He said he wanted a room of one color, not a boudoir.

"Oh, about guests: I forgot. Once Herr Goering took a cruise. But just one. As soon as the yacht got out to sea, he became seasick and his groanings and bellowings could be heard a long distance. For that matter, there would be times when Hitler was not seen and not heard, times when he would be tight shut up in his cabin. Then we all knew he, too, was seasick. He was not a good sailor."

A NAVY CRAFT

"What you should know," Wessel explained, "is that The Grille was strictly a navy craft. As such, no woman was ever allowed aboard. Not even Eva Braun. I did see her once on a pier, very pretty, but never on board this yacht. You should also know that The Grille was never a real yacht. It was built as a naval vessel. But when it was being built—I directed placement of the engines—there came a public outcry that the vessel should be turned over to Hitler as his private yacht—just as in the United States your presidents had the Mayflower, and subsequently, the Williamsburg. But Hitler said no. He would merely use the ship when he wanted to take a cruise; it should still be a naval vessel. So that was the way it was."

When war came, Wessel was assigned to shipbuilding and The Grille was used both as a minelayer, so Wessel said, and as a messenger boat. He never saw her again until after the British had taken over the boat and brought her to Southampton. She is now the property of George Arida, a textile magnate in Tripoli, where he also serves as British consul.

Ships and Badges

Canadian Naval Vessels Follow Old Traditions

THE history of armorial bearings is clouded in antiquity but almost since the beginning of time symbols have been adopted by tribes and nations, families or chieftains. Through the centuries the display of a badge or crest has developed to such an extent that it has penetrated to almost every walk of life. Trademarks and brands belong to a branch of heraldry as do the totem poles of Indian tribes.

True heraldry, however, is associated with the arms of knights and nobles, but there is a difference between armorial bearings and badges and crests, but the badge may claim greater antiquity and a wider use. In the 14th and 15th centuries every "magnate" had his badge or crest emblazoned on his belongings. Knights and nobles carried their designs into battle.

This week's honor ship is H.M.C.S. Swansea, the swan being the central figure in the crest. In the Swansea crest the swan is holding the maple leaf in its beak. It will be noted that all ships of the Canadian Navy follow the same design with the exception of H.M.C.S. Crescent which still displays her British badge. Not all badges of Canadian ships display mottoes. The Swansea is a frigate and based at Halifax.

Tips for Teens

By ELINOR WILLIAMS

Get out in the sun, if you have oily or "bumpy" skin and want a smoother complexion.

Did you know that sunshine is one of nature's best fixer-uppers for skin troubles such as oiliness and pimples? It's a wonderful normalizer and germ killer for your skin and hair. But you have to know how to use Summer sunshine to improve your complexion and hair. Too much of it is dangerous because sunburn, blisters and peeling coarsen the skin, making pore-openings more noticeable, leaving permanent freckles and making the skin look weatherbeaten and old.

But moderate doses of sunshine do the opposite, helping to refine the skin texture so pores are less conspicuous, making it look smoother and softer. If your skin is inclined to be too oily or too dry, moderate sunshine helps to normalize it.

If your face, shoulders and back are oily and sometimes "broken out," expose them to the sun as often as possible during your Summer vacation, beginning with ten-minute sunbaths and gradually increasing the number of minutes. The sun's rays help to halt the spread of infection and help heal blemishes that have already marred the skin.

If you freckle or sunburn easily, never spend more than a few minutes in the blazing sun without extra protective clothing and a bottle or tube of creamy non-greasy suntan lotion. It'll save you plenty of pain!

Here's Mud in Your Oil—Texas Style

Strange Concoction Needed To Check Drilling Pressure

NEW YORK. — An oil derrick rears its steel frame a couple of hundred feet above the West Texas desert. The drilling crew—all big, brown, muscular men—look like pygmies as they clamber about the towering rig. Thousands of feet below the ground, a whirling drill pipe bores its sharp, heavy bit into the earth — probing for oil. The Texas sun burns down. Except for the derrick, a few supply shacks, the hulking machinery, two or three trucks, and hundreds of lengths of drill pipe stacked neatly on one side, there's not a thing for miles around —except sand, rock and scrub vegetation.

The mammoth derrick looks out of place. So does the spattered crew who look like they've been in a mud pie fight—on the Texas desert!

Mud is used wherever men drill for oil. The slimy stuff is as necessary to modern oil drilling as that whirling bit and skyscraping derrick. You'll find pits full of it behind the derrick. High-pressure, clattering mud pumps move this special mud through a complicated system of pipes and troughs.

SAFER DRILLING

Enough of this "Elite" mud to drill one well costs anywhere from $800,000 to $1,000,000. The mud is mixed with weighting agents, treated with chemicals, tested by scientific instruments and applied by skilled engineers. It must meet exacting requirements because its job is to make drilling safer, faster and more economical. Its specifications may vary not only from well to well, to satisfy different drilling conditions, but also from day to day and sometimes from hour to hour in one individual well.

All the time the drilling is going on, powerful pumps force a stream of this educated mud down through the hollow drill pipe, out the bottom and through small holes in the bit, and then back up to the surface between the outside of the drill pipe and the walls of the hole.

CHECKS PRESSURE

The mud's primary job is counteracting pressures exerted by gas, oil or water deep in the earth. Pressures used to be the chief headache of oil men. They caused "blow-outs" which ruined equipment and sometimes sent gushers of oil cascading high, wide and handsome all over the countryside. But no more. Today drilling experts make sure the weight of mud in the "hole" overbalances any pressures from below; consequently, uncontrolled gushers are a thing of the past, and "blowouts" are exceedingly rare.

Mud also lubricates and cools the whirling bit—keeping it from burning out from intense friction.

In addition, en route back to the surface, this mud plasters and exerts pressure on the sides of the hole thus sealing up porous strata, preventing water or gas from entering the hole, and lessening the danger of cave-ins.

The cuttings the bit gnaws out of the earth are taken care of by the mud, too. It continually flushes out the cuttings as it circulates. Thus oil men can keep the bit boring away without stopping to bail out ground-up fragments of rock, clay and sand.

LONG PROCESS

As mud emerges from the hole, it passes through a box-like device called a "shale shaker." Here, vibrating screens, called "Rhumba," separate large cuttings which are washed and analyzed. Some pieces are sent to the laboratory for examination by a geologist or paleontologist, who determines whether the drill bit is approaching oil strata.

The mud goes on to a series of "purifying" tanks and when the mud emerges from the final tank, it is ready to be used over again. Between round trips down the drill stem and back, the mud gets a variety of tests—specific gravity, viscosity and water loss; likewise it gets strength, sand content, salt content, degree of acidity or alkalinity, and its wall-building qualities are tested and adjusted.

STRANGE CONCOCTION

Strange and diverse materials like cottonseed hulls, fish scales or beet pulp are mixed with the mud to help seal openings in porous formations. Sometimes drillers use oil, instead of water, as a base for the mud, to prevent sealing of oil-producing sands. Oil used in drilling for oil!

Sometimes the mud is as thin as muddy water; sometimes as thick as pumps can force through. It depends on subsurface pressures. Average weight of the mud is 10 to 12 pounds per gallon, but may be as high as 16 pounds.

Most wells strike enough shales and clay to provide a basic substance, to which chemicals and other substances are added, to make this mud. If natural muds are not available at a location, dehydrated mud is bought and mixed with water, chemicals and weighting agents.

NEW PROFESSION

Good "mud" engineers are relatively few. It is a highly specialized profession demanding expert knowledge of chemistry and engineering, an understanding of oil-drilling technique, and a thorough grounding in petroleum geology.

Mud engineers must know how to make mud which will gel sufficiently to hold cuttings in suspension, so they won't drop to the bottom of the well when drilling stops, but which will also immediately become fluid when drilling starts again. But this same mud must permit cuttings to settle in surface tanks! Sounds contradictory, but good mud engineers can make classy mud like that.

MUDDY LANGUAGE

Mud engineers talk about mud in terms like gel strength, colloidal behaviour, thixotropic qualities, fluid characteristics, and adaptability to the addition of weighting agents. Small boys would be surprised to hear grown men using such big words about the sticky stuff they play with on street corners!

But that sticky stuff is the lifeblood of rotary drilling. Engineers treat it and test it with as much care as if they were preparing the elixir of life or a new formula for the atom bomb. Without it, wresting crude oil from the depths of the earth would be a much more difficult and hazardous profession than it is. And the innumerable products from crude oil, so necessary to our daily life, would not be as numerous and as inexpensive.

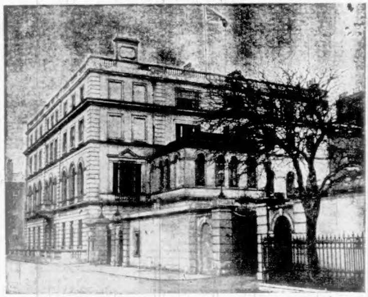
London's Latest Royal Palace

Princess Elizabeth's New Town Home

By ARTHUR NETTLETON



CLARENCE HOUSE, adjoining St. James' Palace, the London home of Princess Elizabeth. One of London's most luxurious residences, Clarence House was built in 1825 by the Duke of Clarence. During the war years, when it was used as a Red Cross headquarters, the four-story mansion suffered damage by bombing.

LONDON. — Until a few months ago, few people had heard of Clarence House. Outside London, fewer still were aware of its situation.

Today, as the new home of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, this many-roomed mansion is one of the most famous houses in the world. Since it was announced that the Princess and her husband were to make it their London residence, it has become one of the new "sights" of the metropolis.

Its newly-painted, cream-colored facade is attracting sightseers anxious to glimpse the home of the heiress to the throne.

BUILT FOR WILLIAM IV

Built in 1825 for William IV when he was Duke of Clarence, Clarence House cannot claim as long a history as some other British royal residences, but it adjoins historic St. James' Palace, founded by Henry VIII on the site of a medieval hospital for lepers.

Its convenient situation, close to both Buckingham Palace and Marlborough House (Queen Mary's home) was a deciding factor when the Princess and Prince Philip had to choose a London house from the restricted list of properties available.

Had national conditions been more favorable, Government sanction for the erection of a totally new palace for the heiress presumptive might have been sought. Instead, Clarence House was chosen for adaptation to such a role.

The job has not been easy, for the mansion was originally built in the specious days when not only almost limitless expense was permissible, but when the large staff required to run such a rambling home could easily be recruited.

MIRACLE OF PLANNING

A miracle of planning and alteration, however, has transformed the interior into a regal palace which can be maintained with the minimum number of servants.

Labor-saving devices have been freely incorporated to this end, making the house one of the most up to date in Britain.

The Princess' apartments are on the first floor, the main windows of the suite overlooking the trim lawns with a view of the tree-lined Mall behind. Arched windows distinguish the rooms of H.R.H. from the rest of the house.

Here some alterations have been carried out since the place was earmarked as London's latest royal palace.

PRINCESS' BEDROOM

A square room with big windows formerly stood over the main portico. This room has been removed to allow more light for the Princess' bedroom immediately behind. The portico apartment was added when the late Duke and Duchess of Connaught lived at Clarence House. Built as an invalid room for the Duchess during her declining years, it remained undisturbed from the time of her death until a few months ago.

Other structural changes have been made to give a suggestion of spaciousness to several of the rooms, but the somewhat narrow staircase has not been replaced, and Prince Philip decided that the present time was inopportune for the fairly extensive alterations which would be necessary to incorporate a garage in the house.

Instead, he is accepting the inconvenience of keeping his cars at Buckingham Palace or Marlborough House. This arrangement also means that the cars can be serviced by the King's staff of motor engineers, and can be driven by one of His Majesty's chauffeurs at short notice if the Prince does not wish to drive himself.

To royalty, no less than to those of lesser rank, furnishing a new home is an adventure, and it has been a thrill to the Princess and her husband.

In their case, the pleasure has been intensified by the many fine wedding gifts which they possess. Hundreds of presents came to them from all over the world, and many of them have had to be stored until recently.

In some cases, well-wishers postponed making the actual gifts until Their Royal Highnesses found a permanent London home. At the time of their marriage, for instance, the citizens of Glasgow promised to furnish the Duke's bedroom. This promise has now been fulfilled.

The apartment symbolizes his keen interest in the navy. It resembles a naval officer's cabin, and is somewhat spartan in its appointments. A bathroom and a small room used as a wardrobe and dressing room adjoin this white-walled bedroom.

COLOR SCHEMES

Princess Elizabeth's bedroom, on the other hand, is a colorful apartment, and each of the guest rooms has its own enchanting scheme of decoration and furnishing.

For her own bedroom the Princess chose pastel shades of rose pink; for other bedrooms she selected mainly designs in cream and blue. The main reception room is done in gold and white.

The last-named apartment is on the first floor, where H.R.H. also has her charmingly furnished sitting-room. Throughout the house the aim has been to achieve a homely effect and yet retain a suggestion of royal dignity.

Because Clarence House adjoins St. James' Palace, where the main offices of the royal court are situated, there has been little need to reserve extensive business offices in the Princess' new home, though there is a small office for her secretary and ladies-in-waiting.

But the Duke has a study-cum-office furnished on modern business office lines. All the furniture has been specially made, for it has been provided by the Canadian Pacific Railway as another wedding gift.

It's Teatime for the "Chimps"

London Zoo Resumes Daily Attraction for the Children

By J. W. MAXWELL

LONDON. — Teatime for the "chimps" is once again a feature of the London Zoo after a lapse of ten years. Forced to discontinue the presentation in 1939 because of personnel shortages, Zoo authorities are now more than happy to return the event—for, despite rides on elephants, camels, llamas, donkeys and Shetland ponies, there is nothing that thrills London "small fry" like the chimpanzees' "tea."

Actually a three-course meal, without a drop of tea on the table, the "tea" at which four cunning and irrepressible two-year-olds take part is offered daily at 4.30 in the afternoon.

Imported from Sierra Leone, West Africa, nine months ago, the four young chimpanzees were placed in the capable hands of L. G. Smith, head keeper for the primates — the Zoo's 97 monkeys, ranging from tiny, chattering flyweights to giant, grunting gorillas.

TABLE TRAINING

Intending to groom the "youngsters" for a return of "teatime," Smith immediately took the first step: gaining their confidence. Through word and deed, he and fellow keepers demonstrated that they intended the chimps no harm. They made a point of feeding the animals personally and giving them lots of attention and petting.

"In no time at all," Smith said today, "those four were like little children — always wanting to walk with their hands in ours and ever eager to wrap their arms around us in displays of affection."

Getting the chimps to drink normally from cups was the first stage in the seven-month preparation for public appearance. Naturally inclined to empty the cup while it rested on the floor, it took a number of demonstrations to interest the chimps in drinking human-fashion. But once convinced of the advantages, they never reverted to the floor, Smith said.

SPOON TECHNIQUE

More difficult was converting the chimpanzees to the use of spoons instead of fingers. "They never could really see any advantage in it," Smith opined. "They just used the spoons to go along with us."

With spoon and cup techniques acquired, the chimps were ready to be taken to their table out on the green. Here it took loads of persuasion and unlimited patience to convince Sally, Susan and Soso—the girls—and Compo, the boy, that each should remain in the chair with his name on it and that there should be no walking across the table. But here again they "went along."

On opening day this week, the quartette showed no concern for the thousands of eyes staring at them nor for the shrill, childish screams of delight that filled the air. But the two dozen or so photographers peering at them from every angle was another matter. Susan even went so far as to cover her face with the tablecloth.

NO COACHING

The routine party, without benefit of flash bulbs and other such distractions, proceeds about like this: The chimps walk up to the table and take their own individual chairs without any coaching. They are given their spoons, and bowls filled with cut-up grapes and milk. They spoon out the grapes, and then disdainful of Emily Post, seize their bowls in their hands and drain them of the last drops. The keepers stand by with napkins at this point with which the teatimers wipe their mouths. Second course is salad (chimpanzees are vegetarians) and the wind-up is the "tea," which is really more milk.

The proceedings are invariably enlivened by the chimps stealing from one another, from which even the most moral is unable to refrain. When the food has been downed, the chimpanzees leave the table, and, taking the keepers by hand, are "introduced" all around to the children present. The entire affair lasts about half an hour.

According to Keeper Smith the chimpanzees enjoy the program and are very disappointed when weather conditions prevent their being outside.

HEALTH FIRST

"But we have to consider their health above all else," Smith said, "and should they be out in the wet and catch cold, they are highly susceptible to pneumonia which means almost certain death."

As a diet aid, the chimps are given a vitamin complex every day. Even more important, however, Smith says, in maintaining good health is to keep them occupied.

Hollywood

By PATRICIA CLARY

HOLLYWOOD (UP). — When they need a car washed in the movies they call for Milton Waldeck, the buttermilk man.

Waldeck washes down automobiles in gallons of fresh, pure buttermilk. It's not to make them shiny and new looking; quite the opposite.

"Buttermilk is the best thing I know," Waldeck said authoritatively "for taking the shine off a car. It is Nature's answer to arc light reflection."

When a car rolls in front of a movie camera, with brilliant arc lights grouped around it, it shines like the pants of an old serge suit. Further, all the lights are reflected in its polish in a disillusioning way. It's Waldeck's job to unshine it.

It takes him about four hours every morning, starting at 5 a.m., to buttermilk the fleet of shiny 1949 model Good Humor trucks used in Columbia's "The Good Humor Man."

FIVE CARS AN HOUR

"I can milk five cars an hour when I'm going good," he said. "Of course, that's with a grade A buttermilk. Sometimes they give me a bad batch of the stuff and I have to go over them twice.

"I'm a pretty fast worker, though, if I do say so. And I've never turned out a car that gave the cameramen trouble."

Waldeck often compares notes with the upkeep men around the Columbia lot on the intricacies of making up actors and automobiles. He considers his work an art, too.

He can't resist offering advice, however, when he watches the makeup men tone down the highlights on an actor's face before sending him before the cameras.

"You can powder that boy until doomsday," he once observed about Jack Carson, "but you'll never get the perfection I could get with a pint of fresh buttermilk."

Almost anybody is liable to turn up in a Bing Crosby picture. Anybody from Bob Hope and Ingrid Bergman to Ish Kabibble and Max Baer to a talking rooster.

Director Frank Capra has spotted a set of celebrities in Crosby's latest, Paramount's "Riding High," who virtually make guest appearances. But each of them fits logically into the story.

Max Baer worked only one day on the set and never threw a punch. He was hired because he met all the specifications for the part of an ex-prizefighter. Crosby's one-time girl friend, who prefers the athletic type, marries up with Max.

Baer's longest speech was three words.

"And I only blew the line once," he grinned.

Capra brought Joe Frisco, the stuttering night club comic, back from Miami, Fla., to play a race-track tout. Frisco has a funny routine in which he gets all tangled up with newspapers and racing forms trying to pick a winner. That's going in the picture.

TRICK TRUMPETING

Ish Kabibble, who used to do gag singing with Kay Kyser's band, was recruited to play his trick trumpet during a novelty song number, "A Horse Told Me," with Bing.

"I blow while Bing burns," he said in explaining his part in the picture.

Comedian Oliver (Babe) Hardy's presence in the picture is intended to come as a big surprise. Their first view will be an ample backside on which the camera is trained. Then Hardy turns his familiar round face toward the audience.

The Babe is playing a sucker who is touted onto a horse named Doughboy at the races. Doughboy comes in last.

"Doughboy sounds like a Crosby horse," Hardy commented after he tore up his movie betting tickets, "and he certainly runs like one."

BOOKS!

By W. T. GALT

While publishers in the United States are reaping bumper crops of ulcers trying to hold their own against such invasions of the home as television, our stolid citizens from coast to coast seem to be just getting their reading eyes.

Toronto Public Library Board reports circulation of books there jumped up 3 per cent in 1948.

Here in Victoria we showed Toronto up with a whopping 9 per cent circulation increase in what is probably the most overcrowded library in Canada.

And that's only part of the story.

With the tenth anniversary of Pocket Books Inc. last month, they reported total distribution of something like 260,000,000 copies since they set up business in June, 1939.

And that is only one publisher of pocket books. How many of these spilled over into Canada is anybody's guess.

Going by the library figures, it looks as if non-fiction and fiction were running almost even in the reader popularity stakes. In Victoria an 11 per cent increase in non-fiction outdid a 7 per cent increase in fiction.

But the quarter reprints probably more than make up the fiction slack to leave the ratio pretty much as it has always been.

For although Pocket Books call Dale Carnegie's "How to Win Friends, etc.," a non-fiction title, its best seller with 3,433,000 copies, light fiction must be regarded as the mainstay of the reprint field.

Library figures do show some interesting trends in Canadian reading.

Toronto Public Library reports, for example, that circulation of books on political and economic subjects have dwindled from an all-time record circulation of 87,000 in 1939 to a mere 55,000 in 1948.

On the other hand, an interest in contemporary history apparently runs high, according to the volume of readers of such volumes as "The Gathering Storm," by Winston S. Churchill; "Roosevelt and Hopkins," by Robert Sherwood; "The Meaning of Treason," by Rebecca West; "Civilisation on Trial" by Arnold Toynbee.

And hand in hand with this apparent interest in world affairs, the "sedatives" such as "Peace of Mind," "How to Stop Worrying and Start Living," have enjoyed a comparable blossoming.

Libraries everywhere (Victoria too) say their readers are starved for travel books. Most avid travel book readers, they say, have read through the library backlog and are now into the vacuum left during the war years when no new travel books were turned out.

Whether sale of books is keeping pace with increased library and pocket book consumption is another matter.

The lush wartime days when almost anything between covers made hot cakes look cold are certainly over. But from all reports sales don't seem to have been down from last year.

And publishing costs have gone up, as reflected in a rise in book prices.

According to a United States calculation of book price increases, the average cost per hard cover book has boomed from $2.67 in 1944 through $3.10 in 1948 to $3.45 this year.

Canadian libraries and publishers probably don't have anything to fear from television which is reportedly worrying their opposite numbers below the boundary.

So far there has not been much sign that television has really affected book sales.

Besides, radio and movies have already come to stay and people are still reading.

MARCEL PROUST

Proust's Letters Give New Slant on Author

"Letters of Marcel Proust," translated and edited by Mina Curtiss (Random House, $6).

Here is a volume genuine admirers of Proust's great "Remembrance of Things Past" will want to add to their libraries.

For most general readers, however, to all the usual handicaps entailed in reading any collection of someone else's mail will be added the more than usual unfamiliarity with the attitudes and personalities that made up Proust's world.

Proust's friends had a word for the rather formal, almost gushing style the author affected in his letters. They called it Proustifying.

But those who are not dismayed by wading through the sea of Proustifying will be rewarded with a glimpse of a Proust that did not show through the pages of his novel.

DISTRESS SIGNALS

Here in his letters are the chronic invalid's continuous calls for sympathy—distress signals from the cork-lined, sound-proofed room which was his prison and which has come to be regarded as the symbol of the most ivory of ivory towers.

And beyond the neuroticism and effusiveness alert readers will find a partial key to the host of contradictory aspects of himself Proust has managed to convey in his novel.

To readers who already know Proust, and not too many Canadians do, the letters, taken with the valuable introduction by Harry Levin make this a book of considerable importance.

SERVICE

Others who might be interest in linking Proust loosely with Flaubert, Dostoevsky, and other writers of genius who were chronic invalids, will find fascinating reading in these letters.

The collection will do a great service to anyone who goes on to read Proust for the first time after becoming interested in him through his letters.—W.T.G.

"For Goodness' Sake" Is Humorous

"For Goodness' Sake" by Nancy Jones. (Ryerson, $3).

When Nancy Jones, wife of a United Church minister in Winnipeg, set out to write this autobiographical story, she apparently had in mind some helpful suggestions for other young women following in her footsteps.

Not only has she succeeded in this—she has written a book so full of comfortable charm, humor and good sense that "For Goodness' Sake" should find a welcoming reading public far wider than the author's objective group.

"For Goodness' Sake" is not a religious book, but it is a book of faith which abounds in human touches. Mrs. Jones has written her own story in a series of lively word-pictures, from the time she and her young husband went to their first parish through years of changing scenes and growing families to the present. Through it all is the quiet vein of faith which sustains both her husband and herself in their chosen work.

COPES WITH TYPES

The reader is very apt to find himself (or herself) among the friends and acquaintances of whom Mrs. Jones writes, for, as she says, "One's parishioners fall into a few easily defined classes. In moving into a new field we always know that we will have exactly the same types with which to cope . . ."

For other reasons, too, the book will strike responsive chords. Other families besides those of ministers today face the task of raising with presentable respectability a family of children on a wage never quite adequate. Mrs. Jones' adventures in budgeting and in clothing and feeding herself and her boys may sound very familiar.

Any readers who find enjoyment in people will take kindly to "For Goodness' Sake," because Mrs. Jones, obviously "real people" herself, has managed to fill her pages with others of the same sort. In simple language she tells her story, and in simple terms offers a single recipe for success to brand-new ministers' wives.

CURIOSITY

The only essential quality, she says, is curiosity—"a wide, resilient curiosity about life, about people and place and things, about thoughts and ideas." Thus equipped, she adds, "you are fairly well armed for the fray in that you would soon see what other qualities were needed and acquire them."

Mrs. Jones has much to say in her book about calling on people, and how to attain success in that field. Anyone reading her book is very apt to feel that Mrs. Jones has just made one of her calls in person, and left behind her the hope that she will come again soon.—E.M.S.

Kipling Is at Best When Served Plain

"Humorous Tales of Rudyard Kipling" (Pan Books, 45 cents).

Pukkha sahibs may grumble at the suggestion that Kipling was not always at his best as a pure humorist. Some ordinary folk, however, may accept it.

Incomparable story-teller though he was, the master sometimes let words, words, blunt his sense of the ridiculous. A certain grandeur of statement which he was never able to shed in his lightest pieces, was a positive handicap to Kipling as humorist.

There is wit in plenty, and the natural humor of situation, but the two factors do not always consort easily together. When they do, however, the result has no equal.

TWICE-TOLD

This book of already-told tales, published by a firm which has revived many titles worth reviving, contains a little of Kipling's best work in the light story field and some of his weakest.

In "The Village That Voted the Earth Was Flat," probably the most outstanding story in the book, the author exploits a vein of satire which some of his readers would probably have liked to see him follow further.

His more familiar figures are well represented: Private Learoyd, who sells a Eurasian lady a fraudulent fox terrier; the sensitive regiment which still remembers a blot on its dignity, and red-haired Namgay Doola, the renegade Thibetan whose father was an Irishman.

Namgay Doola is as close as Kipling comes in this book to the blend of humor and pathos which, deservedly, made his name as one of the greatest short-story writers who have ever lived.—G.E.M.

Reviews in Brief . . .

"Tancred, Prince of Salerno," by Laurence Dakin (J. M. Dent & Sons).

This is a tragedy, written in blank verse, dealing with the unhappy romance of a knight, Guiscardo, and a princess, Ghismonda. The treachery and cunning of Alfredo, Duke of Capua, and the impulsiveness of Tancred, the father of Ghismonda, combine to blight the lovers' happiness.

The setting is Mediterranean; the time, vaguely Renaissance.—R.M.

"Alexander Pope," by Edith Sitwell (Penguin Books, 35c).

A vivacious and learned depiction of the personality, life and times of Pope is found in this reprint by a noted English lady of letters.

The book is actually as much defence as biography, and Miss Sitwell dismisses Pope's detractors, if not impartially, in a fashion that would have done credit to the 18th century poet himself.

She attempts to show Pope, "who is, in his two finest poems, perhaps the most flawless artist our race has produced," as a "good and exceedingly lovable" man, and deals but briefly with his poetry.

Letter From A Poetess

Book Editor
Dear Sir:

I have read with interest and some amusement the review of my last book, "All Fools Day," appearing on your page (June 19) over the initials R.M. In return let me offer your reviewer some advice.

1. Think for yourself, R.M.; don't parrot the cliches of the militant-modernists—such as the suggestion that it is a capital crime for poetry to "give no offense" or to "rhyme and scan comfortably." This style may have been effective when new, but it is no longer new and it never made very good sense.

2. Don't lean too heavily on the blessed word "contemporary"; the real achievement in poetry is not to be contemporary but to be universal.

3. Learn to distinguish between Alfred Noyes and Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

4. Don't rely on would-be wit; a really good writer doesn't need to.

Sincerely yours,
AUDREY ALEXANDRA BROWN.

The Odd Corner

William Saroyan may be classed as one of America's liveliest writers, but liveliness isn't what a Mr. Mendelson was looking for when he spoke of Saroyan in "Soviet Literature."

Here is part of his opinion:

"Mr. Saroyan acts the fool and imp; and in a farrago of pious balderdash and obscenity serves up the rankest reactionary ideas in the guise of a plea for universal love.

"He has a predilection for all sorts of degenerates, drunkards, prostitutes and tries his level best to bring home to the reader that infantilism, stupidity and inability to think are the noblest of human traits.

"In 'The Human Comedy' he preached spiritual tolerance to the Fascits during the World War."

Men Better Decorators, Home Expert Claims

* * *

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY

NEW YORK (UP).—In most homes, it's the wife who is the final arbiter of decorating. But James Mont, interior decorator, is none too sure she's qualified for the post.

"Almost any man has a better understanding of color, form design and utility than any woman of the same general educational and experience levels," Mont said.

He is bound to get plenty of indignant feminine replies from some well-decorated living-rooms. But on the other hand, for every one of the decorating sins he attributes to American women in a new booklet he just published, Mont can cite a case to prove it from among his own decorating clients.

Women, he contends, too easily become addicts of vibrant colors. They mix too many colors in one room, with a nerve-jangling result.

RED FOR ACCENT

"While you don't have to be afraid of color," Mont said, "you must be respectful. The more waking time you spend in a room, the less dramatic it should be, the more restful it must be."

A stimulating color like red, for instance, should only be used as an accent in a much-used living-room, according to Mont. "Even then," he added, "you're better off if it's portable and can be moved now and then."

Arranging furniture properly in a room is another household talent lacking in most women, in Mont's opinion. They tend to fall into two styles of arrangement—the "Spanish bull ring" fashion, in which furniture is strung around the walls of a room, or the "Olympic obstacle" course, with furniture placed so "any normal path from one door to another invites a catastrophe."

Mont suggests a "traffic-flow" pattern as a remedy. Lay wide strips of newspaper connecting all entrances to a room in direct paths. The furniture belongs in the remaining sections.

FURNITURE FIRST

When it comes to the money a young couple spends in furnishing their first living-room, Mont accuses women of splurging on inconsequential items and then having to skimp on the important ones. Fifty-five per cent of the living-room budget should be spent on furniture, he believes, with as much as 35 per cent on the sofa alone. Twenty per cent goes for the carpet and the remaining 25 per cent on lamps, drapes, paintings and other accessories.

Trust a man to buy the sofa after the budget is settled. "He may possibly go wrong on the color or type of fabric," explained Mont, "but you can trust him to pick the right shape and the correct size. A man knows there's no greater fraud in the world of furniture than a sofa which doesn't allow him to lie down on it."

As for round sofas, he says they are "nothing but show pieces." He's for keeping them out of the living-room "until the day humans come in a horseshoe design."

Matched Ensembles for Bedroom

By BETTY LENAHAN

STRANGELY, one seems to tire of the bedroom color scheme and decoration more quickly than that of any other room. However drastic changes such as completely redecorating the walls, buying new floor covering and other or additional furniture whenever the mood inspires, is certainly not practical.

One way to satisfy the urge to "freshen up" and create a new and different atmosphere in the bedroom from time to time is to change the draperies, curtains, bedspreads, lamp shades, pictures and other decorative accessories.

The daintily feminine young girl's bedroom illustrated takes on a gay summery appearance with the use of an inexpensive matched ensemble consisting of a bedspread, ruffled pillow sham, dressing table skirt, valance and draperies. The quaint posie pattern on a crisp Saison Calcutta cloth used for the ensemble is particularly practical for Summer because it is color-fast and washable.

Any item of the ensemble can be purchased individually and the same pattern or a matching tone of a solid color is available for slip-covers or other decorative purposes.

There is a selection of color combinations to blend with any wall tone or floor covering. These include blue with white, green with white, grey with white and a mellow new color—challis yellow with white.

These highly stylized matched bedroom ensembles are an excellent selection for the homemaker who is on a limited budget and likes frequent changes but who is more or less timid about combining various patterns and different colors in the same room.

Secrecy and Formality In Dressing Royalty

THERE is great secrecy about the creation of costumes for the royal ladies of England, and a strict formality is always followed. Norman Hartnell is the man who designs most of their clothes for important occasions.

The remarkable career of this foremost British designer and dressmaker, by appointment, to Her Majesty the Queen of England, has been meteoric. While still at Cambridge he gained fame with some theatrical costumes he designed. They were so unusually lovely that it was by popular acclaim he turned to designing.

He started in an attic in London with his sister, one sewing machine and three sewing girls. Within a year he was dressing the most elegant ladies in London society.

When he made the wedding gown and trousseaux for the wedding of Lady Alice Montague-Douglas-Scott to H.R.H. the Duke of Gloucester, the seal of the nation's approval was set on the House of Hartnell.

QUEEN'S GOWNS

He was given an opportunity in 1947 to disprove the idea that only in Paris could frocks of distinction and charm be found. He was commanded to make the important dresses for the Queen when she accompanied King George VI on his state visit to France. Critical Paris awaited the event. The Queen completely captivated the French people whose Government promptly and graciously conferred the order of "Officier d'Academie" on Hartnell, for his contribution to the world of fashion.

Hartnell made the clothes for Their Majesties' visit to the United States and Canada which were greatly admired and which, it is often believed, did much to help the "diplomatique" importance of the visit.

FOR PRINCESS

His most thrilling Royal assignment was certainly the wedding gown of H.R.H. Princess Elizabeth, as well as the gowns of her wedding attendants and most of her trousseaux.

Most recently he made the wardrobe for H.R.H Princess Margaret for her visit to Italy. Princess Margaret is a young woman of decided tastes and it is great fun, he says, to dress her. She is permitted greater leeway than her sister. In this collection, Hartnell made her first black evening dress. Since the Royal ladies usually wear pastels, the black dress was a great departure from precedent as well as a sign of the young Princess' growing up.

THE PROCEDURE

The procedure for dressing the Royal ladies is always the same. The Princess' secretary phones Hartnell and ask him to come to the palace. At the appointment Hartnell is asked to design a seasonal wardrobe or a gown for a special occasion or clothes for a tour—such as this Italian one. Hartnell chooses the fabrics and does his own original colored drawings of the designs. No models are ever made of the Royal clothes and even the sketches may not be shown until the gown has been worn officially. Armed with the fabrics and sketches, Hartnell returns to the palace to submit the designs and discuss the details personally. All fittings take place at Buckingham Palace and only Hartnell and his assistants are present, as is the Princess' personal maid.

London's Fashions Impressive

North American Newspaper Alliance

LONDON.—A recent exhibition of British fashions for overseas buyers featured clothes which, in the hands of one Canadian, were "just the sort I came to see."

Divided into five sections, the parade showed day dresses, coats and suits, lingerie, cocktail and afternoon dresses and evening and hostess gowns.

Patricularly were the tailored suits and hats in the best British tradition. Classic tailormades in finely woven cloth in grey or navy blue, with an occasional scarlet or green, they evoked loud applause. Noted was the return of suits with belted jackets, usually worn over sunray-pleated skirts.

PLEATED BACK

One three-piece ensemble in two shades of grey consisted of a dark grey swagger coat with a very full-pleated back and a light grey tuxedo front, worn over a dark grey belted jacket with high breast pockets edged with light grey and with light grey revers and pocket piping, teamed with a light grey sunray pleated skirt. The model showing this outfit wore dark grey accessories and a light grey beret decorated with two long dark grey quills.

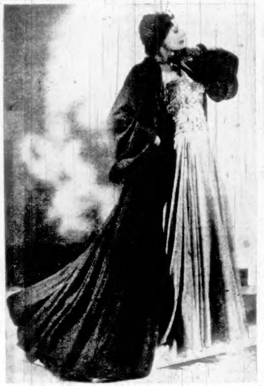
A vivid moss green three-piece, a rakish swagger coat with a high upstanding collar worn over a perfectly plain, severely tailored suit was teamed with black velvet accessories which included a high swathed cravat. Navy, vivid moss green and powder blue are also gaining popularity with many designers.

Suit skirts were a little shorter but coats still remain just below mid-calf. A large grey and rosy-red overcheck was frequently used for swagger coats, all cut on the same pattern: full swing backs of unpressed pleats, wide collars which can be turned upto frame the face, large turned-back flyaway cuffs. One coat in this style was made of phantom beaver fur fabric which was absolutely indistinguishable from the real thing.

Many of the dresses had skirts slightly shorter at the front than at the back. Many had overskirts caught up on one hip or flying loose in separate panels. These panels are very popular with most designers now, and some of the tailored suits even had one at the back.

A cocktail dress in grey duchess satin had a very low neck and cap sleeves, and a tightly swathed skirt with waterfall drapery at the back from which floated a long loose panel. The hat accompanying this model was a small cloche of swathed matching satin caught at one side with a long spray of grey, pink and white roses. Another cocktail dress in bronze shot taffeta, had a tiered skirt, each tier edged with grey lace, and was worn with a grey lace stole.

The highlight of the show was the section devoted to evening dresses. Glamorous in the extreme, they were made up in heavy satins, rustling taffetas, vivid shot silks and softly shaded chiffons.



BRITISH MODELS recently shown to overseas buyers included an evening dress in imperial yellow silk chiffon with encrusted embroidery in beads, paillettes and cabochons, under a flame velvet coat with encrusted embroidery.

"Swallowfield"

SWALLOWFIELD one of Vancouver Island's largest developed properties, has a new owner, Rt. Hon. Lord Brocket. The transfer of the property, situated 50 miles north of Victoria, between Duncan and Chemainus, was made last month by the present owner, J. J. E. Sloan, of Capetown, South Africa.

The sale is of interest to cattlemen in Canada and the United States, as Lord Brocket intends to bring some of his famous Ayrshires to Swallowfield. His new venture in this country will be raising breeding stock.

Lord Brocket, leading agronomist in the House of Lords, owns some of the world's best breeding cattle which he keeps at Brocket Hall, Welwyn, Hertfordshire; Bramshill Park, Basingstoke, Hampshire, and Knoydart, Inverness-shire.

NEW VENTURE

The arrival of the Ayrshires will be the second venture to Swallowfield in little over a year. For the past year, John Sloan, who has been managing the property for his brother, has been raising Herefords. Raising beef cattle on the Island has been most successful, but, Mr. Sloan explains, in normal times it would not be practical. With beef at top prices and a seven or eight-months-old calf weighing 325 pounds or better it doesn't take much figuring to know what Mr. Sloan means by practical. The sturdy Herefords, known for their hardy qualities, find easy living at Swallowfield and thrived on the salt grass this Spring.

There hasn't been a fatality with calves at Swallowfield this Spring and Mr. Sloan gives all credit for this to James Matheson, general overseer. Matheson came from Scotland to Canada two years ago and to Swallowfield a few months ago.

The idea of raising beef cattle has caught on in the district and two neighbors of Swallowfield, Mr. [illegible] and Mr. Elliott, have already acquired stock from Swallowfield.

FINE PROPERTY

Beautiful and picturesque, the property comprises 450 acres of lush meadowlands. The Chemainus River winds lazily through an avenue of sturdy old maples to the sea, branching at the mouth to flow past the 100-acre delta, Mainguy Island. The property has a seafrontage two miles along the east coast of the island.

Mainguy Island, not originally a part of Swallowfield, was settled by Daniel Mainguy, an early settler on Vancouver Island, father of Rear Admiral E. Rollo Mainguy. The Mainguys lived on the little island for many years when the only mode of transportation was by boat up the Chemainus River.

An oak and evergreen crested ridge runs across the property and it is on this ridge that the houses and farm buildings stand.

MODERN DWELLING

The main dwelling, built in the '20's, stands high above a poplar-fronted tributary of the Chemainus. From the large paneled living-room with wide stone fireplace, there is a panoramic view of the river side with the blue mountains in the background. Another huge stone fireplace, into which have gone Indian stone relics gathered on the place by the late Mrs. Hutchinson, wife of a former owner, is a feature of the glass-enclosed breakfast room which affords glimpses of the sea. A master bedroom suite and kitchens comprise the rest of the ground floor.

The original water tower has been left standing and one glance upward where hundreds of swallows dart and glide all day long readily signifies how the place was named.

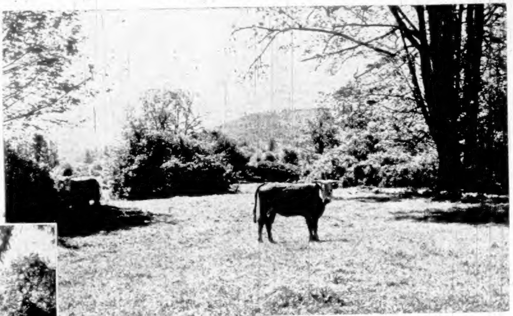
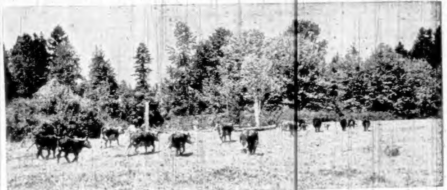
TREES AND OTHER foliage overhang the little slough below the hill on which stands the rambling ranchhouse at Swallowfield. The road beyond the little bridge in the background winds up around the house.

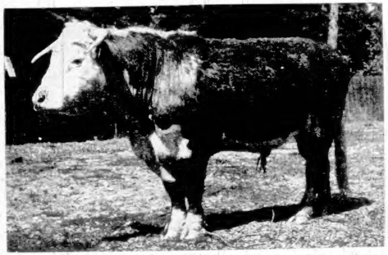


CAMERA SHY, THE herd of white-faced Herefords at Swallowfield stampeded from the cameraman at every turn, except for these two who through curiosity, posed for a good shot.



THE HEREFORDS, beef stock now being raised on the property, were definitely not interested in having their photos taken and are pictured as they make a dash for cover among the trees.

ONE OF THE many lovely views on Swallowfields the property recently purchased by the Rt. Hon. Lord Brocket, is looking southeast from Mainguy Island toward the sea.



PEDIGREED HEREFORD BULL, and founder of the stock of Swallowfield ignores the camera but stood still for several good pictures of himself.
